U. S. AID SOUGHT FOR WATER LINE BY LOS ANGELES

Federal Body Urged to Buy Bonds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—[Special.]—Los Angeles and the little sister cities, which have gathered under her wing to form the metropolitan water district of southern California, have thought up a new approach to the federal funds at Washington in an effort to gain more water and more population for this area at the expense of other parts of the country.

In brief, the situation is this: The metropolitan water district of southern California, authorized to organize by special enabling legislation of the California legislature, last year voted to authorize a 200 million dollar bond issue to construct an equeduct from Los Angeles and Long Beach to the Colorado river. The aqueduct was to be built in six years, so as to take advantage of the water expected to be impounded and then released by Boulder dam, at the end of the older dam construction period, about 1938.

Wants to Start Work Soon.

The water district, now on the verge of having to go out and sell its bonds on a dead bond market, has been looking around for a possible purchaser for $10,000,000 and $50,000,000 of the authorized bonds, in order to start work on the 250 mile aqueduct by midsummer. No bond purchasers being in sight, the head men of the water district, admittedly an able group of public opinion propagandists, decided they would see if they could not market their bonds with the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation at Washington, on the ground that the project would relieve unemployment and affect the well being of 2,000,000 American citizens.

First inquiries, sounded in the direction of Secretary of the Interior Ray L. Wilbur; Congressman William E. Evans [Rep.] of Glendale, Cal., a Los Angeles suburb; Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep.] of California, and Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, were said to have brought responses pleasing to the Los Angeles group, although local leaders were disappointed at being informed that the legislation governing the Reconstruction Finance corporation would have to be "amended" before federal funds intrusted to its care could be used for purchasing bonds for the purpose Los Angeles contemplates.

Aid of Congress Sought.

Accordingly, the leaders decided to tackle congress in an effort to obtain legislation changing the rules governing the finance corporation so that the latter would be enabled to hearken to Los Angeles' cry for funds.

It is understood that President Hoover has been sounded out on the proposal and is favorable. Two representatives of the Los Angeles district are on their way to Washington. They left with strong hopes of obtaining the cooperation of Gen. Dawes.

The Los Angeles spokesmen admit they would be overjoyed if the Reconstruction Finance corporation would "take all of the 220 million in bonds." That would save Los Angeles and its satellites many millions of dollars in discounting the bonds if sold on the market, it is pointed out.

Market Other Bonds Later.

However, they have no idea they could tap the federal till for the entire amount of the bond issue. Their program really calls for going to Washington and asking for $40,000,000 or $50,000,000. It is said they hope to find an immediate market for $10,000,000 or $15,0000,000 of the water district bonds in order to have funds on hand to start work. The rest of the bonds would then be marketed later when the bond market might not be so unfavorable.

There is one legal technicality in the way of marketing the 220 million dollar issue. It is the last appeal of a series of suits brought by individual southern California taxpayers attacking the legality of the water district project. The last appeal is pending in the California supreme court, after it and all similar taxpayers' lawsuits were uniformly decided in lower courts against the plaintiffs, and in support of the legality of water district construction and financing powers.

Point to Boulder Dam.

The argument used in Los Angeles by active supporters and officers of the metropolitan water district is this:

The United States government has sunk a lot of federal funds in the construction of Boulder dam. In order to help get this money back, the federal government will eventually find it advisable to help Los Angeles con-

Family's Third Plane Tragedy Kills 2

LINDBERGH BABY MURDER LAID TO 5 MEN, WOMAN

Early Arrest of One or More Expected.

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Five men and a woman, whose identities are believed to be known, were responsible for the kidnaping of the baby son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on the night of March 1 and his murder soon afterward according to information now in the hands of the New Jersey state police.

DR. JOHN F. CONDON

The arrest of one or more members of this group is expected within the next few days.

This information has enabled the police for the first time to construct a coherent picture of the kidnaping and to outline the manner in which the murder occurred.

The police now are understood to know that the actual kidnaping was carried out by three members of the gang of six. One of the men was a German, and it was he who wrote the note in which the German word "gut" was used for "good." One was said to be an Italian and one was believed to be a Brazilian. The woman was an American, as were the two other men.

Murder After Plans Go Wrong.

The woman was brought into the conspiracy—the original object of which was the wringing of a large ransom from Col. Lindbergh—to care for the baby while the ransom negotiations were being carried on. The child's death, according to the theory of the crime on which the police are now working, was certainly not the intention of the gang at the beginning, and came about when their plans began to go wrong.

The leaders—the "brains" of the gang—were not at the scene of the kidnaping, according to the information given to the police. They remained in a shack in the woods in the Souriand mountains, where the child was to be kept until the ransom was paid.

Two Do Actual Kidnaping.

The kidnapers, according to this account, traveled to the isolated neighborhood of the Lindbergh home in an automobile bearing New York license plates. The woman remained in the car while the German and one of the other men got out and took the baby.

One thing the kidnapers had forgotten to bring with them, according to the account given the police, was tape with which to close the baby's lips. This oversight, it was said, may have hastened the decision to kill the child, because the baby had unusually strong lungs and his screams could be heard for some distance.

Killed to Escape, Is Belief.

The kidnaping gang is believed to have remained in the neighborhood for some time after the kidnaping and may have seen the police hastening here and there through the roads of an alarmed countryside. Then, in a panic at the unexpected extent of the hue and cry, it is believed that one or more of them killed the child to help make their escape sure.

Once the child had been disposed of, the kidnapers, according to this information, grew bold once more and decided to risk the effort to obtain the ransom, knowing Col. Lindbergh would be willing to pay heavily for the return of the baby he still thought was alive and would protect the kidnapers from pursuit.

Several times, it was disclosed today, persons trying to solve the case were about to close in on three men and the woman, but each time they were forbidden to do so for fear it would jeopardize the child—who already was dead.

Identity Known to Underworld.

The identity of the kidnapers, it was said tonight, was known to "a number of underworld characters," who were ready to "get" the kidnapers if the police do not.

The information on which the police are working has been provided by Dr. John F. Condon, the Bronx lecturer who, under the name of "Jafsie," negotiated with a group and on the night of April 2 tossed $50,000 to

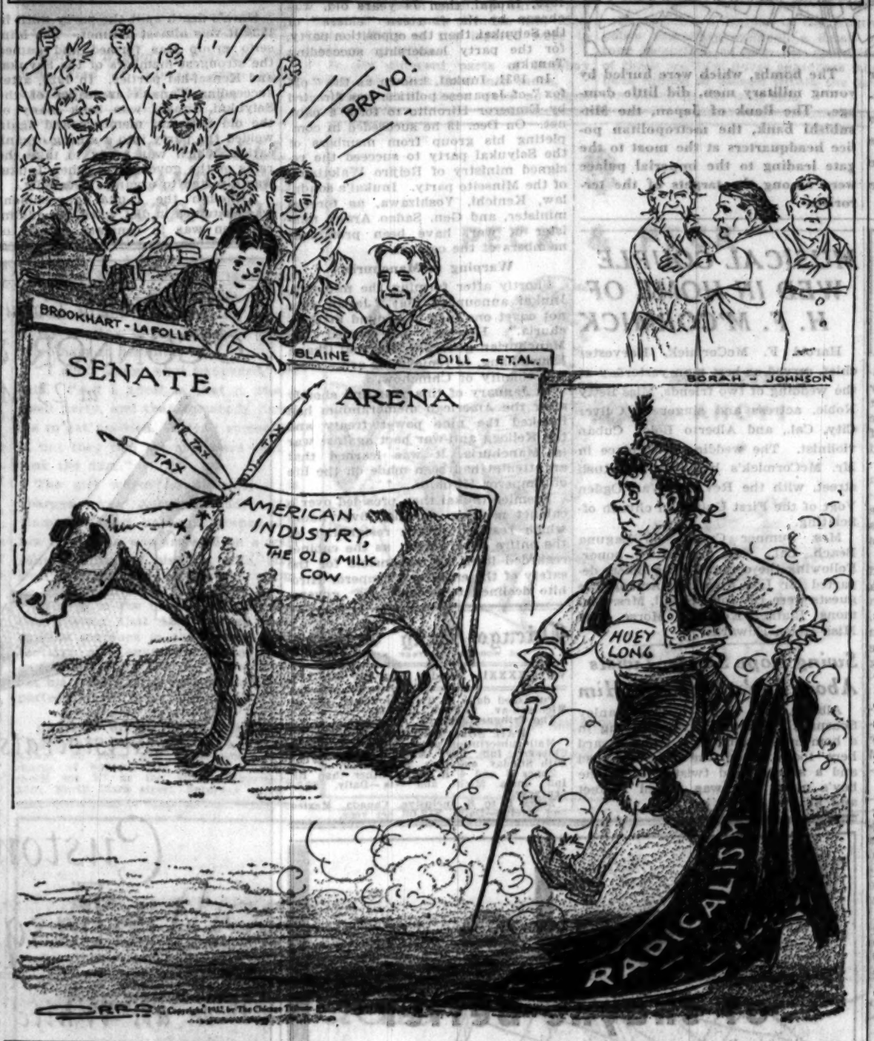
THEIR HERO



Brother and Sister Crash on Air Jaunt

An airplane crash near West Chicago killed a brother and sister yesterday and brought tragedy for the fourth time to the family of Attorney and Mrs. Charles A. Brown, of 133 South River street, Geneva. The four tragedies, in three of which planes figured, have cost five lives.

The victims of yesterday's accident were Gordon Brown, 23 years old, and Mrs. Barbara Bowes, 27 years old, children of the Browns. They were killed when the plane in which Brown was taking his sister for her first air ride fell 300 feet and struck an embankment of the Great Western Railroad just off Illinois highway 64, three miles west of West Chicago.

Victim a Licensed Pilot.

Young Brown, a licensed pilot, was a senior at Rochester university, Rochester, N. Y., and was to have been graduated next week. His sister, the mother of an 18 month old child, Emily, was the wife of Frederick Bowes of St. Charles, who owns an engraving business in Aurora.

Tragedy first came to the Brown family in July, 1918, when their son, Lieut. Malcolm Cotton Brown, 20 years old, was killed in an airplane crash at Gloucester, England. He was a member of the Canadian division of the Royal Air force and was preparing to go to the front.

Daughter Dies Next.

Next occurred the death of their daughter, Mrs. Meredith B. Skelton, 26 years old, when she was scalded in a London hotel bathroom while on a honeymoon with her husband, Ralph Fisher Skelton, Chicago artist, in 1925.

The third tragedy occurred in 1930 when Skelton, a sportsman pilot, was lost while flying his plane from Detroit to Chicago. Though other flyers searched thoroughly all the territory over which Skelton might have passed, neither his body nor any wreckage positively identified as that of his plane was ever found.

The airplane crash which killed Gordon Brown and Mrs. Bowes yesterday was witnessed by their brother, Maj. Kenneth C. Brown, himself a pilot. He was a cavalry officer during the war and is head of the receivership department of the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Flies Here to Visit.

Young Brown, owner and pilot of the ship, a two seater Fairchild K. R. trainer, equipped with a 125 horsepower Kinner motor, had flown in from Rochester on Friday for a weekend visit with his family. Yesterday he invited his sister to take her first ride, and together with Maj. Brown they drove to the Air Activities air port, which is on highway 64, five miles east of St. Charles.

As Maj. Brown looked on his brother and sister took off. The plane roared down the runway and then rose to about 300 feet.

Tries a Steep Bank.

"At that height my brother attempted a steep bank," related the major. "At the same instant his ship was caught by a strong gust of wind. It dropped suddenly, narrowly missing the tops of several trees. It continued in a dive, and struck the high railroad embankment. Had the plane missed the embankment by ten feet or more my brother might have brought it down without loss of life."

The wrecked plane did not burst into flame. Examination showed that Brown had cut the ignition switch. Maj. Brown and scores of witnesses hurried to the scene and extricated the two occupants. Mrs. Bowes was dead. Her brother, still living, was rushed to the Community hospital in Geneva by Miss Gilma Meeks, a student nurse there, who was passing the scene of the accident. Brown died

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 16 (Monday).—Naval leaders at 1 o'clock this afternoon had been in a secret conference for five hours. Those present were Admiral Mineo Osumi, minister of the navy, and Admirals Kato, Taniguschi, and Okeda, all members of the supreme war council and all high officials of the navy ministry. The naval ministry has ordered officers at all naval bases to bend every effort to curb men with radical leanings.

TOKIO, May 16 (Monday, 12:50 p. m.).—Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai, the "old fox" of Japanese politics, died at 11:35 o'clock last night of head wounds inflicted by revolver shots at 5:30 o'clock last evening. The shots were fired by nine men wearing the uniforms of military officers. The attack on the premier occurred in his official residence as he was chatting with a visitor.

Almost simultaneously terrorists raided the metropolitan police headquarters, wounding two officials; bombed the mansion of Count Shinken Makino, lord keeper of the privy seal, the Bank of Japan, the Mitsubishi bank, and the Seiyukai (government party) headquarters.

17 Surrender to Police.

Soon after the attack on Inukai, seventeen men surrendered to the police. All were in army and naval uniforms. Eleven of the group are students of the military academy who were not yet commissioned. Six are sublieutenants.

At the scene of some of the bombings the terrorists left handbills signed "The Young Army and Navy Officers' Association," expressing bitter dissatisfaction with the political parties and the way the government has been handling internal and foreign affairs.

The police this morning announced the discovery of a plot to destroy electric power plants throughout the nation. Telegrams were sent to all cities urging the strictest precaution.

Power Plant Bombed.

Two hours after Premier Inukai had been shot an attempt was made to bomb the Yodobashi power plant in Tokio. The terrorists fled. Several men raided the Hatagaya power plant of Saitama prefecture, adjoining Tokio, at the same time. The plant was badly damaged.

Police everywhere have been mobilized and are standing by to combat any further outbreaks. The British and American embassies are closely guarded.

Korekiyo Takahashi, minister of finance, was appointed premier to succeed the slain Inukai at 1:56 o'clock this morning and proceeded to the palace in the early morning hours to receive the official indorsement of Emperor Hirohito. At 11:30 a. m. the entire Inukai government resigned. It is extremely likely the mikado will order Takahashi to form a new cabinet.

Stock Exchanges Close.

So great was the political uneasiness in the wake of the sudden terroristic activities that transactions on the stock exchanges at Tokio, Osaka, Kobe, and Nagoya were suspended today indefinitely. The Yokohama and Kobe raw silk exchanges and the cotton, rice, sugar, and other exchanges are expected to follow suit.

The Bank of Japan has called an urgent conference of Gov. Hijikata, Vice Governor Fukai, and all the directors this morning to complete preparations to make emergency advances to provincial banks if necessary with a view to preventing disturbances in financial circles.

Vice Minister of Justice Minagawa will confer with army leaders today to decide what stand to take to stamp out the uprising. Military circles, it is known, have become dissatisfied with the government's attitude toward Manchuria, the growing power of capitalism, and the treatment of farmers. They allege that money has been concentrated in the Mitsui and Mitsubishi trusts on the one hand while the government has been refusing to grant appropriations demanded for the army in Manchuria.

Fight to Save His Life.

A detailed account of the terrorism in Tokio last night follows:

MERCURY RISES TO A RECORD 89; COOLER TODAY

Hundreds of thousands of Chicagoans flocked yesterday to beaches and parks as a bright sun drove the temperature to a maximum of 89 degrees, establishing an all time Chicago record for heat on May 15. The highest previous reading for the date was 86 in 1911.

Showers and thunderstorms, according to the official weather forecast, will rout the heat wave today. Tomorrow, it is expected, will be generally fair, with thermometer readings above today's, but still much lower than yesterday's.

It was estimated that 350,000 automobiles were on the roads near the city yesterday and that 1,000,000 persons rode in them. Another effect of the heat was a lessening of crime. From midnight Saturday until last evening there were only twelve robberies reported, as against a week-end average of sixty or more.

John Damico, 45 years old, 1700 North Artesian avenue, suffered a sunstroke at Western and Wabansia avenues. One swimmer, Gordon Green, 24 years old, 4251 North Mead avenue, suffered a broken neck when he dove and struck bottom in the lake off Delaware place. He was taken to the Passavant hospital.

GIRL, 11, BLINDED WHEN SHE FALLS ON "L" THIRD RAIL

Anna Mitnick, 11 years old, 4841 Clifton avenue, was severely burned and temporarily blinded yesterday afternoon when she fell across the third rail in the Wilson avenue switchyard of the Rapid Transit lines, not far from her home.

The child had been playing baseball with other children of the neighborhood and had volunteered to go over a fence and retrieve a ball. As she fell on the charged rail the current paralyzed her. G. A. Barkenas, 4523 Clifton avenue, hearing the cries of the children, lifted Anna from the rail with a stick.

She was taken to the Ravenswood hospital. There Dr. William Williams, a physician for the elevated company, said that she probably would recover from the burns and regain her sight.

Child Pulls Hot Coffee on Herself; Dies of Scalds

Carlyle Jean Johnson, 15 months old, died last night in her home at 282 Wolf road, Des Plaines, as the result of scalds suffered earlier when she pulled a cup of hot coffee on herself at the breakfast table. The father, Elmer W. Johnson, summoned Dr. Edward Miers of Des Plaines, who prescribed a sedative. According to the doctor death was caused by shock.

A Yegg Knocks at Opportunity but Too Lightly

Until late yesterday afternoon Michael Jacobs of 9217 Chauncey avenue had never met a safebreaker. Now that he has met one he is convinced that professors of cracksmanship are an inefficient lot, but gay dogs just the same.

The encounter occurred when Mr. Jacobs, who is a night watchman, reported for duty in the office of his employers, the Stewart Lumber company at 7855 Greenwood avenue.

There in the office was the safebreaker. He was dressed for hard work. He had on overalls. Beside him lay his equipment—a chisel, a small hammer, and a bottle of whisky. First he would attack the bottle and then he would attack the safe. The bottle didn't resist, but the safe did.

Robber Stands Up.

As Mr. Jacobs stepped in the cracksman rose from his knees, clutching his hammer.

"Who," he asked, "are you?"

"Just the watchman," replied Mr. Jacobs.

"Have a drink," said the safecracker.

Mr. Jacobs refused, but the stranger took a long swig from the bottle and twirled the hammer. Apparently he considered the possibility that the watchman might carry a pistol. As a matter of fact, Mr. Jacobs was unarmed.

"This is a bum business," asserted the cracksman. "Here I come in and find a nice little safe that looks like it might have money in it, and I find that my hammer is too small to crack it. What made me bring the wrong one?"

Mr. Jacobs Guesses Right.

"Maybe you used to be a plumber," suggested Mr. Jacobs.

"How did you guess that?" demanded the safebreaker. "But could you lend me a big one?"

The watchman said that there was not a sledge hammer in the office, but that there was a saloon down the street where he could borrow one. He offered to go alone and bring it back. At this the safebreaker waved his little hammer and remarked that he could see through Jacobs' plot to call policemen.

"I'll go with you and get a drink and the hammer both," he said.

He took the final drink from his bottle and, still clutching his little hammer, stepped outside with Mr. Jacobs. But some one across the street had seen him attacking the safe and the bottle and had summoned the police.

A siren already was shrieking down the street, and the stranger in overalls was not so dumb as to neglect the warning. He dropped his hammer and fled, escaping through an alley.

cers, and one sergeant arrived by automobile at the premier's official residence, Nagatacho, opposite the newly constructed parliamentary building. Police and guards at the residence attempted to halt the intruders. The terrorists drew pistols, thrust the guards aside, and entered.

They went to the living room, where they were ordered to halt by two policemen, Yamomatsu Hirayama and Goro Tanakwa. Both were seriously wounded as the attackers ran on through the residence. The assailants then entered the room where Inukai was smoking a cigaret and leisurely chatting with a guest.

The premier's daughter-in-law, Nakako Inukai, and two grandchildren were also in the room. As the men entered they ordered the women and children to leave. The daughter-in-law urged the premier to run.

"Please, let us escape!" she cried.

"It is useless," Inukai replied.

Nine Draw Pistols.

Each of the nine assailants drew a revolver.

"What do you want?" Inukai asked.

"We are going to shoot you!" an officer shouted.

"Let us talk it over before you shoot," Inukai suggested.

"Fire!" shouted the leader of the band of assassins.

Several pistol shots rang out, and the premier fell, mortally wounded. The killers carried the body into an adjoining room and then left the residence to surrender themselves to the police.

Desperate but futile attempts were made to save Premier Inukai's life. A blood transfusion was performed, but he sank rapidly, due to his advanced age. He was 77. Inukai sank into a coma, from which he never awakened, at 9:30 o'clock.

Three in Bombing Plot.

The taxicab driver who conveyed the men who bombed the Seiyukai party headquarters and the metropolitan police headquarters tonight told the following story:

"One navy and two army petty officers called me about 5 o'clock this evening and said that they wanted to take a sightseeing ride through the city. They handed me a ten yen note [about $3.30] and directed me to drive first to the Seiyukai party headquarters.

"Here two of the officers left the car and hurled two explosives. They climbed back into the car and ordered me to drive to police headquarters. I refused, but they pointed pistols at me and I submitted. At police headquarters they threw hand grenades and fired pistols, after which I was ordered to the Bank of Japan. They threw some more hand grenades there.

"Then the officers directed me to the police headquarters, where they left the car."

Inukai's funeral will be held on Wednesday. In recognition of his political services, the Seiyukai party will hold the services under its auspices. Premier Takahashi is expected to head the funeral committee.

Bombs Do Slight Damage.

Only slight damage was done by the bomb which exploded in the entrance of the home of Count Makino in the Mita district of southern Tokio. Witnesses said this grenade was thrown by a group of young uniformed men in an automobile.

Another band of men in an automobile hurled grenades at the metropolitan police board's office, which is just outside the moat at the "cherry village gate" to the imperial palace—the spot where a Corean attempted to bomb Emperor Hirohito on Jan. 8.

The other bombs which were hurled at the Seiyukai party headquarters, the Bank of Japan and the Mitsubishi bank did little damage.

Authorities feared another assassination plot this morning at 12:30 o'clock when six army officers, including two lieutenants, one sublieutenant, and three officers, wearing plain clothes, called at the official residence of Minister of War Araki.

Araki was absent but Lieut. Gen. Mazaki, vice chief of the general staff, received the callers and conversed for ten minutes. While they were talking Araki returned. The visitors demanded to see Araki but gendarmes entered the room and forced the men out. Araki's residence is being carefully guarded.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi commented editorially this morning as follows:

"Yesterday's terroristic incident on an unprecedented scale has shocked society. Leaflets distributed by the plotters indicate they were extremely worried regarding the economic situation. From these facts it is plain that the men took radical steps as a means of taking charge of the country themselves.

Reign of Terror.

"They aimed to cause a reign of terror by menacing the existence of the government and thus try to turn public attention to the necessity of entirely changing the present outlook on life. They sacrificed their lives for the nation as martyrs. We deeply regret and deplore the occurrence of the incident, but feel that only a few Japanese today remain who are satisfied with existing conditions.

"In view of the depression and incompetent political parties, many people here, like men committing suicide, feel like destroying their lives and everything else in desperation. But to think so is wrong. Human nature has never been perfect and there have been dissatisfied people in every era of history.

"It is too simple to think that society can be purified in a brief space of time through terroristic methods. Such actions are an unpardonable social evil. Public peace and order cannot be preserved if these people run rampant and society itself will be destroyed unless they are checked.

"We Japanese, with an old history behind us, cannot see the foundation of our national life broken up by terrorism. However, it must be remembered that those behind the plot did not have selfish motives, and the government should keep this in mind when dealing with them."

Japan Seeks to Suppress News.

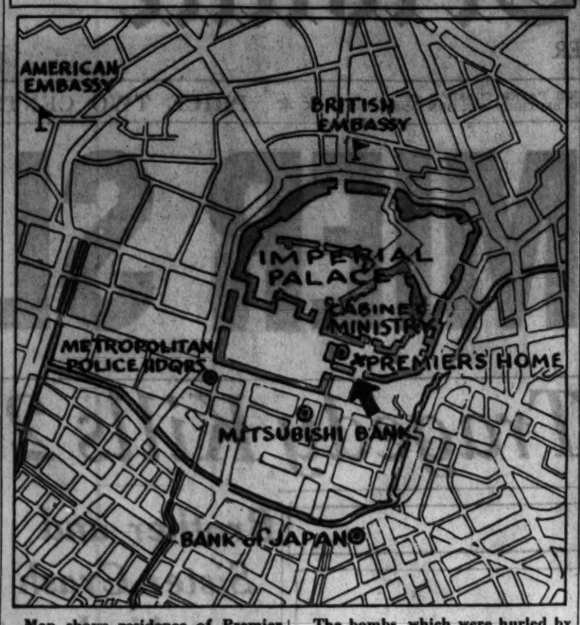
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 16.—[Monday.]—Japanese semi-official news agencies here [Rengo, Nippon, and Dempo], although advised of the Tokio disturbances, today received strict instructions from government authorities at Tokio not to issue reports to Shanghai clients. Japanese naval vessels stationed in Shanghai harbor, including the cruiser Idzuma, Japanese flagship, were busily engaged during the night in playing searchlights around the harbor.

Newspapers here this morning gave prominence to detailed accounts of the abortive Fascist coup which was scheduled last Nov. 3 in Tokio, but which failed, due to internal dissension.

The attempted coup of November was plotted by the so-called National Federation of Young Army and Naval officers, which was formed last August and which claims a membership of 23,000. Its objective is the repudiation of parliamentary government and suppression of all newspapers except two, the Nippon, organ of the monarchists, and Tsuwanmono, the organ of the military party.

Bombings Terrorize Japan's Capital



Map shows residence of Premier Inukai of Japan, who was assassinated by military terrorists in Tokio yesterday, and scenes of bombings which occurred at the same time he was shot. Police are guarding the American and British embassies.

The bombs, which were hurled by young military men, did little damage. The Bank of Japan, the Mitsubishi bank, the metropolitan police headquarters at the moat to the gate leading to the imperial palace were among the targets of the terrorists.

JAPAN'S PREMIER IS FIFTH LEADER SLAIN IN 12 YEARS

Venerable Inukai Idol of the Public.

Premier Inukai of Japan, who was assassinated yesterday by militarists, was a member of the Japanese diet from its inception, and for more than a decade stood as an idol of the Japanese masses. As long ago as 1921 he expressed the Japanese attitude in the Pacific. After stating that Japan had no designs on the Philippines, he went on to say: "The Japanese questions of more importance pertain to Siberia, Corea, and China."

On the death of Baron Tanaka in 1929, Inukai, then 74 years old, was chosen by the fourteen "elders" of the Seiyukai, then the opposition party, for the party leadership succeeding Tanaka.

In 1931, Inukai, known as the "old fox" of Japanese politics, was directed by Emperor Hirohito to form a cabinet. On Dec. 13 he succeeded in completing his group from members of the Seiyukai party to succeed the resigned ministry of Reijiro Wakatsuki of the Minseito party. Inukai's son-in-law, Kenichi, Yoshizawa, as foreign minister, and Gen. Sadao Araki, minister of war, have been prominent members of the cabinet.

Warning to Manchuria.

Shortly after forming the ministry, Inukai announced that "Japan does not covet one inch of ground in Manchuria." However, he warned, the Manchurian governor, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, to remove his army from the vicinity of Chinchow.

In January of this year and shortly after the American memorandum had invoked the nine power treaty and the Kellogg anti-war pact against war in Manchuria, it was learned that an attempt had been made on the life of Emperor Hirohito.

Premier Inukai then presided over a cabinet meeting lasting five hours which resulted in the resignation of the entire government, as the cabinet regarded itself as responsible for the safety of the emperor. Emperor Hirohito declined to accept the government's resignation and ordered the cabinet to remain in office.

The attack on the emperor was made by Li Honsho, alias Shockiki Asayama, a 32 year old Corean coolie, born in Seoul. He hurled a hand grenade at the imperial retinue as it was returning from a military review outside Tokio. The emperor was unharmed, as the Corean threw his bomb at the second carriage, occupied by officials of the imperial household, while Hirohito sat in the third carriage.

Three Leaders Assassinated.

Acts of terrorism had taken the lives of four of the most prominent Japanese leaders, prior to Inukai's death, in the last twelve years. Premier Takahashi Hara was assassinated by a demented youth on Nov. 4, 1921. On Nov. 14, 1930, Premier Yuko Hamaguchi was shot by a student. He died from the effects of his wounds in August, 1931. Baron Takuma Dan, managing director of the vast Mitsui banking and industrial interests, was slain March 5 of this year, less than a month after the assassination of former Finance Minister Junnosuke Inoue, leader of the Minseito party.

The death of Inukai bears a marked similarity to the assassination of Premier Hara, bitter enemy of militaristic politicians. Hara was head of the Seiyukai party, as was Inukai. Like Inukai, he was a great political organizer.

Hara's death split the party until in 1924 it was almost defunct. The Minseito group was formed and gained the strongest members of the Seiyukai and Kensei-kai parties. In 1929, after succeeding Tanaka as leader of the Seiyukai, Inukai won back many of the old Seiyukai members and again welded the party into a strong organization, which was ready to take the reins of the government when Inukai was directed to organize a cabinet.

Although the Inukai government was sustained in diet votes, the administration was in constant danger of overthrow. The most recent political enemy came in the shape of the fast growing Fascist party.

Last March more strife broke out within the Seiyukai party when Home Minister Nakahashi resigned. He was replaced by the minister of justice, Kisaburo Suzuki. The belief soon spread in Japan that unless a strong government could restore the prestige of the parliamentary system Japan would be on the verge of a military Fascist regime.

The last national elections, held on Feb. 20, were so obviously a machine victory, according to observers, that no one respected the Seiyukai's huge majority. A series of political murders revealed the extent to which the right wing groups, excited by the fighting in China, were ready to go in their hatred of parliamentary government.

Was a Journalist.

Inukai was born in April, 1855, of prominent parents in the town of Okayama in the far southwestern part of the main Japanese island of Hondo. He spent his youth at Keio university in Tokio, and married the daughter of an outstanding resident of the capital. He became editor of the Hochi Shimbun, large Tokio newspaper, when the late Emperor Meiji was preparing to give the Japanese representative government.

He took an active interest in the first political campaigns that culminated in the first representative ministry of 1890. Before that, he had started an economic magazine advocating trade protection, a principle for which he always stood. He became minister of education in 1898 and once held the ministry of communications. Inukai represented his native Okayama-ken prefecture in the diet from 1890 until the end.

The premier is survived by his wife, Mrs. Chiyoko Inukai, and a son, Takeru Inukai, who served as his secretary. Two grandchildren, a boy and a girl, are children of Takeru and his wife, Nakako.

NOTE OF SYMPATHY TO JAPAN SENT BY ORDERS OF HOOVER

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—Highest officials of the government today extended their own sympathy and that of the American people to the people across the Pacific upon learning of the assassination of Premier Inukai of Japan.

"I am deeply grieved at the death of Premier Inukai," Secretary Stimson said tonight upon his arrival home from New York and the Geneva arms conference. "My sincere sympathy is with his family."

President Hoover, who was informed of the tragedy after returning from a walk along Pennsylvania avenue with Mrs. Hoover, also voiced his sorrow. He immediately communicated with Acting Secretary Castle of the state department, who sent the following message to Edwin L. Neville, American charge d'affaires at Tokio:

"Please express to the foreign office on behalf of the American government and people deep sympathy with the Japanese government and people in this hour of national bereavement."

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

SEES WAR PARTY RESPONSIBLE FOR INUKAI'S DEATH

Alarmed at Recent Spread of Pacifism.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 14.—Rapid spread of pacifism in Japan, and consequent alarm of the military faction, is regarded here as one reason for the terroristic outbreak that resulted today in the assassination of Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai and the bombing of various buildings.

It is reported that the demand for peace has made tremendous progress recently. Noting this condition, the Liberal News-Chronicle suggests that if a revolution should come in Japan it is not certain that it would be a military one.

The assassination is generally accepted here as an attempt by the military fanatics to terrorize the government into a policy of military absolutism.

Ministers Brave Terrors.

High tribute is paid to the courage of Japanese politicians who are braving the terrors inspired by formidable enemies among the societies vowed to murder.

The London Times editorially suggests that in reaction against what is considered to be the weakness of politicians and the inexperience of electors in Japan there may be a return to the old system of administration by cabinets under prime ministers who are above parties. No government in Japan has control of the army and navy and, as in the present case, when the government does not command a majority in the diet, it has been at a double disadvantage in ruling the country during the recent period of crisis.

"The revival of terrorism," the Times adds, "is the outcome of an ultra-nationalistic spirit engendered by the quarrel with China and embittered by foreign criticism of the Japanese policy, and partly of the growing distrust of political leaders which produced a vague fascism, combining patriotic ardor in some quarters with anti-capitalist hatred."

Foreign Relations Not in Danger.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, May 15.—News of the assassination of Premier Inukai of Japan came as a shock to the few league of nations officials and delegates who are remaining here through the holidays. The general tendency here, however, is to doubt that the assassination will affect seriously the international situation.

This view is shared by a league official who was in Tokio recently and who points out that assassinations were rather frequent in Japan even before the Manchurian affair.

The Japanese here, like resident league experts, think that the assassination will have a considerable effect on the domestic situation, and they believe it will be difficult for the Seiyukai party to find a successor to Premier Inukai. Some even feel there is a possibility of the Minseito returning to power.

BLAST SEAWAY CHANNEL TODAY AT STARVED ROCK

A ton of dynamite is to be set off in a single charge today at noon in the Starved Rock pool of the Illinois waterway, four miles west of Marseilles. This explosive, it is expected, will deepen the channel three and a half feet over an area of 40,000 square feet.

Smaller blasts were set off yesterday just south of Marseilles, where a by-pass is being cut around the Marseilles dam.

In making the big blast today the contractors, the Clark Dredging company, will string the sticks of dynamite on electric wires, sink them in the channel, and touch off the whole ton of explosive with one switch.

shortly after he reached the hospital.

Maj. Brown notified his parents at their home. Both the elder Browns have flown as passengers. The entire family was described by friends as "air minded."

Besides the parents and Maj. Brown, the survivors are two sisters, Mrs. David Ghrist of Hollywood, Cal., and Mrs. Elliott Porter of Boston. Mr. Brown is a patent lawyer with offices at 53 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago.

W. A. CLARK III. KILLED

Prescott, Ariz., May 15.—W. A. Clark III., 36, grandson of the late Senator Clark, Montana's copper king, and Jack Lynch, 43, veteran air pilot, were killed today when their plane crashed in the foothills, 4 miles northeast of Cottonwood in Verde valley, Arizona. Lynch was said to have been an instructor and associate of Col. Charles Lindbergh in his barnstorming days before he flew the Atlantic. Clark was a heavy stockholder in the United Verde Copper company.

The plane fell 2,000 feet after it went into a tail spin. Lynch was giving Clark a lesson in blind flying when the accident occurred. Witnesses were unable to say who was piloting the ship.

Son of Copper Magnate.

Clark was the son of W. A. Clark Jr., western copper magnate. Both he and Lynch were married. Each leaves a widow and two children. Both lived in Los Angeles.

Lynch gave Col. Lindbergh some of his first flying instruction, after Lindbergh went to Kelley field, San Antonio, Tex., about ten years ago. Lynch also had a "flying circus" with which he barnstormed the west and Lindbergh did some of the wing stunts.

Army Flyer Dies in Crash.

Davenport, Ia., May 15.—[Special.]—Lieut. Richard Crabbs, 25 years old, a regular army flyer stationed at Selfridge field, Mount Clemens, Mich., was killed here today, one mile west of Cram field, when his army pursuit plane went into a tailspin from a height of 1,000 feet. The ship, mounted with a machine gun, was a Curtis Hawk biplane, with a 650 horse power Curtis motor, and a speed of 200 miles an hour.

Lieut. Crabbs had flown here from Mount Clemens to visit his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Crabbs. On leaving, he invited them to watch him "stunt." He looped the loop several times, and was doing his tenth consecutive barrel roll when he went into the tail spin. Until the plane crashed Mr. and Mrs. Crabbs believed the descent was a stunt.

The army pilot was a son of Clarence Crabbs, consulting engineer for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, New York, and a nephew of the late Col. J. T. Crabbs, overseas ordnance officer. His family is now at Orlando, Fla. Lieut. Crabbs was a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Oklahoma Athlete Killed.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—(AP)—A balky motor and a steep climb threw a light monoplane into a nose dive near here today and Richard Spencer, 28, of Alhambra, Cal., former University of Oklahoma athlete, was killed. Roy Behrens, a private pilot who was at the controls, and his brother, Ray, 25, were injured.

DIVORCED WIFE OF ENVOY MELLON REACHES BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOUTHAMPTON, England, May 5.—Mrs. Andrew Mellon, divorced wife of the American ambassador, arrived off the English coast at noon today. The liner Milwaukee was fogbound for ten hours and efforts to land passengers by tender were abandoned late tonight. Mrs. Mellon's arrival in England has revived rumors of a reconciliation with Mr. Mellon. Nothing could be learned tonight of her plans for the future.

30 KILLED, 400 HURT AS HINDUS FIGHT MOSLEMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 15.—Thirty persons have been killed and 400 injured in an orgy of fierce rioting in Bombay between Hindus and Moslems in the last two days, according to dispatches received here tonight.

With the city verging on panic, the Royal Irish fusiliers and all available police have been mobilized. Murder, arson and looting have marked the communal strife.

Police Fire on Mobs.

BOMBAY, May 15.—(AP)—Troop reinforcements were moved today into disturbed areas of Bombay, where a casualty list of 24 dead and 400 injured has been piled up during two days of rioting by Hindus and Moslems. Fifty of the injured were in serious condition.

In six different parts of Bombay today the police fired into mobs.

Late tonight there were no signs that the disorders would abate. The rioters had started stoning temples and mosques and several Hindu buildings, including a four story tenement, were set afire.

Police Ban Swords.

Police Commissioner Sir Patrick Kelly issued an order prohibiting any one except properly authorized persons from carrying swords, knives, lathis [staves] or stones. The order will stand for a month.

The riots had their origin in an attack by Moslems on two Hindu boys. The first troops called out were a detachment of Royal Irish fusiliers, who were rushed to the scene of today's bloodiest clash in motor trucks.

Moslems stoned tram cars carrying Hindu passengers and some cloth shops were looted. Three Mohammedan children were reported killed.

Tries to Pacify Mobs.

Maulana Shaukat Ali, one of the Moslem delegates to the round table conference in London, toured the affected districts, doing his utmost to pacify the mobs.

Long standing antipathies of the Moslems and Hindus constituted one of the principal factors in the failure of the round table conference, as the two factions could not agree on the representation to be accorded minorities in the proposed Indian government.

Police Detail Assigned to Catch Purse Snatchers

Capt. Willard Malone of the Austin police yesterday assigned a detail of four detectives to stop the operation of three youthful purse snatchers who have robbed 35 women within the last few weeks on the west side.

ATTENDS "SWELL PARTY" AND GETS AN EXTRA WIFE

William Malo, 32 years old, 2827 Abbott court, arrested yesterday on a charge of bigamy, asserted in his cell at the detective bureau that he got his extra wife as a result of a wild party on May 1, the details of which were hazy in his mind.

"I don't know what happened," he said. "All I know is that it was a swell party, and that somebody dared me to get married. I don't remember it, but they told me afterward that I took the dare."

The girl whom he married, it is charged, was Agatha Taddy, 2716 Hampden court, an acquaintance of a few days. He was arrested on a warrant obtained by his first wife, Mrs. Evelyn Malo, 2827 Abbott court, whom he married in 1928.

Records in the bureau of identification showed that Malo served a 14 months sentence in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas. He gave his occupation as a chauffeur, but his wife, a cook, said she had supported him for more than a year.

HELD ON BOGUS CHECK CHARGE.

Summerdale police yesterday held Koso Kawai, 62 years old, a Japanese, on a charge of having tried to pass a bogus check for $7 at the Sharpe pharmacy 5501 North Clark street, Saturday night.

HOOVER TO SOUND OTHER NATIONS ON SILVER PARLEY

Consents to Ask Attitude on World Conference.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—President Hoover, it was learned tonight, has consented to sound the European powers on their attitude toward an international monetary conference chiefly for the purpose of restoring the value of silver as a medium of exchange, as proposed by the committee on coinage in a report to the house yesterday.

The understanding is that pending this inquiry by the state department action on the resolution will not be pressed.

Adjustment of Exchange.

Another disclosure is that Representative Andrew L. Somers [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the committee, altered the resolution from its original form in order to make it less objectionable to the President after a talk Mr. Somers and Representative Randolph Perkins [Rep., N. J.], ranking minority member of the committee, had with Mr. Hoover. In order to prevent any possible impression that the resolution aimed at bimetallism or abandonment of the gold standard, it was amplified to include for discussion by the conference the following:

"The maintenance or restoration of the gold monetary standard within such countries as are desirous and capable of employing it, and the adjustment of monetary exchanges among such countries and other countries."

Avoid Bimetallism.

Representative Somers emphasized that the committee had suggested nothing which even smacked of bimetallism.

"Not one member of my committee," he said, "comes from a silver producing state, but we all want to protect the gold standard for this country by raising the price level so as to restore capacity to pay of all debtors. Otherwise repudiation both at home and abroad stares us in the face.

"Practically all bonded indebtedness in America being 'payable in gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness,' it is absolutely imperative that we should make every effort to protect the gold standard.

"When silver was largely discarded as auxiliary money shortly after the war the European nations did not realize that they were automatically reducing the world volume of money.

"One after the other nations have been obliged to repudiate their obligations either through moratoria or by leaving the gold standard.

"Today America vies in world markets in open competition with nations whose costs of production are based on cheap exchange, and therefore we in the United States are obliged to continually lower prices to meet this competition.

"Obviously we must in time lose our entire foreign trade under these circumstances. As long as we produce a surplus of wheat, cotton, copper, oil, tobacco, automobiles, etc., we must sell abroad."

Three Disagree on Plea.

Representatives Perkins, Lloyd Thurston [Rep., Ia.], Thomas R. Amlie [Rep., Wis.], Victor Christgau [Rep., Minn.], and George J. Schneider [Rep., Wis.] filed a minority report concurring in the request for an international conference, but disagreeing with some of the statements of facts made in the partial report and some of the deductions reached by the majority.

THIRTY DEAD, 150 HOMES COLLAPSE IN ASIATIC QUAKE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, May 15.—Severe earthquake shocks hit the Menado district of the island of Celebes in the Dutch East Indies today, according to dispatches from Batavia, Java. Thirty persons were killed, hundreds were injured, and a great part of the city of Menado was destroyed. Damage was estimated to be at least $1,000,000.

At least 150 houses collapsed in the Minahassa, Bolang, and Mongondon districts on the island.

SANTA CLARA, Cuba, May 15.—(AP)—A windstorm following upon yesterday's hailstorm destroyed 100 peasant huts and ruined crops in the San Diego del Valle section. Several persons were injured.

POLICE HUNT MISSING GIRL.

The police have been asked to search for Miss Anna Oko, 18 years old, 4718 South Keeler avenue. According to Anna's mother the girl left home Thursday to go to the races at Aurora and has not communicated with relatives since.

DEPUTY TO BRING SILVER ISSUE TO FORE IN FRANCE

Plans Bill Asking Study of Revaluation.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 15.—Belief that development of the economic crisis will awaken in France the same sentiment which is now manifest in America for the revaluation of silver was expressed today by Raymond Patenotre, an influential deputy who is the leading champion of the white metal in France.

Patenotre indicated he intends to introduce in the French chamber bills calling for a serious study of the whole silver problem, as has already been done in Washington, as soon as public opinion is sufficiently prepared. He would like to head a "silver bloc" in the chamber but admitted that general interest in the question is near absolute zero.

Interested in Money Meet.

This attitude corresponded with that elicited by inquiries in official circles and among financial experts. Considerable interest was expressed in a suggestion for calling an international monetary conference but the question as to the increasing use of silver coins was dismissed with a shrug.

At first glance France, it would seem, is likely to take a keen interest in the proposed silver conference as she has decided to return to the use of silver for subsidiary coinage, completely giving up those fragile five and ten franc notes which, the tourists complain, fall to pieces in their pockets.

At present the national mint is stamping about a ton and a half of silver into $60,000 worth of five and ten franc coins every day. By the end of the year $120,000,000 worth of these coins is expected to be in circulation.

Bank Officials Not Excited.

But although the appreciation in the basic metal of these coins would entail a slight profit for the government, Patenotre himself admitted that the officials of the Bank of France and the treasury are no more inclined to silver than in the days when paper was used exclusively for intermediate currency.

The reason why the silver movement cannot make much progress here, it was explained, is that France has too much gold. The ownership of large stocks of the yellow metal in a world where it is scarce naturally tends to cause the French to look coolly on any movement which would lessen in the slightest the exclusive prerogatives of gold.

Where Patenotre has seen the possibility of a change is in the likelihood that France will lose some of her gold if the crisis keeps on.

"It is generally overlooked that nearly half the huge stocks of gold held by the Bank of France are foreign deposits," Patenotre declared. "These deposits are more or less transitory and part of the incessant flux and reflux of capital across the world.

Silver's Importance Not Seen.

"My compatriots will not see the importance of the silver question until the day when they understand that the misfortunes of other nations, by depriving France of tourists and markets for exports, will entail their own ruin. When they see gold flowing out of the vaults of the Bank of France to take refuge elsewhere they will abandon this fetishism."

Recounting how on his trip over to Washington last winter with Pierre Laval, then French premier, he had encountered hostility to the opening of the silver question not only from Laval but from Hoover's friends, Patenotre declared that the most somber prophecies come true and that Washington is now beginning to see the light.

"Unfortunately," he said, "one cannot say there is any movement of importance in France for the rehabilitation of silver—at least not for the present. The silver stocks are held by the mint and the new silver coins are not sufficient in volume to exert a great influence on governmental or public opinion."

DIES ON WAY TO CHURCH.

John Raimondi, 45 years old, collapsed on the threshold of his home at 2119 Kendall street yesterday as he was leaving with his wife to attend church, and died within a few minutes of heart disease.

THREE SEIZED AS SAFE CRACKERS, FOURTH SOUGHT

Three alleged safecrackers were arrested early yesterday by the Warren avenue police after one of them was seized at Madison street and California avenue acting as lookout. A fourth man is being sought.

Those in custody are Harry Turner, 31 years old, 1934 Warren boulevard, and Louis Courtney, 49 years old, 2310 Adams street. Turner, when seized at the corner by Policemen Thomas Stapleton and Milfred Nigran, was carrying a revolver. He named Sidner and Courtney, who were arrested in their homes.

They are alleged to have broken into the Garfield theater, 2847 Madison street, and knocked the combination from the safe. They were frightened away before they could use a bottle of nitroglycerin which was found nearby. Sidner and Courtney denied being implicated although named by Turner.

U. OF C. RECORDS WORLD'S WISDOM IN FILM SERIES

Even Voices Will Live After Greatest Scientists.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

The greatest dramas of life, obscured now in text books and the minds of educators, will be staged on the talking motion picture screen under a new educational plan announced yesterday by Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

ROBT. M. HUTCHINS

Consider the possibilities of:

The excavation of a Pharaoh's tomb going on before your eyes, with the voice of Breasted leading you through the priceless relics of early man.

The life span of a plant pictured in a few minutes, with a distinguished botanist describing its growth.

Planets Parade on Screen.

The moon and Mars and the other planets and the stars paraded on the screen, with Prof. Frost guiding you through the heavens.

The velocity of light measured on the screen. The death of Michelson has cheated the world out of hearing him describe his experiment, but this very loss bears testimony to the value of the new plan. Breasteds and Frosts and Michelsons will live on when talking pictures of their work are made.

These possibilities and many others will become realities shortly, it was disclosed by President Hutchins. The pictures go into production immediately, and by fall it is hoped that a series of 20 films carrying lessons in the physical sciences will be ready.

Available to World.

They will be incorporated into the new educational plan at the University of Chicago, being presented for the first time to the present freshman class. But more than that, they will be available at nominal cost to any educational institution in the world.

Costly and tedious experiments, now conducted in classrooms with limited attendances, may be shown in the smallest institutions as well as the largest.

President Hutchins made it plain that the university is not entering the theatrical business.

"Neither are we trying to jazz up education," he said. "We have conceived the value of this sort of teaching and we plan to experiment with the talking motion picture. It will not be a substitute for other work; rather it will be an important addition to the educational scheme."

Phone Engineers Aid.

The work of producing the pictures is going forward through the cooperation of the university and the American Telephone and Telegraph company, through various of its subsidiaries. Erpi Picture Consultants, Inc., a research group specializing in the production of educational pictures, has conducted a survey of the extent to which pictures may be adapted to the university courses. The Bell Telephone laboratories and the Electrical Research Products, Inc., will contribute the technical skill.

The first efforts will be directed toward the 20 pictures in the physical sciences, and as soon as possible other pictures will be made for the courses in the biological and social sciences, and the course known at the university as the "Humanities."

Texts Go With Films.

In the social sciences, for example, a picture may unfold to the students a pictorial view of housing conditions in Moscow, Shanghai, Vienna, or Berlin, comparing them with housing problems in large cities of the United States.

Although the first object of the university is to obtain the pictures for use in their own regular courses, President Hutchins expressed the hope that many other institutions also will use them in their courses. The pictures will be distributed with supplemental written material for classroom use.

"We don't intend in any sense to supplant the faculty, or to do away with personal teaching," Mr. Hutchins said. "Our intention is to provide professors with the best available material for their work, and we anticipate they will be glad to receive it."

Show Film in 10 Minutes.

"Each film will require perhaps 10 minutes to show, so that only a part of a class period will be taken up in this manner, leaving time for lectures and discussion."

The cost of the films to an outside institution has not been definitely fixed, but Frederick L. Devereaux, vice president of Erpi Picture consultants, who attended an interview accorded by President Hutchins to newspapermen, said he expected that the first 20 films, with full equipment necessary for their projection, will be obtainable at $1,450. Half of this sum will be the cost of the equipment, and later films will be correspondingly less expensive.

Perhaps the major use of talking motion pictures in the university plan will be in the presentation of laboratory experiments. Often, it was explained, these experiments are costly and frequently it is necessary to demonstrate them to each student individually.

Dr. Harvey B. Lemon, professor of physics, who with Dr. Hermann I. Schlesinger, professor of chemistry, formulated the courses in the physical sciences, said that the experiments could be produced in motion pictures with better clarity than in the class room, and that the students would have the great benefit of the voices of leading scientific authorities during the experiments.

"Such an experiment in the physical sciences course as 'the dance of the molecules'—the thermal agitation of molecular action—must now be demonstrated to each student, who observes through an ultra-microscope the action of colloidal particles," Dr. Lemon said.

"Attendance of a laboratory technician is required to explain the phenomenon as the student makes his observations. Sound films, however, will eliminate this tedious method in such types of experiments, enabling a more effective as well as an economical method of demonstration.

Eliminate Test Failures.

"Failure of delicate experiments, such as those, for example, which depend upon exact temperature and humidity conditions, will be eliminated.

"The factor of motion which the pictures provide will be particularly helpful in clarifying other forms of experiments, such as those dealing with electrical phenomena. It will be possible, for example, to illustrate the action of a transformer by tracing the flow of electrons in association with the magnetic field, with considerably increased effectiveness over such devices as charts.

Sample talking motion pictures produced by the Erpi corporation which have been in general use in some institutions, were displayed at the university yesterday.

Two of these, lessons in botany, disclosed the full life of plants from seed to seed, while a lecturer discussed each phase of the plant's growth.

Mrs. Edwin Romberg, president of the nursery, said that merchants throughout the city donated the merchandise which is being sold at the pageant.

NEXT CRUISE OF DIRIGIBLE AKRON STILL IN DOUBT

Sunnyvale, Cal., May 15.—(AP)—The Akron, big navy dirigible, swung at her mooring mast here today with the next stages of her itinerary in doubt.

Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, the skipper, took a plane to San Pedro today and the time of his return was not announced.

The ponderous ship had been expected to join the fleet at sea tonight or tomorrow for maneuvers, but no indication of the dirigible's next move was given. Throngs visited the ship, congesting highways for miles around the base.

CHILE, ARGENTINA SQUABBLE WHILE TRADE CHOKES

Closing of Andean Rail Link Clogs Business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, May 15.—The closing of the trans-Andean railroad connecting Chile and Argentina has led to the development of tragi-comic aspects in the relations of the two countries. Chile, taking the postal agreement with Argentina literally, has delivered international mail bags to the nearest postoffice on the Argentine side of the Andes.

This station happens to be Las Cuevas, on the section closed down by the railroad company. Argentina refused to accept delivery of the bags at Las Cuevas, pointing out that there is no rail communication with that station and contending that international regulations demand the delivery of correspondence at a postoffice with transport connections.

Mail Bags Pile Up.

As both sides refused to give way, international mail bags are piling up by the hundreds at the Las Cuevas postoffice, while foreign protests against the nonreceipt and dispatch of correspondence are mounting equally high. Trade and public interests suffer while two modern states act like spoiled children, it is pointed out.

The railroad company was forced to stop operations because it lost money as a result of the tariff war between the two countries. Chile levied a prohibitive tax on cattle imported from Argentina. Argentina enforced heavy duties on produce from Chile.

Piercing of the Andes by rail was regarded as one of the great engineering wonders of the world. Now the system is lying idle. It can be seen that the closure of the line verges on a tragedy for legitimate trade interests of the two nations.

Cattle Duty Big Difficulty.

The real difficulty hinges on the Chilean cattle duty. Increased over and over again, it virtually means the prohibition of cattle imports from Argentina. And the transportation of cattle is vital to the continued prosperity of the railroad.

The prohibitive duties have led to the collapse of trade, yet Chile is adequately provided with meat far in excess of that obtainable from her own herds. The truth, of course, is that meat is being provided through channels escaping official supervision. Cattle running through the Andean passes has become a well organized and profitable business. Only shipments via the railway are supervised and taxed—to the signal benefit of the contraband trade and the ruin of the railroad.

A series of conferences in Buenos Aires so far have failed to produce an agreement. Chileans informally admit that they are in the wrong, but are afraid of "losing face."

Two Youths Stabbed as They Break Into Party

Two youths were stabbed, one of them seriously, early yesterday morning when they invaded a party in the home of John Mis, 1326 Polk street. POLES EXECUTE 3 CONVICTED OF SOVIET SPYING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, May 15.—Three men were executed today following convictions for soviet espionage. The government is adopting drastic measures in a determined effort to exterminate increasing soviet spying activities.

Two civilian employes of the general staff, John Bakowski, an engineer, and Wladyslaw Borakowski, a former army officer, were convicted by a special military court after a secret trial lasting 48 hours. Bakowski faced a firing squad and Borakowski was sent to the gallows this morning. A confederate, Tiodozja Majewska, a cabaret dancer, was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Simultaneously, at the city of Lublin, a Polish soldier named Wilkosz was executed by a firing squad.

ECONOMIC DRIVE TO END DRY LAW STIRS CONGRESS

Demands from "Back Home" Mount Rapidly.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—The economic pressure for a radical change in the prohibition law is becoming so intense that developments at no distant date spelling the doom of Volsteadism would occasion no surprise in Washington.

It is being borne in upon every senator and congressman in every incoming mail that his constitutents in geometrically increasing numbers have come to look upon the noble experiment as an ignoble failure. The cloakrooms of the senate and house are abuzz these days with exchanges of confidences on the character of the letters being received from the folks back home on the subject of prohibition.

The economic aspect of the question is an outstanding feature of the view now being presented to the national legislators by their constituents. What appears to strike the average citizen is that the guarantee that prohibition would produce and preserve prosperity has turned out to be worth about as much as a repudiated foreign investment.

Would Solve Budget Balancing.

Furthermore, there appears to be a spreading feeling that to restore prosperity it is important to get rid of costly experiments and restore conditions under which the government not only would be relieved of the expense of upwards of 60 millions of dollars for prohibition enforcement but would receive upwards of 1 billion dollars in revenue from liquor taxes, approximately the amount needed to balance the federal budget.

While the economic consideration appears at this time to be uppermost in the changed attitude toward prohibition there is evidence that the moral consideration is also operating powerfully on the public mind. The promise that prohibition would reduce crime and empty the jails has been realized to about the same degree as the prediction that it would empty the almshouses.

As a result of the widespread reaction against prohibition it is virtually the universal opinion of political leaders here that the eighteenth amendment is doomed and that it is only a question of the time it will take to bring Volsteadism to an end.

Expect Action Next Congress.

That a radical revision, if not repeal, of the Eighteenth amendment will be submitted to the states not later than the next congress, which will be elected next November, is now doubted only by some of the professional drys. A wet landslide is generally looked for in November, assuring a requisite two-thirds of each house for submission of a wet amendment. Some political leaders think that so many members of the present dry congress will be compelled to go wet in order to keep their jobs that the two-thirds vote will be mustered at the last session of this congress next winter.

That both the Republican and Democratic platforms adopted at the Chicago conventions will contain planks on the prohibition issue that will be more or less wet is also a foregone conclusion.

Hoover's Action Watched.

There is no end of speculation in the capital now on what President Hoover may or may not do with regard to prohibition before the Republican convention assembles in Chicago June 14. Seldom has a President been subjected to as much pressure—moral, economic, and political—to modify a position once taken. Whether he will yield and elect to swim with the tide instead of continuing to struggle against it is a topic of increasing interest to politicians in this changing scene.

Despite all the influences to the contrary, the President, so far as the record goes, is as dry as the day he rejected the proposal of modification of the eighteenth amendment made by his fact finding body, the Wickersham commission. Every member of his cabinet except Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur is now either an outspoken wet or an advocate of resubmission of the eighteenth amendment in some manner.

With the exception of Chairman Simeon Fess all the powers in the Republican national committee are wet. Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, who is slated for the chairmanship of the resolutions committee of the Republican national convention, has gone wet.

Won't Balk Resubmission Plank.

But Mr. Hoover has not been entirely unyielding. He has made it known that he will interpose no veto to a Republican platform plank slanting at resubmission. He made this known when the Republican organizations in New Jersey and some other wet eastern states are hesitating as to an indorsement of Mr. Hoover for renomination and explaining that such action would be inconsistent with their declarations for a change in the prohibition law.

A good many politicians are now confiding that they would not exactly be bowled over if the President were to yield still further in the direction of the wet position as a result of political considerations. They have been greatly impressed by his change of attitude on the question of unemployment relief following hard upon developments threatening to place him at a disadvantage in his campaign for reëlection unless he should yield.

KING'S PHYSICIAN HERE

On Way to Convention

Sir John Fraser of Edinburgh, Scotland, one of the physicians of King George V. of England, arrived in Chicago yesterday from Rochester, Minn., on the North Western railroad. He was accompanied by Lady Fraser and several physicians from the Mayo clinic, where Sir John had visited for several days. The party is on its way to the convention of the America College of Surgeons at New Haven, Conn.

COUNTY OFFICIALS SEEK AID FROM BANKERS TODAY

County Treasurer McDonough, Assistant County Controller M. J. O'Connor and President Emmett Whealan of the county board will meet with representatives of several loop banks today to begin a series of conferences the aim of which is to float a loan of at least $5,000,000 on 1932 tax warrants.

A detailed financial statement of the current obligations and the funds necessary to retire outstanding bonds and interest which fall due between this time and June 1 has been prepared in the controller's office for presentation to the bankers. The county auditor, Lee Howard, has prepared in conjunction with Assessor J. L. Jacobs an estimate of the county's anticipated revenues for 1932. Both these statements will be made public when the negotiations have been completed.

The loan has been sought, county officials say, as a last reseort in an effort to meet the pay rolls and the pensions to destitute mothers and children and to blind, now unpaid. Collections of 1930 taxes with the penalty date, June 1, 14 days away, amount only to $110,000,000. This is approximately 39 per cent of the total levy of $290,000,000.

U. S. MAY CLOSE ITS CASE AGAINST PASCHEN TODAY

Entering its third week, the trial of former Building Commissioner Christian P. Paschen for income tax evasion will continue this morning before Federal Judge Barnes. The government charges Paschen with evading payment of about $114,000 taxes in 1927 and 1928. The first year he filed a return stating he owed no tax. The second year he paid only $818.

The government will probably close its case today or tomorrow, and Defense Attorney Cassius Poust is expected to present at least 100 witnesses to refute the testimony of government witnesses. The existence of a $469,000 bank account has been made known and the government alleges that the account, kept in the Foreman National bank under the name of "A. B. Anderson" was in reality Paschen's. The defense will probably try to show that Paschen made much money but had tremendous expenditures and did not cheat the government.

WOMEN'S PARADE TODAY LAUNCHES 'REPEAL WEEK'

Dry Law Foes Ready for Big Drive.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Chicago members of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform this morning will swing into observance of National Repeal week. They have mapped out a crowded schedule and have enrolled volunteers by the hundreds to promote the aim of the week—repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

MRS. STANLEY FIELD.

At 10 a. m. a motorcade of 100 cars will leave Broadway and Wilson avenue, to sweep through many districts of the city, bearing this feminine corps of speakers and workers. Stops will be made at designated spots for brief addresses and to have passersby sign the membership cards of the organization. This feature will promote especially the attempt of the Illinois division to raise its present membership to 65,000 to 100,000.

Invade Railroad Stations.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Stanley Field, scores of other women will invade the railroad and elevated stations to get signatures. Hotel lobbies will be visited under the direction of Mrs. Mark Trude and Mrs. George J. Nichols Jr. Radio addresses will be handled by Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler. Mrs. Richard Frank will be in charge of the work in shops, and Mrs. Clifford Rodman and Mrs. Valentine C. Bartlett, in the theaters and movies. Mrs. George Heed is in charge of publicity. Mrs. Ernest R. Graham arranged the motorcade.

Mrs. George Brennan is directing the entire Repeal week campaign for the Illinois division as general chairman from the headquarters at 700 North Michigan avenue. Fifty billboards have been donated for the observance, and carry slogans endorsing the aim of the week.

Mrs. Sabin Speaks.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, president of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, formally opened Repeal week in a radio address last night.

"When I speak of changing attitudes toward prohibition," she said, "I think about the word 'wet,' and how different its meaning is today from what was intended when first the term was hurled at the opponents of the eighteenth amendment. It was intended to be an insult, a sneer, or at best, a flippancy.

"Some of the women shrank from the characterization. We tried to think of ways to persuade public and press to give us a fairer, more accurate description. We failed. 'Wet' was brief, 'wet' was easy, 'wet' would fit neatly into headlines. So we are fated to be 'wets' to the end of the story—a story, by the way, whose end is in sight today.

"A term of contempt has been changed into one of honor. Today we wear our 'wet' tags proudly. Today 'wet' does not mean a person addicted to drink, any more than 'dry' means a person who has forsworn alcoholic beverages."

MILLION PERSONS MOTOR ON ROADS OF CHICAGOLAND

Many Make Trips Into Michigan, Indiana.

TRIBUNE MAPS.

The new 40 foot highways, grade separations, viaducts, railroad crossings—these and many other features make the Chicago Tribune new 1932 Chicagoland Map the most accurate and valuable map of the metropolitan area. The map is printed in five colors on strong paper, and is accordion folded to facilitate handling. It is now on sale at Chicago Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn, Tribune Tower lobby, and 1101 East 63d street. Price, 25 cents; 30 cents by mail.

BY HAL FOUST.

Rolling over the pavements of the metropolitan area yesterday were approximately 850,000 motor cars with a million passengers.

Automobiles were parked in the forest preserves while families picnicked or lounged in the 33,000 acres of public woods. Cars were clustered around the clubhouses at 301 golf courses in Chicagoland, and along the 305 lakes. Motor vehicles also helped to fill the 7,519 acres of parks in Chicago and to take crowds to the beaches along the city's twenty-five miles of lake front.

Michigan received a large portion of the Sunday drivers from Chicago, attracted by tulip time in Holland and blossom time in the fruit belt farther south. The forty foot pavement from Gary around Michigan City, the new Dunes relief road, handled the crowds rapidly and without serious mishap.

Only One Person Killed.

Lieut. Walter J. Wilson of the Indiana police pointed out that only one person, a hitch hiker, has been killed on the dunes routes since the first of his fiscal year, Dec. 1, as contrasted with thirteen killed there during the same period of last year. He attributes the improvement, in a large measure, to the fact that drivers are not allowed to loiter on these business highways.

The slow drivers were encountered on the Illinois highways in the metropolitan area, unmolested by police. On the narrow roads, cars had to cut around them, a dangerous maneuver in heavy traffic. On the four lane pavements these road hogs did not interfere so much with travel, except when they hugged the center line or straddled the lane marker.

Thousands of cars returning to Chicago from Wisconsin lakes jammed the Milwaukee road. In the late afternoon, north of Half Day, where the pavement is only two lanes wide, there was a steady parade of machines moving for long distances no faster than 25 or 30 miles an hour. After reaching the four lane pavement drivers were able to step up to 50, notwithstanding the jam. Waukegan road was closed for repairs north of route 22, with a detour on the Milwaukee road.

Other Roads Overloaded.

Touhy avenue and the Willow Springs road were other two lane pavements overloaded with detour traffic. It will be well to avoid these roads on holidays during the next month or so. The narrow sections of Touhy, a county highway, are particularly dangerous, having bumpy pavement, rutted shoulders, and deep ditches, a combination effective in turning over automobiles.

Another hazard was found on Ogden avenue, on the western approach to a new railroad grade separation at La Grange. On a steep incline with a curve are bumps and loose stones that might throw a car if brakes were applied at 25 miles an hour. This is a state highway.

Bumpy Gaps in Roads.

The Illinois highway department has left a number of dusty and bumpy gaps in the pavement in this part of the state. Chicagoans who drove to Michigan yesterday noted that the Indiana highway department has built a level and dustless bituminous macadam on the detours of the Dunes relief road.

This relief road earlier this year was one of the prettiest drives on any main highway in Chicagoland, gently swinging through the wooded dunes of northern Indiana on a broad and clean right of way. However, in the last few weeks, billboards have begun to blot the landscape and the new highway is threatened with the blight of posters and hotdog stands that have made a slum of the old Dunes highway.

The American Legion is petitioning the Indiana highway department to dedicate the road to the Hoosiers who died in their nation's wars.

FALLS ASLEEP SMOKING; BURNED.

Felix Nora, 42 years old, 1343 Dickson street, was burned seriously yesterday when he fell asleep while holding a lighted cigaret which set fire to his clothing.

Aviation Notes

Maj. James H. Doolittle, who established a new transcontinental speed record last fall by winning the Bendix trophy race, has entered the second Bendix trophy race, to be held during the national air races at Cleveland this fall. Maj. Doolittle is the second entry, Russel Boardman having entered ten days ago. Maj. Doolittle will fly his Laird 400 racer, powered by a Wasp Jr. motor.

Paul W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., will be awarded the Spirit of St. Louis medal of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at a meeting to be held in Buffalo, N. Y., on June 7. His company is the builder of the navy airships Akron and Macon.

Capt. Ray A. Dunn, army air corps, is compiling statistics on mortality among all classes of airplane pilots and passengers for an insurance rate study. The statistics will be published next month under the title, "Aviation and Life Insurance." They cover the period 1919 to 1931 inclusive.

DEPRESSION LAID TO EXTRAVAGANT U. S. SPENDING

Governmental extravagance is directly responsible for much of the current economic distress, in the opinion of the Building Construction Employers' association of Chicago. The contractors who compose the membership have announced a determined effort in the interest of "sane budgets."

"The association," says the organization's official bulletin for May, "is firmly behind the campaign for pruning governmental expenditures to the limit. During the last thirty days or so, security values have sunk to the lowest levels in years. This is attributed in large measure to the prevalent governmental policy in not trimming departmental expenses.

"The enormous taxes now planned through national legislation will impose added hardships on many lines of business.

"Thus far our elected representatives in Washington apparently have not seen the light, in so far as our financial security is endangered by extravagance.

30 Schools Compete

More than 30 Catholic schools of the middle west were represented yesterday at an art exhibit sponsored by the Perboyre Art league at the Stevens hotel. Posters and pictures, designed and executed by the pupils of the schools, were shown. Prizes were awarded.

REICHERS TELLS STORY OF FLIGHT OVER ATLANTIC

BY LOU REICHERS.

[Special dispatch to the Associated Press by arrangement with Famous Features Syndicate, Inc.]

S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AT SEA, May 15.—(AP)—The flight from Newark to Newfoundland on the contemplated two stop hop to Paris was uneventful except for some poor visibility and rain.

LOU REICHERS.

I received a weather report at Harbor Grace from Harry Connor, chief officer of the Baltimore mail line ship the City of Hamburg, who laid out my course and furnished me with navigation data.

He indicated the weather was O. K. So I refueled and took off, flying the course Harry radioed me from aboard his ship in mid-ocean. The first hour out was clear and cold, and I sighted several icebergs, then low hanging clouds obscured the sea and for at least four hours I did not see it again. After that I got only occasional glimpses through holes.

Dives Through Hole in Cloud.

When eight hours had passed I came down through a hole to have a look underneath. The visibility was poor and I could see no indication of land, so I climbed up again over the clouds and flew another half hour.

I repeated the same performance, but still no land again at nine hours, and at nine and one-half there was still nothing but water. I knew then that I had been carried by cross winds either to the north or south of Ireland. Whenever I did spot water I could see from the whitecaps that surface winds were southwest, so I assumed my position to be north.

Turning south, I flew for half an hour. Still I could see nothing but water, so came to the conclusion then that winds out of the north, possibly northwest, had carried me too far south.

Heads Plane Due East.

I flew north then for another half hour, returning to practically the same position and decided then the best thing for me to do was to fly due east for the following reasons:

1. I figured I was too far south of Ireland to be able to make it with my remaining gas.

2. I thought possibly land would be just as close to the east as to the north and that by heading east I would be nearer the shipping lanes.

3. I was thoroughly convinced even though I found land I could never get away with a landing on account of the rocky nature of the coast line, so had already made up my mind that the best thing to do would be junop.

because of the night and poor visibility, plus my landing speed and the fact that I was tired I felt incapable of judging a forced landing.

So when sighting the lights of the President Roosevelt, and still no land and with little gas left, I decided there was only one thing to do, and that was to set the Liberty down on the water. I signalled the boat to stand by and came down in the sea about fifty yards away.

It was impossible to salvage the ship, due to the rough sea.

The General Electric

4 YEAR SERVICE PLAN

is your guarantee of low cost refrigeration

THE TRUE COST OF ANY REFRIGERATOR is the purchase price plus what you pay to keep it operating through the years. The money you save, the degree of convenience you enjoy with your modern refrigerator, depends upon its unfailing operation.

Don't Pay Too Little for the Mechanism Refrigeration is a service that must go on day after day, year after year, without care, thought or attention. In one year your refrigerator must operate more hours than the average automobile does in its entire lifetime.

Your most important consideration in selecting a refrigerator is the mechanism. It represents 70% of your investment . . . be sure it is built to give uninterrupted service.

If the mechanism of your refrigerator fails, you have no refrigeration. Failure of the operating unit means service expense and repair bills . . . plus the added inconvenience and waste of periodically being without any refrigeration. You never stop paying for a "cheap" refrigerator.

A 4-Year Service Plan on the Monitor Top Mechanism In more than a million and a quarter homes, the General Electric refrigerator has established a record for uninterrupted, attention-free performance that is unparalleled in refrigeration history.

Now a Service Plan, extending through four full years, protects every new buyer against all possible failure of the mechanism. Should any failure occur during four years the entire unit will be immediately replaced without charge or delay.

The Monitor Top Eliminates Common Sources of Trouble Complicated, troublesome mechanism requiring service, has no place in your home. That's why General Electric spent fifteen years perfecting the cleanest, most simple and efficient refrigerating mechanism known . . . the Monitor Top.

The G-E has all mechanism entirely sealed inside the steel walls of the Monitor Top. Air, dirt, dust and moisture . . . the elements destructive to any mechanism . . . cannot reach it. The G-E requires no attention . . . not even oiling.

Fans that get out of order; belts that stretch or break; stuffing boxes or shaft-seals that leak; parts that must be periodically lubricated . . are all done away with by the Monitor Top design.

The General Electric unit, with all mechanism hermetically sealed inside, is placed on top of the cabinet. That's where it belongs . . . for heat rises and the job of any unit is to remove heat from the cabinet. The Monitor Top unit . . . being outside and on top of the cabinet . . . is cooled by natural air circulation. It requires no fan, no water or complicated cooling devices. It uses a minimum of current.

It's as Easy to Buy a General Electric as to Pay for a "Cheap" Refrigerator The G-E refrigerator with the Monitor Top mechanism provides the lowest cost refrigeration you can buy. $10 delivers a full-sized model to your home. You can even buy it for as little as 20c a day. New low prices are in effect. Select the model that will meet your requirements and begin enjoying life-time convenience and savings now.

LINDBERGH BABY MURDER LAID TO 5 MEN, WOMAN

Early Arrest of One or More Expected.

a member of it over a cemetery wall in the Bronx, and Morris Rosner, New York stock promoter, who was brought in the case as an adviser to Col. Lindbergh the day after the kidnaping. It has been supplemented by other data which the police are now checking.

This information has led the investigators who are working under the personal direction of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, commanding the New Jersey state police, to entertain the belief that the group described by Rosner and the group to whom Dr. Condon surrendered the $50,000 provided by Col. Lindbergh are identical.

Rosner Describes Suspect.

In the long recital of his part in the case given by Rosner to the police and to Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck of Hunterdon county last Friday, Rosner described a member of the band who appeared to be identical with one described by Dr. Condon, it was learned today.

The probability grew tonight, however, that the group with which John H. Curtis of Norfolk dealt at sea and with which Col. Lindbergh was trying to establish contact when the news of the finding of his baby's body reached him had no relation to the group described by Dr. Condon and Rosner. The belief of some investigators was that the group at sea were imposters who had nothing to do with the kidnaping, but were trying to make money from the Lindbergh family's distress.

Col. Schwarzkopf admitted that no connection had been found between the group with whom Dr. Condon dealt and the group described by Mr. Curtis. He was cautious about the identification of any of the groups.

Rosner Tells of Contact.

In the course of the questioning of Rosner the morning after the murder was discovered, it was learned today, Rosner was asked the basis for the statement he made publicly on March 12 that he knew the baby was safe.

Rosner replied: "From a contact we made at that time we had every reason to believe that we were dealing with one of the kidnapers. We are sure of it now. He gave us identifications that were similar to the identifications used in the negotiations with Dr. Condon, which resulted in the payment of the $50,000."

Rosner also called attention to the fact that at about that same time Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey also issued a statement that word had been received from an authoritative source that the Lindbergh child was unharmed and was in good health.

Contents of Note Known.

Rosner was questioned in Hopewell regarding those who knew the contents of the ransom note which the kidnapers left in the Lindbergh nursery when they took the child. It developed that Rosner and the two underworld intermediaries whom Rosner brought into the case—Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz—all knew the contents of the note and were familiar with its cryptic signature long before Dr. Condon made his $50,000 payment.

These names and those of others who knew the contents and signature of the note were given by Rosner to Mr. Hauck, Col. Schwarzkopf and Inspector Harry Walsh of the Jersey City police, together with a complete summary of the negotiations carried on by Rosner, Spitale and Bitz.

Condon Views Rogues' Gallery.

Dr. Condon, who has asserted that he knows the name of the man to whom he delivered the $50,000 and knows so well his appearance that he "could pick him out of a thousand," spent much of this afternoon in the bureau of criminal identification at New York police headquarters, but neither he nor the police would reveal whether he had found the likeness of this man among the known criminals whose pictures are in the bureau.

After the two New York detectives had escorted Dr. Condon to his home in the Bronx, they remained as a protective guard outside the house.

Suspect Is Described.

A description of one man with whom Dr. Condon dealt came last night from Erwin E. Marshal, Mercer county prosecutor, who talked with him at the Lindbergh home on Friday.

"Condon did not tell me his name; only his surname," said Mr. Marshal. "He described the man he saw as very active and of the Scandinavian type."

Mr. Marshal confirmed substantially a report that the man whom Dr. Condon met appeared to be about 35 years old and had tight lips, sharp chin, and bulging forehead. He wore a cap and overcoat.

Lindberghs Thank Condon.

The faith of Col. Lindbergh in Dr. Condon was attested in a letter dated today at Hopewell which Col. Lindbergh wrote him, and which was made public by a representative of Col. Lindbergh. It was as follows:

"Dr. John F. Condon:

"My Dear Dr. Condon: Mrs. Lindbergh and I want to thank you for the great assistance you have been to us. We fully realize that you have devoted the major portion of your time and energy to bring about the return of our son. We wish to express to you our sincere appreciation for your courage and coöperation.

"Sincerely,

"CHARLES A. LINDBERGH."

Rosner was the first intermediary engaged by the Lindberghs on the frantic day immediately following the kidnaping. He had been a federal investigator and was assumed to have an intimate knowledge of the underworld.

Hopes They'll Be Caught.

Rosner tonight expressed an intense hope that the kidnapers would be caught and punished and this was echoed by Spitale in an interview at his apartment in Central Park West. Spitale confirmed the statement made by Rosner to the police that he had seen the ransom note, but said that he had not had it in his hands. Some one else—he would not say, showed it to him.

"I have no statement to make; I am only sorry the baby is dead," said Spitale.

He would not add to this statement when reminded that there had been intimations that some one who saw that signature might have been concerned in the notes which led Dr. Condon to pay over the $50,000.

As they went to their homes from church Hopewell residents saw their streets jammed with sightseeing automobiles. They saw several hot dog stands and numbers of peanut and ice cream vendors set up for business as close as possible to the place just off the Hopewell-Princeton road where the baby's body was discovered and they expressed the fear frequently that the Lindberghs would leave the community.

At this time the Lindberghs have no intention of moving away. They had never thought of going to France as rumored, and expect to remain at Hopewell. Already workmen have been set to work completing the drive leading from the highway to the house, and the colonel's plan to level off the meadow adjacent to the house, across which the kidnapers ran with the baby, and make a landing field of it are to be carried out, according to family friends.

Benton, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—George Survel has returned to the primitive life; back to nature in the wide open spaces, where his cares and worries are few, where he sees little of mankind as he leads the life of a self-appointed hermit.

Survel has been released from the Franklin county jail here, where he served ten days of a fifteen day sentence imposed upon him by a justice of the peace for fishing without a license. The complaint was made by Andy E. Goodwin of Benton, a state game warden, who found Survel, living on the banks of the Big Muddy.

Survel Vanishes in 1926.

Friends of Survel believed he long had been dead or had gone back to his native Austria, as he had vanished in 1926. Goodwin took his prisoner into Zeigler and announced he had found a wild man living in a cave in the river bank. The man wore only a shirt and overalls.

When given new clothing, haircut, and shave, friends were amazed—George Survel had returned. He had been living near them all these years. He was brought to Benton and, being unable to pay a $25 fine, was ordered to jail for 15 days. Before the sentence was completed, Sheriff Browning released him.

"Why shouldn't I come back?" Survel said. He was found sitting on a log weaving a net from cord given him by the sheriff. "I came back," he said, "because there was no other place to go, and I have become hardened to the outdoor life. I told the sheriff and others that I took up this life because I was disgusted with mining conditions. That was partly so, but in the main, there was another reason."

Returns to Austria for War.

"My brother and I came to America in 1902. We worked in the Coello mine near Christopher, at Weaver, Ill., and then came to Zeigler. With the outbreak of the world war we returned to our native land and took up arms. After the war we returned to the United States and my brother was killed in a mine accident in Pennsylvania. I returned to Zeigler and worked in the mines, but something went wrong with my head and stomach. I had dizzy spells and my stomach would hurt me after eating. I decided I would have to quit working at the mines, but had no relatives to look after me.

"I didn't want to go to a hospital and was afraid of being taken to the poor farm. I had friends, but didn't want to impose upon them, and that is the real reason why I got off to myself. I stayed one place four years on the Big Muddy river, but it became too public and I moved to this place. I am 42 years old and I would like to stay here until I die."

Survel's home is built on the side of a knoll 20 feet above the waters of the Big Muddy river. A deep ravine is on one side and the river on the other, leaving a plot of ground 50 feet long and 30 feet wide.

Alligator Gar in Doorway.

In the doorway hung an alligator gar, a species of fish seldom seen in the Big Muddy, which he had caught. "He'll make good food," Survel said He explained he had lived on wild fruits, nuts, herbs, and barks of trees. "I sometimes catch a muskrat or mud turtle," he said. "After I cook them I squeeze crab apple juice on the meat and that makes excellent food. In the fall I store up nuts, and at that time of the year I make a new bed."

Outdoor life has cured Survel of dizziness and his stomach ailment, he said.

RESTAURANT OFFICIAL ROBBED.

A. H. Hutcheson, vice president of a chain of chili con carne restaurants, was held up yesterday in his office at 539 South Clark street by a bandit who forced him to open a safe and surrender $150. Hutcheson told police that he recognized the robber as a former employé.

A bed to flatter any bedroom
..and the price is only $29.50

THIS lovely Danersk bed was inspired by a fine old original found last summer in a sleepy Vermont village. Its unpretentious dignity is the result of rare subtlety of proportion and design wrought in simple native maple, knotty pine, and white walnut,—woods which grow lovelier with each passing year as they acquire the amber glow and patina of age.

We call this friendly bed Dorset. The Danersk hallmark is your guarantee that it is fashioned with mortise and tenon joinery and all those niceties of construction for which the craftsmen of the Danersk colony are famous. The price—$29.50—is a minor miracle achieved without shortcuts or compromises of any kind. It is the result of adherence to a simple design, plus the use of modest but beautiful native woods.

It is one of the new Dorset group, 9 pieces of which may be had for only $221—a truly remarkable value for pieces which will, we confidently believe, some day be treasured heirlooms.

You will find our showrooms pleasant, hospitable, and very worthwhile places to visit. And you will also find interested and versatile people willing and eager to assist in working out YOUR ideas for your own rooms—and not too eager to make sales.

HOW HEALTH-MOR DEVELOPED A "MILLION DOLLAR" SALES FORCE!

Do you sell through direct-to-consumer salesmen?
Would you like to develop a million dollar a year selling organization in the Chicago territory?

WANTED—MALE HELP.
Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.
AT ONCE.
Three intelligent, neat appearing men who desire a permanent connection with national organization, must be willing to work 8 hours a day and start at our terms. This means about $40 per week to start. If you mean business apply Employment Manager, Room 618, 209 N. Wabash Ave.

* * *

LAST year Health-Mor sold more than a million dollars' worth of sanitation systems to housewives in Chicago and suburbs. According to M. J. Callahan, president of the company, this volume was far greater than that for any like device sold in metropolitan Chicago through direct-to-consumer salesmen.

"Good Salesmen The Backbone"

"Salesmen are the backbone of our business," says Mr. Callahan. "We must have the best. I leave the important job of finding them to the Tribune with the same confidence I have in the ability of Frank Callahan, general sales manager, and R. R. Owen, district sales manager, to train and direct the men Tribune want ads attract.

"All of the three hundred members of our 'million dollar sales force' were hired through Tribune Want Ads. We have used the same ad every day except Sundays for more than two years. It brings from fifteen to twenty inquiries from men of the type we want.

Helps Build Distributor Organization

"The ad also brings replies by mail from all parts of the Central States. These letters are turned over to the Health-Mor distributor nearest the applicant. In this way Tribune Want Ads have helped build a selling organization for us outside of Chicago. So far this year this division of our business, under the direction of A. E. Kramer, has had a 69% increase in sales over last year."

Concentrate In The Tribune Market!

Regardless of what you sell, Tribune Want Ads can help you build up a crack selling crew in the rich Tribune market, which spends more than five billion dollars annually at retail.

The Tribune prints more Help Wanted advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined. The best salesmen watch the Tribune for live propositions. Let us tell you more about the Tribune market and how to get the right kind of salesmen. Write for details, or ask to have a Tribune man call.

FATE OF SCHOOL BUDGET TRIMS UP TO BOARD TODAY

Trustees Will Decide on $24,900,000 Cut.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school board will meet in special session this afternoon to decide whether it will trim its financial sails to the extent of $24,900,000.

The D. F. Kelly committee has recommended that the board trim its $160,662,725 of tax levies for 1931 and 1932 to $135,700,000. That is a recommended cut of $24,962,725.

The city council and Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university, who is completing a survey of the Chicago school system, have recommended reductions of $24,927,685. The council asks that the board's 1931 tax levy of $85,263,807 be cut to $74,605,436, which the board reports as its total expenditures for last year. That is a decrease of $10,658,370. Dr. Strayer has recommended a cut of $15,603,505, of which, he has indicated, $14,269,315 can be saved this year.

Meet to Trim Budget.

Technically, the purpose of today's session is to start cutting in accordance with Dr. Strayer's recommendations. He says that the total cuts he proposes in maintenance of plant, playgrounds and capital outlay can all be saved this year. These items total $12,935,125.

Dr. Strayer says that the full decrease he suggests for instruction, administration and operation of plant cannot be realized because four and one-half months of the year have passed. These items total $2,668,380. More than half of the time remains to apply the Strayer economies, and each week's delay adds $66,700 to the unnecessary expenditures of the board, according to the Strayer report. A week has elapsed since the preliminary report was received.

Some Trustees Favor Delay.

A few of the trustees have indicated they will urge delay until the final ten volume report of Dr. Strayer is presented about June 1. Some of the department heads are expected—as their private conversations disclose—to cite reasons why the savings should be deferred. But a majority of the trustees have said they favor cutting now.

Dr. Strayer, in his preliminary report, says: "The total of $15,603,505 represents the reduction recommended by the survey commission in the 1932 budget of the Chicago board of education," subject to the fact that part of 1932 has passed. His preliminary report, in the opinion of the trustees, recommends all of the money saving which his ten volumes will suggest.

Could Have Acted Last Week.

On some of these recommendations the board could have acted as well last Monday as today. One of these items is the saving of $561,000 a year, now spent on regular teachers, who, Dr. Strayer said, sit around at certain periods while special teachers instruct their pupils. It is obviously the task of the superintendent of schools to work out a plan to eliminate this $561,000. One principal was asked Saturday how long it would take him to formulate a plan for his school. He replied: "Twenty minutes."

Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan was quoted last week as saying it would take a year to work out the plan, because the teachers to be discarded must be absorbed into the system.

Playground Item Easily Cut.

Another recommendation of Dr. Strayer is the elimination of $128,039 from the playground appropriation. Dr. Strayer told the trustees that is the amount once removed from the budget and then put back in again. Perhaps 20 minutes would be required to tabulate the items in the $128,039 savings and order the cut.

In the business administration of the schools Dr. Strayer recommended a cut of "not less than $331,639." His preliminary report, however, states that this saving can be made in reorganizing the administrative bureaus "along the lines recommended by the survey," which has not yet been disclosed. Perhaps that will be taken as an excuse for not cutting the excessive cost of business administration, which was pointed out long before Dr. Strayer suggested it.

Even the trustees know there is waste in the business administration. The new business manager, Howard P. Savage, indicated by the discharge of four employés last Saturday that he has observed the waste.

Architects' Bureau Overstaffed.

Dr. Strayer recommended a saving of $400,000 in the appropriations of $554,467 for the architects' bureau. All the trustees who have been on the board a month know the appropriation overstaffs that bureau. The budget sets aside $416,842 as compensation for 126 regular employés. This is 80 per cent more than is needed at present, from the viewpoint of the school board itself, because only 70 employés are now on the job. There is nothing in Dr. Strayer's preliminary report which suggests a delay in saving this $400,000. It is one of the items which, he observes, could be saved this year.

Further evidence of needless expenditure in that bureau is also supplied by the school board. Mr. Savage said yesterday that instead of spending $400,000 in salaries in the bureau this year, the amount will not exceed $280,000, and with other economies he has in mind it may be brought down to $250,000. He added: "Twelve employés in that bureau were let out yesterday."

Suggests Abolishing Office.

Dr. Strayer's expressed view was: "If you cannot get money for buildings, as now seems the case, why not abolish the architect's office altogether?"

The aldermen have recommended the school tax levy for 1931 be cut $10,658,000. It should not require more than 20 minutes of the board's time to decide whether they will make the cut.

KILLED IN AUTO

MRS. FAYORA M'DERMOTT.

AUTO FATALITIES PASS 400 MARK; LESS THAN 1931

Two Deaths in County; Many Injured.

Cook county's 1932 auto death toll passed the 400 mark yesterday when two fatalities brought the total to 401. The 1932 total is 22 less than the fatalities recorded on May 16 in 1931. The 400 mark was passed on May 8 last year. The fatalities yesterday were:

Patrick Dumez, 26 years old, 4519 South Mozart street. Fatally injured when a motorcycle on which he was riding the sidecar was struck by an automobile driven by Edward Czojhowski, 22 years old, 4846 South Elizabeth street, at 45th street and Francisco avenue. Jack Austra, 28 years old, 1113 South Mozart street, driver of the motorcycle, was taken to the Southwest General hospital suffering from internal injuries.

Frank Dubose, 3 years old, 122 South Spaulding avenue. Died in the Garfield Park hospital of injuries suffered Saturday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Virginia Prisci, 18 years old, 2327 West Van Buren street, while playing in the street near his home.

Critically Hurt in Loop.

Miss Gladys Kronquist, 23 years old, 414 Walnut street, Maywood, a school teacher, is in a serious condition at the West Lake hospital in Melrose Park as a result of the collision early yesterday which cost the life of Mrs. Fayora McDermott, 23 years old, 710 South 3d avenue, Maywood. A car driven by her husband, Cyril McDermott, an official of the sign painters' union, struck a light post after striking another car on St. Charles road in Bellwood.

Arthur Sheppard, 32 years old, 214 South Hamlin avenue, was critically injured yesterday when his car collided at Jackson boulevard and Wabash avenue with one driven by Mrs. Marie Shine, 1107 West Garfield boulevard. Sheppard, whose car overturned, was taken to the American hospital with internal injuries.

Robert J. McCullum, 37 years old, 70 East 74th street, was probably fatally injured when his automobile was struck and overturned at Indiana avenue and 75th street by a car driven by Harrison Wright, a Negro, of Danville, Ill. He was taken to the Jackson Park hospital.

Hurt in North Side Crash.

Arthur F. Gerleck, 31 years old, 2906 Wilson avenue, was seriously injured when his motorcycle was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Mier, 29 years old, 2130 Bradley place. The accident occurred at La Salle and Clark streets. Gerleck was taken to the Henrotin hospital.

CHILD STRANGLED TO DEATH; BODY HIDDEN IN SHED

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—(AP)—The body of 7 year old John Chonacki was found crammed into a baby carriage in a shed near his home in suburban Hamtramck. He had been strangled and the body covered with burlap and a piece of canvas.

The child's uncle, Frank Jackimovics, 22, found the body when he went to search for his nephew at the request of the boy's mother, Mrs. Emily Chonacki, a young widow. Police also joined in the search at the mother's request.

A cousin, Arthur Jackimovics, 5, told police he saw John go into a garage at the rear of their home probably two hours before the body was found. So far as police have learned, that was the last time he was seen alive.

Police believe the child was strangled to death by an assailant who waited for him in the garage, or whom he surprised there, and the body carried across the alley to the tumbled down shed in which it was found.

Several boys were playing about the premises. Some of them said they ran through the shed in their play, but that they saw nothing unusual.

Assistant Prosecutor Walter Phillips, who is directing the investigation, said he was convinced the child was killed by an adult since there were no bruises such as would result from a fight.

Chiefs Meet Today on Metropolitan Police Plan

A meeting of police chiefs of suburban towns who have agreed to join in the metropolitan police plan worked out by State's Attorney Swanson and Chief Freeman of Evanston is to be held this morning at the prosecutor's office. Chief Investigator Pat Roche will have active charge of the combined departments. Under the new plan the police can be moved to any suburb having a crime wave. The village police also will be empowered by the prosecutor to act in Chicago.

LONDON, May 15.—(AP)—The British steamer Roumelian, and the French steamer St. Nazaire, collided in a fog off the Needles [the western point], Isle of Wight, today, and the Roumelian was badly damaged. The St. Nazaire suffered but slight damage.

The British craft sent out an S O S and a lifeboat from Yarmouth answered and took off two women and two men passengers. The four were taken to Southampton, while the crew stayed aboard and maneuvered the filling Roumelian slowly toward Southampton. The steamer had a bad hole near the waterline.

From Southampton came word that the liner Milwaukee, due at Cowes Roads at 1:30 p. m. to disembark New York passengers, had not arrived at midnight owing to dense fog. The liner was reported anchored off the Isle of Wight. The liner Caparcona from South America arrived two hours late.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

HARD TIMES AND EASY MONEY.

Because the safe road seems to be a hard one to travel, the country is yielding to the temptation to take one which experience posts as unsafe. Recovery is at the end of one, ruin may be at the end of the other.

If the various governments would take their heavy hands off the resources of the country the people could get back in their stride again. They cannot so long as they are exhausted in trying to meet the demands government makes upon them.

It is self-evident that money cannot be diverted into nonessential and nonproductive processes of government and still be had for the work by which the people subsist. Industries cannot live by paying taxes instead of dividends and by reducing pay rolls to satisfy government imposts. Cutting the costs of government is obnoxious to the authorities which must make the decision, but the government is living upon dying resources. It does not produce subsistence. The people cannot live upon it. They cannot take their livelihood from it. It depends upon their success. So obvious a truism cannot be supplanted by a fallacy for the cure of national ills. The thing which lives only by the work of others cannot provide life. The parasite does not support its victim.

It is proposed to proceed in defiance of the truth. Instead of reducing government to endurable form it is proposed to seek a cure in aggravation of the illness. Local governments and communities already confess their helplessness. They do not confess, and it is not necessary, that their condition is the consequence of just such acts as they now demand shall be done by the federal government. Is it supposed that what has wrecked the states, cities and rural communities can be done with greater recklessness by the federal government and without like consequences?

States have lost their courage, their intelligence and their self-respect by living beyond their means, if not in their administration of purely state affairs then in just as destructive a fashion by the mismanagement of their subordinate local governments. They are, consequently, confronted with debt, impaired or lost credit, vanishing revenue and impoverished taxpayers who cannot raise the money to support their overloaded governments, relieve distress in their localities or pay their own bills.

Now that they have brought themselves to this pass and will not make the effort to cast off their burdens they turn to Washington, where costs of federal government already have contributed to national ruin. The program of subsidy and subvention already has proceeded so far that fourteen states receive more from the federal government than they pay in income taxes. Now all the states want to try the scheme of getting back to prosperity by taking in each other's washing. The people are trying to convince themselves that there is some magic which will make everything right. They are fascinated by the prospect of throwing off their troubles at the foot of the Christmas tree, and they are encouraged by politicians who want their votes in this election year and who do not want to disturb the government system in which they profit. They are encouraged by radicals who see in the present troubles the opportunity of their lifetime to recast the character of the American government and make it socialistic or communistic. They are encouraged even by the economists who think that such a sick patient will make a very interesting case in the operating room for the trial of some new ideas.

The people, distracted by their fears and impatient for release, respond to the influences which work upon their credulity and encourage them to trust a wizardry which in their calmer moments many would recognize as an evil illusion. If the people can be diverted from what should be their true objective, the escape from ruinous processes of government, the authorities of these governments will regard themselves as having narrowly escaped the self-denying ordinances necessary to restore the country.

The pressure upon them for the execution of the remedial policies has been heavy. It comes from the sensible, clear seeing element in the country. Unless there can be a diversion in another direction the proper steps will be forced at Washington and at every extravagant seat of government in the country. If this movement for the deflating of government can be stopped by getting the popular mind fixed in another direction the opportunity to put the United States back on a sound basis in its federal and its local affairs may be lost with consequences not easy or pleasant to foresee.

A healthy criticism of government is just gaining real headway. It is sound and intelligent criticism and it comes from citizens whose experience teaches them the truth of their statements. They have encountered the injuries flowing inevitably from the policies which have gained dominance in the United States. They can foresee the injuries to come. They see bankrupt communities. They have watched the pyramiding of functions and costs. They have seen the farm board, for instance, break itself and the wheat market. They are not so foolish as to imagine that political action produces national subsistence or that the economic welfare of the nation can be bounced down the steps of fanciful legislation.

If evidence were lacking in this country to show how pitiful are the results of prodigal government action, and it is not lacking, the ripe fruit of the tree can be seen abroad, in Great Britain and some of its dominions.

Critical as every one knows these times to be, it may still be impossible for any one to appreciate the actual gravity of events depending upon decisions made in panic and with the desire to escape by the easiest way out.

American citizens may well regard a future as dark which offers to a credulous people the Christmas tree as the symbol of their economic life.

GOLD DIGGERS ET AL.

A growing number of suits in this and other jurisdictions, inspired, perhaps, by hard times, calls attention again to the fact that the laws governing marital relations in this and most other states are barbaric. The decencies are preserved not on account of the laws but in spite of them. They invite perjury on the part of those whose marriages have proved failures and who wish to be divorced, and these obvious perjuries are solemnly attended to by robed judges who know precisely what is what. More than that, the laws encourage the operations of blackmailers and gold diggers.

The law of marriage and divorce is cluttered with medieval assumptions that have long been discarded in life. One fact which the law ought to recognize is that when a man and his wife no longer wish to live together their marriage should be terminable. No proof of cruelty or infidelity should be required.

Further than that, there is great need for a reconsideration of the problems of alimony. The husband has a moral obligation to support his children and his divorced wife if she is no longer able to earn her own living, but alimony and separation allowances ought not to be used, as they now are, to punish the man and support the able-bodied woman in luxury for the rest of her life.

Damages for alienation of affections should be abolished. The concept of a cash value for affection is odious; it is not easy to imagine a case in which a self-respecting and honorable woman would bring an alienation suit. She may have been humiliated, betrayed, and wronged, but precisely to the extent that she has suffered a cash payment will not rectify matters and a public trial will only add to her humiliation. It may be safely assumed that the right to sue for lost love is of use to the gold diggers a thousand times for every time it is invoked by the pure of heart.

THE SENATE CONTEST IN WISCONSIN.

Republican politics in Wisconsin has long languished for lack of an aggressive popular leader. It has been without an identity around whom the voters would rally and who was able to concentrate or direct the strength that opposes the course of La Folletteism in the state.

Young Mr. Chapple, the Ashland editor, gives promise of becoming that identity. For a year he has waged vigorous war on what he has conceived as a program to impose Red radicalism on the state and bankrupt the commonwealth and its people. He has been the apparent anomaly of a man in public life concerned more in the welfare of the public than in acquiring honors for himself.

Chapple has continued his attack on La Folletteism since announcing himself a candidate for the senate. His speeches are unchanged in character. He talks little of himself and much about the progress that has been made in undermining American ideals by socialistic experiments and appeals to prejudice.

Two chief criticisms are made of his candidacy. It is said he is too young and that he is too recent an entrant into politics to aspire to so high an office as the United States senate. The faults are found chiefly by those whose interests lie in other candidates.

Wisconsin in electing the two youths of the La Follette dynasty to its highest offices has shown it is not impressed by nor dismayed by the lack of them. Neither, if Chapple is fitted to serve, is it important that he has not acted previously as justice of the peace, alderman or assemblyman. If he has not cloaked himself in the mystery and importance of the town politician, that should have no influence on his capacity to understand the problems he will meet in the higher office.

Republicanism in Wisconsin is in a fix and it needs to look further now than merely to reward its faithful.

Chapple has had the vision to see the dangers threatening and the courage to attack them. He has visualized the issues and has placed them squarely before thousands of voters. The impression he has made cannot be dissipated by politicians engineering a convention. He is a crusader and that seems to be what Wisconsin just now needs.

Editorial of the Day

UNCLE SAM, LAUNDRYMAN.

[The Bloomington Pantagraph.]

In spite of the nation-wide demand that government bureaus contract rather than expand their activities in business which competes with private concerns, we are hearing of new forms of business which government agencies are taking on from time to time.

One of the latest is the rôle of landlord with offices to rent, which the treasury department assumed in Kansas City, where it had a surplus of office rooms in a newly constructed Federal Reserve bank building. Some of the office space was offered for rent to the public, in direct competition with Kansas City investors who had put their money into office buildings.

Thirty-three new postoffice buildings in different cities are planned with rooms for restaurants, where not only postoffice employes may secure meals but they will be open to the general public. Uncle Sam thus competes with private restaurants in those cities.

Laundries are planned to run in some of the new government buildings, for the accommodation of employes and for the general public use. Uncle Sam is also feeling his way toward operating as a wholesale grocer by encouraging groups of employes to buy their supplies in a sort of club at wholesale prices. These new branches of government operation are proposed at the very time when congress pretends to be seeking ways for economy by restriction of government bureaus.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By E. S.

WHAT'S THE USE OF THE DARNED THING ANYHOW!

There's always supposed to be some good in everything. At least there are a lot of people who believe that, poor dears. And likewise, says some poor fish, wiggling his ears, there is a bright side to every picture do we but look for it. Also Pollyanna will tell you there is a rose for every thorn, and let us then be up and doing with a heart for any fate, sing tra la la, tra la la, tra lala, la, la, la! And we did hope that during the oft-spoken-of depression, with Desiccated Bath Mitts doing a nose dive every day, and Aluminum Wheat Cakes, Inc., digging down deeper into the mire every time the clock ticks, that, after all, there would be one great joy that would come to us these days that would make up for everything—yeah, even for the taxes congress is going to make us pay for singing in the bath tub and keeping a canary.

But, in spite of everything, they haven't changed! No, sir! They haven't forgotten! They will not be diverted! No, doggone it, the junk is piled up all over the house. We step in the wash pail at night and lean in our new suit of clothes against the rich, warm fresh paint. The books are all stacked up like cordwood, and our favorite detective story is either at the bottom of the pile or gone down to the basement; no one will ever know. We eat canned sardines for breakfast if we can break a path to the pantry, and we find some butter and a bottle of home brew in the icebox if we're lucky.

No, depression, congress, new taxes, unemployment, the horrible doubt of what the Democratic convention is going to do and the absolute knowledge of what the Republicans will do at their big meeting in the Stadium—in spite of all these things—the women do their house cleaning this spring just as they've always done. A rousing Bronx cheer for the depression and three hollow groans and a couple of hoots. It's thrown us down. If a depression can't stop 'em from cleaning house, what in heck is the use of having one? Huh?

THE CATHEDRAL.

I built a fair cathedral when you came—
With stately columns, and illumined walls,
And wide white steps. In onyx-studded halls
Gleamed images of bronze and porphyry,
And silver-sconced—an ever flowing flame
Of sapphire cast its wavering mystery.

I took the fire of love, and caught the pearl
That glimmered on the cheek of agony,
And chanting all the lore of sorrow learned
I blent the two—and when an opal burned
I sunk it deep in carven ebony.

I took the maddening rapture of a dream
That stole into a painter's revery
In beauty's power and passion's slavery—
And bent its witchery to a pulsing theme.

And reeling tones of some lost symphony,
Spread out her wings—an echoing, gauzy shell,
And caught the glittering baubles as they fell—
Flaming jewels of strange euphony.

From flashing tones, a chanting rosary
I fashioned for the shrine of mystery,
And cast it down before an empty throne
Beyond the nave, and whispered—"He shall be
The one high priest for all eternity."

('Twas when you came to me—so long alone.)

* * * * *

But suddenly—great shadows blurred the walls—
And lurching spires swayed over onyx halls.
My sanctuary fell—the shrine gave way—
I called for you—but you had gone from me.
In wreckage of my dream I stood, alone—
'Mid broken columns, near an empty throne.

* * * * *

Then something gray from out the past swept by
And touched my lips with vinegar and laid
Some thorns upon my brow, and said—
"Gethsemane."

* * * * *

And set the chanting baubles all aglow
With gleaming tones. The cadences increased—
The mute earth rang as if the Master spoke
And space had answered—echoed, wild and low
From cliff and flower. . . .
Another morning broke.

Alone again. Alone. I cannot pray—
MABEL GREGG.

JIMMIE WALKER'S great beer parade took place as per schedule Saturday and seems to have been a great success. One hundred thousand people and more. And try to convince any hard baked, determined dry that each and every man in that parade was not a staggering drunkard or a sin soaked hellion. You try; we give it up to start with.

AND JUST BECAUSE we wrote the above paragraph we expect twelve letters tomorrow addressed—no, we won't put it down; it just isn't pretty language, that's all. Anyhow, it isn't temperate language and one should be temperate in everything, even in writing letters and calling names. And in eating huckleberry pie. Or in drinking ice cold water. Yessir, one can even drink too much ice cold water. We should even be temperate about the things we prohibit. O, yes, indeed, especially should we be temperate in our prohibitions.

IT'S STRAW HAT TIME! Hooray, hooray! Now for the attic—ah, there it is. Now a little benzine, turn the ribbon inside out and behold—a new straw hat. Who invented straw hats anyhow? He ought to have a Carnegie medal.

FATTEN WITH INSULIN.

WHILE insulin has failed to meet certain promises made for it by its overenthusiastic advocates, new fields for the product are opening up. Diabetes is increasing steadily. The number of known cases is larger, partly because diagnosis is better, but principally because of our diet and habits. Certainly the general use of insulin has not eliminated diabetes as a health problem. While diabetics live longer and more comfortably and efficiently when they use insulin, it has not proved of great value as a cure. It is an excellent remedy for diabetic coma. I am sure we would feel lost if we tried to care for diabetics and had no insulin to use, but we must try to find some other way out of the diabetic hole.

To offset this disappointment in insulin, the medicine has been found of value in some other fields. One of these is in helping people to put on weight. It has been proved that insulin, given hypodermically daily, will make a man hitherto with no appetite eat like Henry VIII. and will cause a walking skeleton to look like Uncle Sam, 1929 model. Men who use this treatment, including the diet that goes with it, have been known to fatten more than a pound a day, a rate that cannot be long maintained without causing an objectionable waistline.

In all probability, this new use of insulin will have only a limited field of usefulness. It is too much trouble, too inconvenient, and too expensive for use except by those who are emaciated to a marked degree. This is not a large group, and it must be further decreased by the subtraction of those who are emaciated because of organic disease. If a person is very thin because of consumption, cancer, or some other wasting disease due to a well intrenched infection, or some other cause that is difficult to get at, there will not be much use in his taking insulin. On the other hand, a very large proportion of the underweights can bring themselves up to a satisfactory level by such simple procedures as changing to a diet richer in carbohydrates and fats, by sleeping more, keeping more regular hours, and cultivating poise and relaxation. Most members of this group, provided they have some persistence, will prefer the diet-rest plan of cure.

However, there still remains a considerable number of persons who are good subjects for insulin as a fattening agent. In properly chosen cases insulin used for this purpose has proved its value.

TURNING IN SLEEP.

P. A. T. writes: From time to time I have read in your column about persons moving in their sleep. I have been in bed with arthritis for nearly three years. The only turn I can possibly make is to roll on my left side. This takes so much time and effort that I could not possibly do it in my sleep. I get a good night's sleep without changing my position. Yet once or twice each night I have a restless feeling that half wakens me. I want to move around. This passes and I go back to sleep.

REPLY:

Thanks.

There are others who must resist the urge to roll at night. Examples are those with fractures and with certain severe acute diseases. Sick persons who cannot turn must be watched for bed sores. The same group of factors which makes sleepers want to shift position also causes bed sores.

PROTECT YOUR CHILD.

B. F. R. writes:

1. My husband has had tuberculosis for the last three years and I am told I am compelled by law to have my children examined. Is this true?
2. What examination does the board of health put the children through?
3. If the mother of the children wants her family doctor to examine the children, can it be done?
4. Does the blood also have to be examined to find out if the children have tuberculosis?

REPLY.

1. Laws vary and, your letter being undated, I cannot say what your law requires. However, you should be anxious to do what you can to protect your child even though not compelled by law to do so.
2. As a rule, only a physical examination and a study of the history.
3. Yes.
4. Rarely is this test made.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

REPUBLICAN—1880.

Chicago, June 9.—The long agony is over and the Republican party is saved from destruction. Third termism has been buried. Gen. James A. Garfield was nominated yesterday for President, receiving 399 votes to 306 for Gen. Grant. Chester A. Arthur is the vice presidential nominee.

The convention was held in the Exposition hall at Michigan avenue, Adams and Monroe streets, which seats 10,000 to 12,000, and was filled.

After the convention was opened with prayer the twenty-ninth ballot was ordered. The call of the states proceeded. When Massachusetts was called it broke to Sherman, giving him 21 votes. The result of this ballot was: Garfield, 2; Windom, 7; Edmunds, 12; Washburne, 35; Sherman, 116; Blaine, 278; Grant, 305.

The result was substantially the same as the first ballot, with the exception of the change of Massachusetts to Sherman. Six more ballots made only slight changes. Then the thirty-sixth was ordered. There was canvassing all over the hall and it was soon evident Ohio would abandon one favorite son for another.

Iowa gave 22 votes for Garfield. There was a thunderous cheer. State after state shifted all or part of its strength to him. West Virginia gave Garfield 9 and Wisconsin gave him 18, which made just enough to nominate —379. The vast audience rose to their feet and cheered. The boom of cannon was heard and the band played "The Battle Cry of Freedom." Verification of the vote on a second call gave Garfield 399.

DEMOCRATIC—1880.

Cincinnati, O., June 24.—The solid south again dominates Democratic councils and Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock, champion of state rights, is the nominee for President. His tender treatment of southern rebels made him a southern favorite and southern votes nominated him on the second ballot. William H. English of Indiana was nominated for Vice President.

The first ballot yesterday showed Hancock in the lead with 171 votes to Bayard's 163½. The second ballot, today, proceeded amid intense excitement. Pennsylvania's change to Hancock let loose a veritable pandemonium in Music hall, where the convention was held.

The vote, as finally declared, was: Hancock, 705; Hendricks, 30; Bayard, 2; Tilden, 1.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 16, 1916.

EAGLE PASS., Tex.—Twenty-four persons were killed, it was stated by authorities in Piedras Negras, opposite here, in the derailment on May 12 by bandits of a through passenger train from Mexico City to Laredo, between Queretaro and Empalme Gonzales. In the train was the private car of Charles A. Douglas, Carranza representative at Washington. His car was not damaged.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Republican politicians here were thrown into a state of rare excitement by an exceedingly circumstantial report that Associate Justice Hughes of the Supreme court has admitted his willingness to become the Republican candidate for President. The jurist, according to the story, made known his position on the question to former President Taft, who arrived in Washington last night and testified today in the Riggs bank trial.

LONDON.—Britain's determination to press to a conclusion the prosecution of the leaders responsible for the Dublin uprising in spite of all objections by members of parliament became clear. Sir Roger Casement was placed on trial and an outline of the crown's case against the prisoner showing a wide conspiracy involving Germany was presented. In Dublin plans for the court martial of John MacNeill, president of the Sinn Fein volunteers and professor of law in the National university, were announced.

CHICAGO.—It took Chicago only a few hours yesterday to place its stamp of unqualified approval on the plan for a great middle west demonstration for preparedness. The city council, at its meeting in the evening, seized upon the project with enthusiasm and officially designated June 10 as the date for the huge parade and whatever meetings may be planned.

AKRON, O.—The Crystal restaurant in Main street collapsed suddenly tonight, burying beneath its ruins a large number of persons. Ten bodies have been recovered, two more persons are missing, and the injured number nineteen.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor, Arthur Pearson Scott, associate professor of history.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Why is Petrarch called the first modern man?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

SATURDAY'S QUESTION:

Why is Dante a memorable figure?

ANSWER:

Dante, in his writings, summed up the thought and the spirit of the Middle Ages. In his Divine Comedy is reflected the medieval Catholic view of the church and salvation, of the past and future of mankind, of earth, hell, purgatory and paradise. In other writings he sums up medieval theories of the relations of church and state. By using Italian for his greatest work, Dante helped make the Florentine dialect the standard for literary Italian and gave a great impetus to the literary use of national languages instead of Latin. It is equally important to note that Dante is by common consent one of the world's greatest poets.

BLAMING THE JURY SYSTEM.

Pine Village, Ind., May 13.—The crowning proof of the need for a reformation of our jury system is the cruel murder of the Lindbergh child. When justice is not administered speedily and the chances favor acquittal or light punishment and ultimate parole, criminals are emboldened to take the risks, with the results of a practical breakdown of the law and order department of our governments, state and national. The experience of the ages has been the same. That experience was put into words by Solomon in 200 B. C. in these words:

"Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil."

What is the remedy? Clearly it should be to modernize our jury system. The evil that called the jury into existence—namely: the arbitrary power of monarchs—no longer exists. The German republic has pointed the way. What is their system? There are no juries as we know them. A trial is presided over by a senior judge, one or two junior judges, and two lay judges. The lay judges are chosen nearly like our jurors but they serve six months or a year and are instructed as to the law and their duties before they sit in the trial of any case. That seems to be an improvement on our system.

One thing is sure, our jury system has developed a large number of abuses entirely too favorable to the criminal.

JOHN KLINE.

THE AMATEUR SLEUTH'S REVENGE.

Chicago, May 13.—It certainly is no compliment to the great detectives of this country that the Lindbergh child was found after 73 days, and then only to discover that the infant was dead for about 60 days. The police poke fun at amateur detectives, but I believe a flock of these, sent over to the scene of the kidnaping, would not have done any worse, could not have bungled up the job any more, than all our official set of Sherlocks. To find a thief in a peck of potatoes is a matter of minutes, but when it comes to a real task they are hopelessly lost. HENRY BOFF.

VIGILANTES.

Chicago, May 12.—It seems to me that the tragic end of the Lindbergh case should awaken the people of the United States to the fact that we have too many complicated and useless laws which keep the officials so busy in futile efforts to enforce that they have no time left to protect the citizens and their families from such dastardly affairs.

I, for one, recommend, if there is no other way to protect our rights and lives [and such seems to be the case], that we organize the old law and order system of the west—namely: the vigilance committee—and clean up the gangsters and crooked politicians. The above will be called radical, to say the least, but these are radical times and conditions and should be so dealt with.

JOHN M. MEEKS.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Chicago, May 6.—The Defenders of America, at their weekly luncheon today, went on record unanimously by resolution to congratulate THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for its presentation, in cartoon form, of the issue as between Patriotism vs. Communism in the May 5 issue by Mr. Carey Orr. LEWIS E. MEGOWEN.

FROM A LAW STUDENT.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., May 1.—I am a citizen of Chicago studying law at the University of Alabama. I naturally take an interest in the legal and political proceedings in Chicago.

I read today in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE an article entitled "Cermak Speaks His Mind on Gun Ruling by Green." I was shocked at the specious arguments set forth by Judge Green. Apparently he thinks that the mayor should have more knowledge and understanding of the constitution than of human protection. I believe that Judge Green could take an intelligent lesson from that great American character, John Marshall, who was big enough to see that the constitution was made for the people and not the people for the constitution. I am proud of the fact that I come from a city which has a citizen in the office of mayor who is interested enough to take some time off from his regular executive duties to watch the regular and irregular flow of justice from our benches, and who is courageous enough to condemn any weak decision on the part of our flawless judges.

I know that Citizen Cermak voiced the conviction of millions of thinking citizens in and out of Chicago when he said that such judges should be transferred to some place where they "can do no harm." J. D. PATROVSKY.

FIGHTING BACK AT 78.

Europa, Miss., May 4.—I lost out in the cataclysm that followed the debacle of '29, or most everybody thought so, and nearly all said so. On the first day of January, 1930, I faced the cold, heartless world, homeless, penniless and jobless. Worse, I was 76 years old.

Before the crash—a crash that left me numbed and dumb—youth laughed at me and said, "Old granddad, you'll have to step aside and give place to younger men."

When I closed the door behind me and went out to face the world at 76, as I had faced it at 16, it seemed a bitter and horrible thing.

But I have carried on, and have not had to ask charity of any one. I haven't been in the bread line, slept in the jungles or asked for handouts at householders' doors. I'm paying as I go, and find it hard to make the necessary amount to do so. But at 78 I'm happy and content.

Most of the younger men who fell out after I did seem to lack the grit to get across, and I sometimes contribute a dime to help them get a sandwich. They still call me granddad and slap me on the back and they go away and say, "Granddad, I'd give my life for your cheery disposition." JIM WALTON.

PURELY PERSONAL.

Chicago, May 12.—From all appearances it would seem that the amount of news procurable these days has also been affected by the depression. Giving a small town affair a three day play on the front page of the World's Greatest Newspaper, embellishing it with a series of pictures, and then, to clinch the matter, also writing up an editorial, is not, to my mind, worthy of the platform which THE TRIBUNE indorses. The Gregory case was one which was purely personal, and one of small merit compared to some of the grave issues which are presenting themselves today when the greatest minds in the world seek helplessly for some solution.

JAM THEATER FOR BENEFIT GIVEN BY MISS CORNELL

Thousands Are Unable to Get Tickets.

Several thousand Chicagoans were disappointed in efforts to purchase tickets for yesterday's benefit performance of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" by Katherine Cornell and her company at the Civic Opera house. Proceeds are to go to the sick teachers' fund of the Chicago Teachers' federation.

Although the ticket sale was not scheduled to open until 10 o'clock, the first purchaser arrived at the theater at 5:30 a. m. He said he was Oscar Prath. He was joined at 6 o'clock by Mrs. Mathilde Klem. By 9 o'clock a double file of ticket buyers stretched a block north down the colonnade to Washington street. Before the sale started, at 10:15 o'clock, it had extended clear across the Washington street bridge nearly to Canal street.

Miss Cornell Opens Sale.

Miss Cornell opened the sale at one window, disposing of the first 100 seats. "First come, first served" was the rule, and tickets were dealt out at the flat rate of $1, according to the position of those in line. The star herself refused to take advantage of her place in the box office, and stationed a boy in line to buy four seats for one of her employes. When he finally reached the window everything had been sold.

With the exception of the boxes, which had been disposed of in advance of the performance, every seat in the house, numbering 3,635 in all, was sold between 10:15 and 11:50 o'clock.

Performance Is Delayed.

So tremendous was the crush in the lobbies as other thousands seeking to buy tickets swarmed in that the curtain had to be held fifteen minutes beyond schedule to accommodate those who were finding it difficult to get into the theater.

"The Barretts of Wimpole Street," the historical romance of the poetess and poet, Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, is the first spoken drama to be enacted in the Civic Opera house. A notable feature of the performance was the clarity with which each spoken word was audible even to the remotest seats. Rudolph Besier, the author, waived his royalty.

G. O. P. LEADERS TRY AGAIN TODAY TO AVOID SPLIT

But Little Hope for Success Is Held.

BY PARKE BROWN.

WM. H. WEBER.

The meeting, which has not been given the formality of a caucus that would bind all present to abide by the result of majority action, was called by William H. Weber in response to pleas that an effort be made to avoid open disruption of the party locally at the county convention, which is to resume activity on Wednesday.

The split has come over the election of a chairman of the committee for the next two years. Up to the present there has not been a majority for any candidate mentioned. It is with the idea of lining up a majority for somebody or other that today's meeting will be held behind closed doors. But doubt is expressed that any such result can be attained.

Sees Little to Hope For.

"And what would be the use of an agreement on anybody now?" asked one of the biggest Republicans in town. "If we should get a man all set for chairman tomorrow he would be knocked down before the convention on Wednesday.

"If we select a man who is in any way opposed to Len Small the former governor will get busy and upset the arrangement. If we select a man inclined to be friendly toward the former governor's Chicago manager—the former mayor—he is sure to be knocked over because a majority of the committee is opposed to giving that fellow a chance to start running for mayor again.

"He took an awful beating when he tried to grab the convention last week. He was put in his place when less than one-fifth of the committee consented to fellow his leadership. And there is no chance of his staging a comeback by putting any of his fellows in the chairmanship now.

Want It Threshed Out.

"What some of us favor is the postponement of action until the convention and then going into the convention, locking the doors and staying there until a chairman is elected. There are possibly as many as ten members of the committee for whom a majority could be had. They are the middle of the road fellows who are neutral in the present situation."

Despite this attitude that today's meeting is a hopeless affair, it is believed that there will be an almost complete attendance of the fifty ward committeemen elected on April 12 and the eight recognized leaders from the country town districts. The one rumor in conflict with this belief is one that the remnant of the old city hall machine will not attend unless it sees a good chance for the election of one of its own crowd, but this has been denied by some of the group.

The Barrett west side group which has three favorites—in the order named—George F. Barrett, Eden T. Brekke, and Edward F. Moore—expects to attend. The Deneen members will go in at least for the purpose of presenting the name of County Commissioner William Busse. And it is expected that such independents or semi-independents as there are will be on hand in order to learn what's going on. The meeting is scheduled for 3 o'clock and, it is predicted, will be a long one.

Break Window of Loop Jewelry Store; Loot $1,200

One of the plate glass windows of the Kirchberg jewelry store, 104 North State street, was smashed by burglars early yesterday and watches and diamonds valued at $1,200 to $1,500 were taken. A horseshoe which had been used to break the glass was found inside. The police notified the manager, William Meier, 4913 North Karlov avenue, who estimated the loss.

Brazil Rushes Warships and Planes to Curb Strike

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 15.—(AP)—The federal government today ordered two warships and two airplanes to the state of Sao Paulo, which is torn by strike troubles. Leaders of the strike movement were arrested by the Sao Paulo authorities in a raid on the headquarters of the printers' union.

Searchlights Make Night Like Day at Hotel Fire

U. S. AID SOUGHT FOR WATER LINE BY LOS ANGELES

Federal Body Asked to Purchase Bonds.

struct its aqueduct so the government can find a market for the water that the dam will store up, and the electric power that will be generated. The water district is to pay the federal government 50 cents an acre foot for the water stored at the dam.

The water district has contracted to take 36 per cent of the power which the government is to develop by its works at the dam site. This is the greater portion of the government's prospective return from Los Angeles. The annual payment to the government for power will amount to about $3,500,000.

Use Power to Pump Water.

The power will be used by the water district in pumping the dam water into the aqueduct from an intake point near Parker, Cal., about 150 miles below the dam on the Colorado river, and in lifting the aqueduct water over the two high mountain ranges that bar the route from Colorado river westward to the California coastal plain.

The southern California cities which have made common cause for more water under Los Angeles leadership, to compose the metropolitan water district, are: Anaheim, Beverly Hills, Burbank, Compton, Fullerton, Glendale, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Marino, Santa Ana, Santa Monica, and Torrance.

ROOSEVELT FACES FIGHT FOR KANSAS DELEGATES TODAY

Lawrence, Kas., May 15.—(AP)—A fight over the presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt neared as delegates assembled tonight for the state Democratic convention here tomorrow.

Supporters of the New York executive, led by Gov. Harry Woodring and Guy T. Helvering, state chairman, claimed sufficient strength to control the 20 votes allotted the state for the national convention.

"Sentiment has developed for an instructed delegation for Roosevelt," said Gov. Woodring.

Chairman Helvering said a "large majority of the 1,080 votes in the state convention would favor Roosevelt."

Waggener favors Newton D. Baker. John N. Garner of Texas and Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma also had support.

Loss Is $25,000

Damage to the Charlevoix hotel, 6213 University avenue, which was attacked early yesterday by fire, was estimated at $25,000. The flames wrecked several rooms on the fourth floor and broke through the roof. Ray Welty, night clerk, stuck to the switchboard in the lobby until he had warned all of the hundred guests in the hotel who made their escapes without difficulty.

90,000 VISITORS EXPECTED FOR 2 CONVENTIONS

Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the Chicago citizens' committee in charge of arrangements for the Democratic and Republican national conventions, estimated yesterday that the two gatherings will draw between 90,000 and 100,000 visitors to Chicago.

His estimates were based on incomplete returns from inquiries made by the committee throughout the country. The total visitors may exceed the present estimates, it was said.

The wide field of candidates for the Democratic nomination is expected to produce the largest crowd at that party's convention. Mr. Hurley estimated 65,000. The national es to be dealt with at the Republican convention will also assure a large crowd, he said.

ELEVATOR CRUSHES JANITOR.

The body of Martin Beis, 42 years old, 6432 North Washtenaw avenue, was found crushed yesterday between an elevator cage and the shaft wall of the building at 2349 Devon avenue, where he was janitor. Police believe he suffered a heart attack while operating the elevator and was killed.

ITALY PERFECTS ARMY AS IT EYES THOSE NEXT DOOR

Report on War Budget Tells of Dangers.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 15.—Warm praise for the effectiveness of the renovated Italian army and an outline of its problems in view of what is described as the gigantic strength of the French and Jugo-Slav armies, which now have taken the rôle of turning Europe into an armed camp, are voiced in a report on the Italian war budget submitted to the chamber by Deputy Balstrocchi.

"The army has a single ideal: The glory of the king and the greatness of the country," he said. "Conscious of the affection and faith with which it is invested by the country, the army is proud to represent in the farseeing vision of Premier Mussolini, the unshakable protection of Italian national rights. It knows that it is the powerful instrument in his hands for the supreme defense of Italian ideals and with this faith, it is ready for any sacrifice."

Europe's Armies Listed.

Balstrocchi's report supplies an accurate documentation of the armed forces of the principal European states before setting forth the chief problems of the Italian army.

He adds that "the future war will be a war of the people to the point of annihiliation; to the land naval forces which we saw in the last war, supported somewhat by the heroic air force which was then, however, in its infancy, we must now add a new and formidable element—the armada of the skies in its dizzy climb upward.

"Victory will be the goal of the efforts of all these branches together. Victory will be assured if land, naval, and air forces, organized, trained, and prepared in time of peace, with a unified and realistic vision of the war to come, work together in full coordination under the orders of a single chieftain [Mussolini].

Points to French Army.

The report then takes up the war budget figures, asserting that they are without dissimulation and correspond to the rennovating policy of the Fascist régime. Then follows a comparative examination of the most important foreign armies.

Balstrocchi dwells specially on the French army, pointing out its essential characteristics and its power, which, he says, the French have tried to underestimate by showing how it has been cut down "when, as a matter of fact, the French have over 100,000 trained specialists and noncommissioned officers ready to form the backbone of the enormous body of the French reserves."

He emphasizes the powerful French defensive organization, the gigantic fortifications being built, "making a real iron wall to close the Italian and German frontiers." The deputy insists that the French military position is vastly different from what it was in 1914.

"For a Germany, well equipped and allied with Austria, there has been substituted the Germany of the Versailles peace treaty. She is now without allies, while France, in addition to the Locarno guarantees, can now count on a powerful army which she did not have before the last war, and on a formidable defensive organization, to which is to be added the military forces not only of Jugo-Slavia but also of the other two members of the little entente, Czechoslovakia and Rumania," the report goes on. "These forces total 116 divisions."

Serb Army Well Equipped.

Jugoslavia's army, Balstrocchi says, is well equipped and in excellent condition despite the financial crisis.

"The Jugoslav army is a sort of crucible in which all the various races which compose the country are fused together," the report says. "Its spirit is conspicuously warlike. Special frontier organizations to which the Jugoslav general staff gives special attention reinforce the main army. It represents the principal preoccupation of the government and of the monarchy; all the administrations of the state concur to finance it, and it is for this reason that only a part of Jugoslavia's military expenses figure in the war budget, which is met, moreover, in part by credits obtained abroad [France] the amount of which it is difficult to estimate."

Balstrocchi discusses the two theories of armies now held in Europe. The first is a small highly trained professional army. The second is a large framework kept efficient constantly, but only filled in with completing units in time of war.

"Italy has found the latter type more effective for her possible needs," he sets forth.

Crowd Attends

A number of choral groups and bands entertained several hundred spectators yesterday afternoon at the third annual open air music festival sponsored by the northwest park district in Kelvyn park. The northwest park district band has already entered the Chicagoland music festival of THE TRIBUNE, to be held on the evening of Saturday, Aug. 20, at Soldiers' field. The directors of a number of the choruses announced yesterday that they probably would enter the festival also.

The program yesterday was under the direction of Miss Helene Andersen, an employé of the park district. Amplifiers enabled crowds to hear the music as far as a block away. Fifteen choruses, the band, and a drum and bugle corps took part in the program.

PUSHES PERJURY CHARGE AGAINST METHODIST AID

Tinkham Wants Pickett Indicted.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Representative George Holden Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] made public today a letter he addressed to Attorney General William D. Mitchell, yesterday calling upon that official to seek an indictment for perjury against Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Episcopal board of temperance, prohibition and public morals.

GEO. H. TINKHAM.

Congressman Tinkham charges that Mr. Pickett perjured himself when he swore to the senate lobby investigating committee that no records had been spirited from his office. He says the evidence of perjury consists of the following:

"1. The testimony of Deets Pickett under oath in positive and unconditional statements before the senate lobby investigation committee on May 29, 1930, after he had been requested by the committee to make an investigation at the headquarters of the board, that no material had been transported from the headquarters of the board except by mail or parcel post between Jan. 1, 1930, and the date of his testimony.

Record of Transfer.

"2. An official record of photostatic copies of a freight bill and a freight receipt showing the transfer of eleven packages from the headquarters of the board on April 9, 1930, the very day that I demanded before the senate lobby investigating committee that the books of the board be subpoenaed."

Then Mr. Tinkham says:

"If criminal law is to be enforced impartially without discrimination and without favor there can be no justification for your failure to do your duty in this case. It is manifest that you have no right to grant immunity from prosecution for crime to certain persons or organizations because of their political influence or for any other reason."

The congressman accuses the attorney general of failure to do his duty in regard to the charges against Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, who was accused by the lobby committee of violating the corrupt practices act in the 1928 presidential campaign. Mr. Tinkham recalls that on Aug. 6, 1929, he requested the attorney general to investigate the Cannon case to no avail and that on Nov. 15 and 26, 1930, he submitted the evidence with a demand for prosecution of the bishop, but Mr. Mitchell took no action.

At the instance of the Nye committee of the senate the bishop was indicted. His attack on the indictment as technically faulty is pending in the court of appeals. If the throwing out of the indictment is upheld it will be too late to reindict the bishop because of the expiration of statutory limitations.

"If Bishop Cannon escapes the penalty for his violation of a criminal statute," Mr. Tinkham writes to the attorney general, "this miscarriage of justice will be wholly your responsibility."

Mr. Tinkham accuses Mr. Mitchell of a similar dereliction of duty in failing to prosecute Clarence True Wilson, Deets Pickett and the Methodist board for "expenditure of sectarian or church funds for partisan political purposes," evidence of which the congressman says he submitted to the attorney general in November, 1930.

Wilmette Youth Drowned in Wisconsin; Hunt Body

Dispatches last night from Prairie du Chien, Wis., said that searchers had been unable to find the body of James Meier, 17 year old student of Campion college, who was drowned Saturday while swimming in a slough of the Wisconsin river. Young Meier was the son of Frank Meier, 2103 Washington avenue, Wilmette, president of the Wilmette Ice company. The father went to Prairie du Chien yesterday to aid in the search.

U. S. MAY TAKE STEPS TO SEIZE DRUGGAN'S COWS

The government will take no immediate steps to seize nine prize Guernsey cattle bought last week by Terry Druggan, beer baron who is serving a federal prison sentence for income tax evasion, but such action may have to be started soon, according to Dwight H. Green, assistant United States district attorney.

The government has a lien on Druggan's equity in the Sanola farm, Lake Zurich, and on 35 purebred Guernseys previously purchased by Druggan, for his civil income tax liability. The six year statute of limitations for civil collections expires in a few months and if Druggan and his partner, Frankie Lake, haven't paid the $150,000 they offered in compromise, court action will be started to take over their properties.

The government realized $44,000 through the sale of Druggan's Miami Beach estate and is collecting rentals from the Standard Beverage corporation brewery. With $4,400 paid in cash by Druggan to make his personal share of the payments equal $50,000, about $65,000 has been realized. Druggan, Lake, and the beverage corporation, owned jointly by Druggan and Lake, were to pay $50,000 each.

75,000 TO ATTEND DEDICATION OF CATHOLIC SCHOOL

More than 75,000 persons and a gathering of Catholic clergy and laity equal to that of the Eucharistic congress are expected to attend the dedication on Memorial day of the new Holy Name technical school near Lockport. This was announced by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of the Chicago archdiocese yesterday. Cardinal Mundelein will officiate.

The ceremonies will be participated in by various Catholic organizations, including the Holy Name society, Archdiocesan union of Chicago, which has pledged itself to erect and maintain the new institution. Since the announcement of the creation of this school, which will feature aviation, word has come from army and navy departments and government officials at Washington commending the project.

"The new school is a contribution of the Catholic archdiocese to good citizenship," said Bishop Sheil. "It will act as a proving ground for the development of latent talent in boys whose parents are unable to provide them with an opportunity to rise from the rut of poverty."

M'LEAN FIGHTS OUSTER; TRIAL BEGINS TODAY

Gaston B. Means Called to Aid Publisher.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—Proceedings to remove Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, a co-trustee of his father's estate, will go to trial tomorrow with Gaston B. Means called as a defense witness.

EDWARD B. McLEAN.
[Acme Photo.]

In the proceedings brought by the three McLean children through their mother, it is contended that McLean "has refused to maintain and support his wife and children without compulsion by this court."

Lindbergh Case Involved.

Julius Peyser, counsel for McLean, announced today he would summon a jewelry establishment man who "I understand knows about additional money which was to be raised in connection with Mrs. McLean's and Means' negotiations for the return of the Lindbergh baby."

Peyser said he also would summon the manager of the McLean real estate "to prove that Mr. McLean had no responsibility in the recent padlocking of one of the McLean buildings by prohibition officials."

The children contend the publisher has brought deterioration and disrepute to the newspaper and the estate. More than fifty witnesses have been called for the case.

Means Case Up Tomorrow.

Means' own turn as defendant is set for Tuesday in another section of the same court, where he must answer to indictments for embezzlement and larceny after trust from Mrs. McLean. He is alleged to have collected $104,000 from her in the "plan to restore the Lindbergh baby."

Means' attorney said today he doubted whether he could prepare for trial on these charges before next fall. The prosecution, however, is determined to gain immediate trial.

Means, who has admitted receiving the money, but denied the charges, is free on $50,000 bail.

FAIR BUILDINGS TO BE OPENED THIS SUMMER

Many Buildings Completed a Year Early.

Plans to open World's Fair buildings and exhibits to the public this summer, a year before the formal opening, were announced yesterday by exposition officials. The admission charge will be nominal.

By June 1 a two and a half mile section of the all metal fence, painted in modernistic design, will encircle the exposition grounds between the Hall of Science at 16th street and the southern extremity at 39th street.

Temple to Be Opened.

The Chinese Lama temple, which was transported from inner Mongolia by Dr. Sven Hedin, Swedish explorer, will be opened to visitors by Aug. 1. Of red lacquer and gilded copper, the temple will consist of elaborate carvings, tapestries, painted silk wall banners, carved wood Buddhas, bronze images, incense burners, and other Chinese objets d'art.

The replica group of buildings associated with the life of Abraham Lincoln will also be completed in time to open this summer. The structures will include Lincoln's birthplace near Hodgenville, Ky.; his boyhood home in what is now Lincoln City, Ind.; the Lincoln-Berry store at Salem, Ill., and Wigwam hall, where he was nominated for the presidency.

125,000 Visit Fort.

Old Fort Dearborn, replica of the log stronghold of 1812, one of the first projects completed for the fair, has already attracted 125,000 visitors, officials said.

Other buildings which will be opened include the Administration, Travel and Transport, with its 125 foot dome suspended by cables; the electrical group on Northerly island, and the Hall of Science, which will be dedicated on June 1.

One attraction this summer will be a blimp, which will take visitors into the air, speed motorbuses circling the grounds, and several types of water craft.

GREAT RESORT CENTER

Chicago's summer resort facilities were cited yesterday by Mayor Cermak as an added attraction for the vacationing American public besides the two national political conventions to be held in June.

The Republican convention will open June 14, and the Democratic convention June 27. The mayor said he believed that thousands would decide to come to Chicago during that month when they realize that in addition to a closeness to national political activities the city can supply the usual vacation pleasures.

Recites Its Features.

"Chicago," said the mayor, "is the greatest summer recreation center in the world with its miles of splendid bathing beaches, its golf courses, ball parks, race tracks, theaters, airports, acres of forest preserves and city parks, and hundreds of miles of boulevards. And Chicago is always prepared to make any number of visitors comfortable, without crowding or confusion, at minimum cost to visitors.

"At a time when many vacation budgets necessarily are limited it is well to remind the American public that the railroads have granted reduced round trip fares from all points in the United States for the convention period. When people also understand that the convention will not hamper in the least Chicago's facilities for extending hospitality, but will add an extra holiday tinge, I believe that thousands will adjust their vacations so as to be here.

A Gala Occasion.

"Visitors also will find that numerous public and private agencies will exert themselves to make the convention season a gala and memorable occasion. One instance is that as guests of Rufus C. Dawes visitors will be permitted to inspect the World's Fair, which is 70 per cent completed a full year in advance of its opening."

First class hotels in the city with accommodations for 150,000 guests have pledged themselves not to increase their prices, he said.

W. H. TODD, HEAD OF SHIPYARDS, IS DEAD AT 67

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—William H. Todd, 67, intimate friend of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and president of the Todd Shipyard corporation, died this afternoon at the home of his son, J. Herbert Todd, in Brooklyn.

Mr. Todd suffered a nervous breakdown last February, but had recovered sufficiently to go to the circus with members of his family on Saturday night. This afternoon, however, he was seized with a heart attack which resulted in his death within a few minutes.

William H. Todd, former newsboy and riveter, who rose to be president or chairman of the board of five organizations in the shipping industry, including the presidency of the Todd Shipyards corporation, the largest company of its kind in America, was the son of a boilermaker. He was born in Wilmington, Del., in 1867.

SWANSON ORDERS ONE MORE PLEA FOR BANK TRIALS

"Vacation" Excuse by Judges Feared.

An effort to get some of the closed bank cases to trial before the Criminal court judges decide to take their summer vacations will be made this week by State's Attorney Swanson. He gave an order yesterday to Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, who is in charge of the special banking bureau, to make one more effort to get trial in some of the cases, which have been pending for two years.

His Staff Is Ready.

The prosecutor had to meet the issue of untried bank cases in his fight for renomination at the primary election. He fears that unless he can get some of the Democratic judges, who are in control of the Criminal courts, to try the bank cases, he will again be met with this issue in the fall election.

Mr. Ayers pointed out that his staff has been ready for trial when various of the bank cases were called, but that the judges for one reason or another granted continuances. The only prospect of trial is in the Bain bank cases in which Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber is representing the prosecutor's office.

Cite City State Bank Case.

The record of the City State bank, in which Seymour Stedman, prominent attorney, and fourteen others are defendants, is cited to illustrate the way in which the bank cases have dragged through the courts. The record is as follows:

On April 29, 1931, indictments number 60755, 60747, and 60767 were returned by grand jury, charging conspiracy and accepting deposits while the bank was insolvent.

June 3—Continued by agreement to June 22.
July 14—Continued by agreement to Sept. 14.
Sept. 14—Continued by agreement to Oct. 26.
Oct. 26—Continued for legal arguments to Nov. 13.
Nov. 13—Continued in Judge Walter Stanton's court to Dec. 14 for plea in abatement.
Dec. 14.—Continued in Judge Stanton's court to Dec. 18.
Dec. 18—Continued in same court to Jan. 29.

Jan. 29—Continued by agreement to Feb. 15.
Feb. 15—Continued on order of court to Feb. 24.
Feb. 24—Continued by agreement to March 9.
March 9—Continued on defense motion to March 24.
April 14—Continued by order of court to April 26.
April 26—Continued to April 28 for additional legal arguments.
April 28—Continued on motion of court to May 2.
May 2—Continued to May 5 for additional arguments on motions to abate and quash indictments.
May 5—Judge Stanton takes motions under advisement and will give decision when he is ready.

Another much delayed bank case, that involving the officials of the Roosevelt-Bankers State bank, is on the trial call for today. A continuance in this case is expected because Judge Phillip L. Sullivan, to whose court it is assigned, is now engaged in the Gecht kidnaping case.

SHOWDOWN IN WAUKEGAN BANK CASE DUE TODAY

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county said yesterday he is awaiting a last minute declaration on whether or not there will be a new bank opened in Waukegan before he proceeds with the trial of William H. Miller today. Miller, a former director of the Waukegan State bank, and five others were indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public through false statements regarding the alleged good financial condition of the bank, which was closed July 12.

The other defendants, including State Auditor Oscar Nelson, have their cases pending in other courts. Through changes of venue Miller was brought to trial alone before Judge Edward D. Shurtleff. When the jury was selected last Friday noon the case was continued until this morning and Prosecutor Smith said that unless a new bank was organized by this morning all the defendants would be tried.

Although it was announced Saturday night that the attempt to organize a new bank had failed, Mr. Smith said yesterday the organizers were still at work. It was learned last night that $10,000 additional in stock subscriptions had been bought during the day. This brings the total amount of subscriptions to $385,000, which is approximately the fund desired for the bank's opening.

GEORGE H. KLEHM OF NILES CENTER DIES SUDDENLY

George H. Klehm, 59 years old, for many years a leader in civic and business life in Niles Center, died suddenly yesterday in his home at 5144 Oakton street in the suburb. Mr. Klehm, who until recently operated a general merchandise store with a brother, Edwin, was formerly president of the Niles Center village board. He occupied that post from 1910 until 1922.

Mr. Klehm was chairman of the board of the Niles Center State bank. He was one of the organizers of the Cook County Truck Gardeners and Farmers' association. He was a Mason and a member of the Lake Shore Athletic club. Mr. Klehm was unmarried. Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Eliza Klehm, five sisters and four brothers. Funeral services will be held from the home at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday to St. Peter's Evangelical church.

NOW YOU GET SERVICE WITH BOOTLEG RUM

Slump Cuts Prices on 'Good Stuff.'

The depression is on in the bootlegging business. Patronage has fallen so low that bootleggers are cutting prices and going out for the trade like tobacco drummers. The bootleggers that formerly confined their deliveries to the loop now are delivering as far as Wilson avenue, and glad to get the chance.

Gin, the staple commodity of the bootlegging trade, has come down from $25 to $18 the case of twelve fifths, and some bootleggers say they will deliver it for $16, or six bottles for $8. Alcohol that formerly sold for $10 a gallon now can be had for $4 if a 5 gallon can is ordered. It can be purchased for $6 a single gallon.

Good Bourbon $5 Pint.

"McCoy" Canadian Bourbon whisky costs the bootleggers $65 a case, they say, and deliver it for $5 the pint, leaving them a profit of $55 on a case of 24 pints. Some retailers offer it for $4 a pint, delivered. Good American Bourbon is offered by the bootleggers at $5.50 a pint.

Scotch whisky is divided into three classes by the distributors, Scotch, Canadian Scotch, and "bunk," the latter being a home made product with a corn sugar alcohol base. "Bunk" can be had with any label at $5 a fifth. It comes to the jobbers at $35 a case of twelve bottles. Canadian Scotch, the most popular brands of which are now Miss Perfection, Spey Royal, Chevis Regal, and Highland Cream, retails at $7 a fifth, as compared to $9 or $10 formerly. It comes to the retailers at $75 a case and can be purchased for private parties at that price.

"Real" Scotch Is Scarce.

Real Scotch whisky, which can be had if you know your bootlegger, comes at $90 a case as compared with $130 a year or so ago. The most popular brands of Scotch now available are Buchanan's F. O. L., Old Rarity, Ne Plus Ultra, and Black Label. The supply of real imported Scotch whisky is said to be limited, since boats are the only practicable means of smuggling it in and only small quantities are brought in at a time in this manner.

The bootleggers are resorting to various devices to push their wares. Special prices are quoted on purchases of three bottles or more, and tickets are issued and punched each time a bottle is bought. The last punch means a free bottle.

Model at Fashion Show

Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted and Miss Elizabeth Poor posed in these becoming outfits in a recent fashion show in which young society women acted as mannequins. Mrs. Olmsted will find plenty of use for these lounging pajamas if she purchased them, for she and her husband are leaving shortly to spend the summer in the country near Whitehall, Mich., and such informal togs are very much in order in the summer in the country, you know.

Hairdresser to Early Society Recalls Styles

Work Was Always Done in Milady's Home.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

WHEN fashion goes to the head, tra la! There's no accounting for the dip, the curl, the bob, or the knot that may result from some furious and whimsy feminine caprice.

The bright pageant of history proves it—so does Mrs. Stephen Mauer, who has dressed society's heads for five generations. Yesterday Mrs. Mauer, emphasizing first that women are giving more attention to their crowning glory today than ever before, described prettily some of the amusing and interesting coiffures she once created for Chicago's best ladies.

For during the last 50 or 60 years Mrs. Mauer has visited a good number of the city's prominent homes—the Doanes, the Fields, the Briggs, the Spragues, the Dexters, the Blairs—and has dressed or shampooed approximately 40,000 heads. Nearing her 80th birthday now—it falls on July 30—she lives quietly at 2104 Hudson street, serving only a half dozen old patrons who still insist on her attention.

"My work has always been in the home," said Mrs. Mauer, "for there just wasn't such a thing as a beauty shop in days gone by. A lady might purchase an extra curl or braid downtown, but to have her hair shampooed in a public place, never! Reception days and the weeks of the balls were my busiest time. Often I would hurry back to a customer between a reception and ball to adjust the coiffure, but these hairdresses lasted—generally from Wednesday to Saturday, then from Saturday to Wednesday. That meant two visits a week to each patron."

The Langtry bang, the whim of the well known English actress, the psyche knot, and puffs—lot of them—were the fashions most often demanded of Mrs. Mauer during the 80's and 90's. Also the pretzel, that coiffure built around four twists atop the head. Then there was bandoline, a good deal of it to make scallops and keep the hair slick over the ears.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen and Mrs. Chauncey Keep have been patrons for more than 40 years. For the Marshall Field's Mikado ball of the late 80's and again for a series of World's Fair parties in '93, Mrs. Mauer produced more unusual coiffures on the heads of society's debutantes and matrons.

Some of these were hairdresses that might have vied with the whimsical fancies of the days of the French Louis—a period when, more than at any other time, perhaps, fashion went to the head! Take Ninon de Lensios, for instance, who, to prove her love for M. De Villarceaux, clipped and sent her blond curls to him. And then instead of retiring to a convent until they had grown again she gave a party for Moliere, Boileau, La Rochefoucauld, Christina, the queen of Sweden, and any one else distinguished in Paris, wearing her clipped curls in a style every one agreed one of the most engaging coiffures ever invented.

Since then what has not been puffed into popularity by the phrase "A la Ninon"?—face powder, chiffon, sleeves, blouses, coiffures—everything charming in the world of fashion. By the whims and caprices of the Ninons of the world—of whom Horace Walpole said "Ninons are as scarce in this world as Corneilles"—fashions have been made.

When Louis XIV. fled the complications created by an official queen and three more or less official mistresses to hunt the boar, there blossomed a coiffure that was the rage in France for 30 years. For when a sudden breeze took the hat of his riding companion, the Duchess de Fontanges, with a pretty impudent gesture, she bound her tumbling mass of curls round with her garter, and presto! a hairdress called the "fontange." All France at once adopted it, gradually elaborating it into a monstrosity requiring hours of time, yards of silk, quarts of jewels, and an attendant on a stepladder to compose.

Without Louis XV. there never would have been the gorgeous coiffures of the clever woman, Pompadour, the daughter of a butcher and the wife of a middle class nobody who looked in a mirror, found herself beautiful, knew herself brilliant, and set for herself a goal—the king. A hundred entrancing ways she arranged her hair for him and one of them—the simplest Pompadour—Marie Antoinette copied and as the wife of Louis XVI. worked wonders with it.

If the "fontange" was the forerunner of our present day skyscrapers, what of this construction? Two feet of coiffure was a mere nothing, it took five hours to build. The story is it was only demolished six times a year. But this was the straw that broke the camel's back—the revolution, the guillotine and the once fashionable heads were bobbed—an old French custom, for it made things less difficult for the executioner.

Liberty, equality, fraternity—that was the idea and the style, the forerunner of the pretty shorn heads today.

Outdoor Sport Very Popular on North Shore

Picnic Parties and Games Hold Interest.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IN line with the current tendency toward simplicity and wholesome, inexpensive pleasures, suburban dwellers are learning that outdoor sports are more fun than the most elaborate parties. On Sundays the north shore is dotted with groups of athletically inclined young people who meet for a few hours' practice at the games they used to play in school and then gather at somebody's house for tea or supper.

Baseball, as it is played on the average corner lot, and the more strenuous game of volley ball, may be witnessed on pleasant Sabbath afternoons in Winnetka. The amateur athletes meet on the village green or in Sheridan road park, where there is no danger of breaking windows. On rainy Sundays they bowl or play badminton on the courts of the Winnetka Woman's club. Sometimes they start early in the morning and drive off in cars loaded with balls, bats, tennis racquets, and picnic lunches for a day in the country.

Among the Winnetkans who play baseball or volley ball each week are Harriet, Deborah and Dan Leonard, the daughters and son of John R. Leonard's household; George and Loren Massey, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. George Bragg Massey; Antoinette and Louise Lackner, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Lackner; Miss Margaret Emily Lynde, daughter of the Cornelius Lyndes; Jane McKinney, Louise Fentress, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Manierre, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Magie, Mr. and Mrs. Brownell Bradstreet, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Norem, Mr and Mrs. J. Houstoun M. Clinch, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Veeder, Benjamin Crawford, and Philip Emory Moore.

Most of these young people went picnicking yesterday along the Des Plaines river.

Lighthouse Supper Dance Success.

The Lighthouse supper dance on Saturday evening in the Hotel Sherman was a gay party, but the total proceeds won't be known for a day or so. All of the 250 guests had a grand time, and Dorothy Plamondon, who won a prize of $250, will tell anybody that it was the best party she ever attended. There were lots of carnival games to entertain the guests between dances, and the most popular feature of the evening, we're told, was a new fortune telling machine.

It will be just too bad if any organization is planning to give a large Armistice day benefit, because the forehanded directors of the Red, White and Blue club have announced their choice of the evening as the date of a Red, White and Blue party.

The affair is to be held in the Hotel Sherman and the women will be asked to wear red, white or blue dresses, as they did with such decorative effect at the ball given by the same organization several years ago. This year's affair will not be so elaborate as the previous one, and is to be an informal supper dance instead of a ball.

The Red, White and Blue settlement for children is "scraping along on very little money," but there has been no letup in its good work, and its directors hope that a large sum will be realized through the Armistice day benefit to see them through next year. Arrangements for the supper dance were made at a meeting held last week at the Casino. Mrs. Edward R. Fifield is president of the club.

Mallorca Island Is Popular.

Mrs. Ellen Dudley Root, who gave up her apartment at 70 East Walton place on May 1, is staying at the William S. Monroes' at 64 East Elm street until she leaves on June 6 for New York. She and her daughter, Denyse, will sail on June 11 for Barcelona, from where they will go to the island of Mallorca in the Balearic islands for the summer.

Enthusiastic reports from every one who goes there make one think Mallorca must be an ideal place, particularly in these days of reduced incomes. Hotel accommodations are said to be very reasonable—one Chicagoan who has been there for several months writes that she pays $1.60 a day for a lovely room with a balcony which overlooks the ocean and three delicious meals, and the most amazing part is that when a guest from one hotel dines or lunches at another hotel she pays nothing for that meal.

The Mallorcans go on the theory that if one pays for three meals a day at one hotel one is entitled to three meals, wherever they are eaten! The hotels must have some method of compensating each other, but no tourist there pays twice for any meal, which makes it nice, doesn't it?

Villas are unbelievably inexpensive to lease, too, although prices may be up by next winter, so great was the influx of tourists to the island this year. Mrs. Susan Rowe Lord and Mrs. Frances Keyes Stillwell had a villa there this last year and they have a three year lease. Mrs. Lord is back at her charming New England residence in Dorset, Vt., for the summer, and Mrs. Stillwell is in Paris, but she expects to spend July at the villa with her daughter, Mrs. F. P. Rust of Washington. Mrs. Stillwell will be in Chicago for a visit in November, but only for a brief one, for she and Mrs. Lord are planning to spend the winter again in Mallorca.

Among other Chicagoans there this spring were Mrs. A. Merrill Colt and her daughters, Elizabeth, Eleanor, and Celia, who have been living in Cannes but who went to Mallorca for the girls' spring vacation from school.

The John Roots, who have lived at 73 East Elm street since their marriage in May, 1930, have moved to an apartment at 70 East Walton place.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds are leaving tomorrow for New York to sail Tuesday for at least two months in Europe. When they return to Chicago it will be just to close up their apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive and then they will go on to Califor-

Helen Hayes Brings Engaging Comedy to the Spring Stage

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

HELEN HAYES, one of the brightest little jewels in the stage's somewhat battered crown, came to the Harris theater last night in "The Good Fairy," an impish and irresponsible frolic by the well known Mr. Molnar, whose works constitute most of the export trade of the state of Hungary. This comedy has been one of the popular diversions of the New York season, and its arrival in Chicago, graced by Miss Hayes' buoyant skill, gives a jaunty aspect to the spring playbills.

This quaint and engaging piece gives Miss Hayes the rôle of a movie theater usherette whose birdlike mind has become softened by the potent influences of the cinema. She lives in a dream of sentimental film captions, and dramatizes herself in the terms of Hollywood romance and splendor. She calls herself a "glowworm" because of her employment in flashlighting the customers to their seats, and when she quits her job in search of adventures that conform to her cinematic imagination she flutters around like an eccentric insect, pretending that she is an elf who brings good luck to every one. She wants to make people happy, and she tries hard to be a sinner in order to enrich a total stranger.

The child is slightly daffy, and she bewilders every one with her fantastic line of moonstruck talk. She is as unreal as one of Titania's children, and yet she is also as genuine as any lively flapper out for a lark. She brings farcical distractions, worriments and alarms to several sound gentlemen of Budapest in the course of her crazy activities; and she ends as a dazzling success, proving that there is some merit in a motion picture education after all.

This odd rôle brings Miss Hayes back into the "gamine" repertory, and gives her talent for gay and elfin roguery an admirable opportunity. Her performance of this Hungarian glowworm girl, with paprika dust on her wings, is one of the brilliant achievements of the theatrical year.

Mr. Molnar is a dreaming cynic who writes his plays with strokes of worldliness and dashes of ironical poetry. He tells the story of his "good fairy's" career as a young woman of pleasure daringly, like a bold bad man of Budapest, and also tenderly and touchingly. The play has the casual, free and easy Molnar manner; and it breaks all the drama's laws by having two endings—one in which the glowworm marries a waiter and another in which she marries a cabinet minister. Molnar insists in his epilogue that the latter is the more plausible termination of the tale.

Walter Connolly's characterization of the shabby, briefless lawyer to whom the "good fairy" brings her most important blessings is a rich and mellow portrait—a detailed and amusingly realistic study by an expert at this sort of thing. Oddly enough, Mr. Connolly's make-up bears a striking resemblance to pictures of Balzac in middle age. The other members of the cast are effective, and the staging has the illusion and authority that is always found in Gilbert Miller's productions.

"THE GOOD FAIRY."

Bishop Stewart Officiates at Grandson's Baptism

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The annual concert of the Chicago Lutheran Teachers chorus—there have now been thirty-six in the series—took place at Orchestra hall yesterday under the direction of Dr. George L. Tenney. An adult chorus of over 200, a children's chorus almost as large, and five soloists, Margaret Lester, Edna Thiele, Walter Boydston, Leonard Huber, and Luke Gask, sang the program to accompaniments played by G. Archer Farrell and Ruth Sanderson Phillips at two pianos and William Lester at the organ.

Handel, represented by excerpts from "Judas Maccabaeus," the instrumental concerto in B flat, and other excerpts from "Israel in Egypt," Mendelssohn, with excerpts from "Elijah" and the "Hymn of Praise," two chorales, and two numbers from Beethoven's "Mount of Olives" made up the program, an elaborate one, but well learned and fully in the ability of the participants. The chorus is possessed of excellent tone and by virtue of its accuracy it transmits words quite as well as any chorus in Chicago. To these virtues Dr. Tenney has added flexibility of tempo and a wide range of expressiveness.

Andre Skalski, who has interested himself in many fields of music from opera to chamber music, appeared at Curtiss hall yesterday afternoon in a piano recital. His program was more or less unconventional and so was his performance thereof, two facts which did not in the least stand in the way of his effectiveness as a soloist.

Best Fashions for Hot Days Full of Holes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

CRISP, cool fashion news for sudden spurts of hot weather is the chief interest of any shopper . . . particularly if the fashion facts frankly prove that clothes and matching accessories can be found with good frigid refreshing possibilities.

Sultry summers and even stifling springs and all those poetically rare days in June that would wilt the enthusiasm of a Hottentot can be lived through nicely if you know just how far you can safely and sanely go without too many clothes.

One of the grandest things about belonging to the weaker sex is the sensible freedom we have grabbed for ourselves in the matter of a slim pound or two of clothes for warm weather, but this summer will probably go down in all masculine histories as the year the incomprehensible females went quite made over clothes that, to the more casual eye, looked too much like a mess of holes to be exactly the stuff for dresses.

But before many weeks have sizzled into forgetfulness the loudest of our male critics will be green and goggled-eyed with envy, for these holes or meshes are the best air cooled discovery weary, wilting women have had thrust upon them since flocks of petticoats were consigned to missionary barrels.

You can't help but be cool and collected in frocks made of holes, and this new supercool and airy mesh makers went into the serious business of meshing everything, consequently the correct summer wardrobe begins with mesh and ends with mesh.

Starting feet first, you'll find any and every kind of mesh imaginable . . . pumps of white kidskin with clever little patterns and insets of white mesh fabric . . . some models are all of mesh with just the outlining bands of kidskin . . . some mighty good looking pumps are of white mesh ith black and red stitchings that remind you of old fashioned samplers with colored stitched borders . . . others are of white with a strong contrast of black only.

Tremendously smart tie oxfords are also being shown in all Chicago shops . . . these, too, go in for holes of all sizes with heels of kidskin and slender pipings also of kidskin. Mesh hose are old stories retold with fashionable emphasis on the new nude shades for warm weather. Mesh gloves do everything for helping hands that assist in making a perfect costume . . . you'll find them plain and demurely mitlike or startlingly 1932 with double ruchings and tuckings at the wrist.

But the really inside information on the popularity of the meshes is a new mesh lingerie . . . and while lingerie designers, in the last few years have understandingly and most sympathetically used the minimum amount of material and wisely discarded everything but the sheerest of silks and voiles, this year they have surpassed themselves and earned lasting feminine gratitude by fashioning all the few but necessary unmentionables of this new super-cool and airy mesh material.

There isn't anything you need for your summer comfort that is not offered in large or small holed patterns . . . every layer you wear from the first to the last can be of fabric that is one hole after another. You will have the outward appearance sometimes of a nubby, bumpy, and thin turkish towel . . . at other times you'll resemble the nets of lace curtains that used to hang in all parlors when grandmother was very young and interested in the neighbors directly across the way . . . and then again you clothe yourself in dresses that couldn't have been copied from anything else but the stuff on the back of a porous plaster.

Discreet Flares Threaten Rule of Slim Silhouette

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Here and there amongst the slim and narrow silhouettes that predominate in Paris daytime styles is a brand new line that such houses as Madeleine Vionnet, Mainbocher, and Augustabernard are responsible for. This silhouette is marked by coats and jackets that begin to flare just below the shoulderblades and skirts that have a slight, discreet flare in front to balance the back. The same idea is to be found in a few evening dresses at the houses of Mainbocher and of Vionnet, but is found in the skirts, and the back flare that begins below the shoulderblades is held down at a high waistline by a belt.

The way this kind of flare looks in daytime clothes is shown in the Augustabernard silk suit in our sketch. This suit is made of black silk crêpe marocain and the hip-length jacket is flared by bias cutting from the shoulderblades at the back. In front it wraps around and opens in two small revers above the waistline.

There is no collar, but a small scarf of the crêpe kind is placed at the back of the neckline. The sleeves are kimono, and the bell cuffs begin at the elbows. This kind of soft jacket is the height of chic and is worn by some of the most fashionable women in Paris.

The skirt of black crêpe has a deep plait in front to give it a slight flare. A white blouse is worn with this suit.

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING INSTALLMENT 1.

A FORLORN EXISTENCE.

It was raining, and Esmee's heart wept. She sat before her typewriter, pale, with a dazed and sorrowful look, her fragile fingers moving quickly over the keys, and making a great many mistakes.

The office was filled with a dismal gray light. Every one else was preoccupied, intent. The assistant bookkeeper snapped on the green shaded lamp over his desk, and his blond hair glittered in the light. That made her think of her brother, Lew, and she sighed. And thought of Jimmy, her betrothed, and sighed again. It depressed her intolerably to think of Jimmy. Her fingers faltered. She sat staring out at the gray sky, lost in what Miss Bartram, with considerable irritation, called "one of her moony fits." There were two urgent worries in her mind. One was the gas bill, which had to be paid tomorrow, and which no member of the family was able to pay. The other was an engagement with Jimmy for that evening. Of course, she wanted to see him—but he was so difficult to manage. . . . In her heart, she was afraid of Jimmy.

"I don't know how to handle him," she admitted to herself.

She was not very sure of anything in this world, not quite sure if Jimmy loved her, or if she were loveable, or if she were really pretty. She wanted to get up and look in a mirror just to see. . . . But it wouldn't do, and she stayed where she was, her cropped hair wildly ruffled. On her childishly slender neck her little head had the look of a disheveled flower. She was tall, and too thin, except for her softly rounded cheeks; her gray eyes seemed enormous and her mouth so wide; all eyes and mouth her face was, and unreasonably, inexplicably charming. She was eighteen, but she was a baby, a lost child. . . . She gave another little forlorn sigh, and began to type again.

"Telephone, Miss Sully!"

She sprang up and hastened to the telephone on the competent Miss Bartram's desk.

"Miss Sully?" asked a brisk feminine voice. "This is Helen Morelli. My dear, I want you to come to a little cocktail party tomorrow. There'll be some interesting people here, artists and writers, and so on. Six o'clock!"

"I'd love it," cried Esmee, and turned from the telephone with a face grown radiant. For a moment she contemplated telling Miss Bartram about this fascinating invitation, but that calm, efficient face checked her, and she went back to her work in a warm glow of happiness.

Last summer she had worked for two weeeks in Helen Morelli's bookshop in Greenwich Village, and Mrs. Morelli had taken a fancy to her.

"You're like a little anemone, child!" she had said. "Artists would simply rave over you! You've got to meet people. I'll see to that."

But the regular assistant had come back from her vacation and Esmee had left, and Mrs. Morelli had apparently forgotten her; until today. But this was magnificent atonement.

"A cocktail party . . ." thought Esmee, a little alarmed by her ignorance of the etiquette of the occasion. "I can borrow Cynthia's white gloves. . . . Artists and writers. . . . Suppose there is an artist who wants to paint me. . . . That would do Jimmy all the good in the world. . . ."

For in her heart there was always the hope of impressing Jimmy, even a little, the hope of gaining even one small advantage. It was something to have this invitation. He had broken several engagements with her, telephoned some excuse, but she had never had any excuses, any other business or pleasure. And he knew it. For all her loyal reticence about her people, he had seen how things were; he was very well aware of the lamentable estate of the Sullys.

"And he could help," she thought. "He could get jobs for Lew and Cynthia. . . ."

For Jimmy had strange powers, strange influence. Sometimes he came driving a smart roadster with a special license, which he said belonged to a friend of his. He could get into certain restaurants and get what he pleased without paying.

"I'm in right," he had told her, and some instinct had kept her from asking for any further explanation.

"But I've got to know all about it before I marry him," she thought. "And he's got to promise to help Lew and Cyn."

That was all very well, sitting in the subway, on her way uptown, among a crowd of strangers. But along with Jimmy, it was not so easy to talk about what he had got to do.

"Well, if he's never any nicer than he is now, I'll never marry him," she thought.

The Sullys were living, for the time, on Haven avenue, a long walk from the subway. Her umbrella leaked, the rain blew in her face; she was chilly and wet and miserable before she reached the house. And she knew, and took it for granted, that there would be no cheer waiting for her there. She could only dimly remember the days before her father had begun his downhill course, when they had had a home that was cheerful, comfortable, not disgraceful. For so many years it had been like this. . . .

Yet there was no bitterness in her heart, no blame for any one; only pity and tenderness and a sad patience. She rang the bell in the lobby, and the latch clicked. That was one good thing, anyhow. It meant that somebody was home. Often there was no one, for poor Mrs. Sully liked to go to the pictures when she had the price, and her ideas of time were vague.

Esmee went up the four flights of stairs to their own door. That bell was broken, so she knocked, and presently her mother opened it.

"Well, pet!" she said.

A magnificent wreck of a woman, Mrs. Sully, tall, stout, handsome, regal, even in her unseemly wrapper.

"Well, Mother!" said Esmee. "Lew home?"

"Not yet," Mrs. Sully answered. "Perhaps he's got some overtime."

For that was the best thing she could imagine for her son, a little extra work for that tired boy.

Esmee went along the hall to the dingy little cubicle she shared with her sister, and found Cynthia lying on the bed polishing her nails, a lovely creature, dark and tragic.

"Hello, Es, darling," she said. "Pleasing news! Bill can get us into that dress rehearsal tonight."

"I can't," Esmee answered. "Jimmy's coming over."

"O, Jimmy!" cried her sister. "Esmee, why are you so stupid about him? You're simply—cringing."

In this slovenly home, in all her humiliation and rudeness, lovely Cynthia kept the tone, the manner of the old ways. And regardless of the debacle of her life, kept a cool, scornful pride. But Esmee wasn't proud. She was anxious and confused.

"I'm not cringing," she said. "I told him he could come, and it would be awfully rude and horrible to go out."

"Do him good!" said Cynthia. "Don't you see——?"

"Cynthia, pet!" protested Mrs. Sully from the doorway. "Don't say such things. The best thing possible for Esmee is to marry a man who's fond of her and who'll look after her."

"Jimmy'll marry her and look after her—when Hell freezes over," said Cynthia. "I should think anybody could see what he's after."

"Shut up!" said Esmee unconvincingly, and taking off her hat and coat stood contemplating her meager wardrobe with unseeing eyes. She was reviewing in her mind the course of her engagement to James Consadine.

It was six months ago that she had met him. She and Lew had gone to the delicatessen together on one of Mrs. Sully's frantic errands, and when they returned a man was standing on the steps of the apartment house, a debonair, handsome young fellow, very well dressed.

"Hello, Sully!" he had said. "Been waiting for you."

But all the time his eyes had been on Esmee, that steady, smiling glance she had learned to know so well. Lew had turned sullen.

"All right," he had said. "Got your car here? I'll go with you."

"Introduce me!" Jimmy had said.

"It's my sister," Lew had said curtly. "You take these things upstairs, Esmee."

But Jimmy had wanted her to come out in the car, too, and she had accepted, in spite of Lew's angry glance. She had never been in a car like that. She had never met a man who looked at her as young Consadine did, and it had enchanted her.

"Lew, I've got to have some fun!" she had cried when they had got home and he began to storm at her. "Lew, I really do have a miserable life! All the other girls in the office go out with boys and have some good times at least."

"Well, you keep away from Consadine!" Lew had said, "or you'll make trouble."

Another War Is Theme of 'Death Rattle'

Hanns Gobsch Describes Outbreak of 1934.

"Death Rattle," by Hanns Gobsch [Little-Brown].

HANNS GOBSCH achieved distinguished success in Germany with his novel "Death Rattle." Emil Ludwig says of it, "It starts with a trifle; it ends with the 'Twilight of the Gods.' This book is excellently done." Already "Death Rattle" is being translated and published in nine countries; negotiations for its appearance in six others are now being made.

HANNS GOBSCH.

Hanns Gobsch has chosen Europe in the year 1934 for the setting of his novel. Leon Brandt, the French minister of foreign affairs, is speeding over the Atlantic in his enormous airplane, the Helios, to call on the government in Washington when a border shooting occurs in Albania. At first it seems like a minor affair, but it soon becomes evident that serious consequences may result from the stray shot of the Jugoslavian sentry.

Brandt, working for international peace, with a huge organization of the masses of Europe behind him, rushes home to quell the murmurs in France. Capponi, the Italian dictator, has rushed his air forces to Albania supposedly to defend that much coveted country from Jugoslavia. And the old prime minister of France has sent an ultimatum to Italy. Europe is suddenly torn apart and threatened with a war that will surely bring annihilation to the western world.

Loses Fight for Peace.

Leon Brandt organizes his forces, retires from the cabinet and insists that peace be maintained. He has the workers of the world behind him. One thing leads to another until, with a crowning act of injustice, Italy invades France and Brandt is ironically forced to declare war on her. He has failed in his project.

As a political novel "Death Rattle" is interesting enough and not too wildly impossible. Suspense is ably sustained even though the imagination of the author remains unchecked. Not one character, from the stern, fierce mankind loving Leon to the wild, red haired Rhée, attains reality. When the characters aren't types like Rhée and the cold, proud aristocrat Germaine, they represent ideas. Some people say it is too much to expect a novel of action or of ideas to contain characters that are real or plausible. Those some people will find "Death Rattle" wholly satisfactory.

The book is filled with long conversations, monologues on various political theories. The author strives to give the impression that his characters think as much, and as violently if not as accurately and interestingly, as they act. There are many cynical passages about the machinations of politicians and diplomats. "Death Rattle" is an indictment, though an emotional rather than intellectual one, of war.

Blood and Thunder Melodrama.

The last part of the book is excellent melodrama of a blood and thunder type. It makes chills run up and down the spine of the determinedly objective reader. Wagner's imagination in its maddest moments would seem like a pale flicker of light beside the imaginative conflagration of Hanns Gobsch. To those who like their mangled bodies really mangled and their streams of blood very red, the last section of "Death Rattle" will seem one of the best of its kind. The concluding paragraph says: "A tired tree dropped its prematurely ripe fruits to the ground. To gather them came Russian armies marching towards the frontiers of central Europe through soviet Poland." That, if you put faith in Hanns Gobsch, is the future of the western world.

The structure of the novel is above reproach. The chapters are not too long nor too tedious. The style on the whole is good, though there are a few clichés like "Brandt's eyes were those of a tortured animal" and "Fear glazed his eyes."

Published today, "The Interne," by Wallace Thurman and A. L. Furman [Macaulay], brings with it many scandalous tales about hospital life, told, allegedly, from the inside. For readers who like scandal [and not much else] in big doses this will serve very nicely. It purports to be a true story.

Cyrena Van Gordon to Crown Queen at Benefit Festival

Cyrena Van Gordon, opera singer, returned to Chicago yesterday for the first time since her marriage in New York on Feb. 27 to Howard Dunbar Smith, president of the Consolidated Copper Mines company. She will crown the May queen Wednesday evening at the festival staged in the Chicago Stadium for the benefit of unemployed business women.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frank Vance Storrs and daughter, Mrs. Daniel E. Sickles, have returned from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Terry West have returned from Palm Beach to Mayfair house.

Mrs. Graeme Donald gave a luncheon yesterday at the Ritz-Carlton for Mrs. Edmund Randolph Jr.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Gilmore Kerley have returned from New Orleans and will be at the Westbury until they go for the summer to Hilltop, Sharon, Conn.

Example of Natural Beauty

Dorothy Mackail Keeps Locks the Color Nature Painted 'Em

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

When you run across a blond, these days, who is willing to remain the blond that nature made her, you wonder: why the mad passion for blonder and blonder locks of the dyed and bleached variety? There is something so nice and softening about the natural shade.

Of course, I'm not one of the nature cranks who believes that any kind of hair is better than dyed or bleached hair. There are heads that nature hasn't done so darned right by—or the years haven't turned the hairs an even tone. In which case dyeing or bleaching might be a great improvement. And some of the honey blonds or blonds of very young skin and bright eye whose hair is touched up aren't so hard on the eye, either. Nevertheless, when you meet a NATURAL your eye is somehow allowed a sweet content not otherwise permitted it.

Dorothy Mackaill is the natural blond who sets me to wondering why more of our young women are not content to let well enough alone. A bit unique in her world of screen workers, she lets her hair stay its natural shade; also, she wears it in a very frank bob, soft and loose about the face. No extra inch or two in the back for curls or knot.

It suits her personal style and general makeup well. Miss Mackaill is a forthright personality, intelligent, interesting, and blissfully free from the well known bunk with which the screen idol too frequently exploits herself. One thing I notice about the screen stars who remain before the klieg lights beyond the five year allotted time is that they survive because they have brains, and use them. Beauty without intelligence is here today and gone tomorrow.

From Miss Mackaill you hear none of the parrot-like repetition of a smart press agent's brain, nor attempt to solve the problems of the universe, as others have done in my hearing. But get Miss Mackaill talking on swimming and you'll order a bathing suit on the way home from your date with her. One look at that waistline of hers, the silhouette without an extra ounce on it, and you'll agree with her that swimming must be the greatest exercise on earth.

Miss Mackaill swims practically the year around and recommends the sport for any ailment of flesh (or mind) that might overtake us. That exquisitely slim waistline of hers, however, is all we daughters of Eve should need for argument.

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

A grateful country provided a great deal more than six pounds, fourteen shillings, when the whole account appeared in the newspapers on the following day.

One city corporation alone presented Roland with a purse which, when invested, yielded a greater income than he would have had as secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough.

Roland, in short, found himself a national hero—which became so strenuous a business that it was not until the following evening that he had any opportunity for a quiet talk with Joyce. Their brief meeting in her flat the previous night was wholly given over to realization of the fact that he was free.

"I don't mind the tan," she said critically, "But you've still got some of those horrible wrinkles. I wish your hair would start growing like it did before."

"Your job is to take out the wrinkles!" he laughed back, "as I'm afraid we can't get at Connie. I can't help feeling glad she's got away, but—from Larpent's point of view—wasn't it rather silly to send you there that night? It was as good as asking her to bolt."

"I believe that's what he wanted. He told me that the Whisperer had got her in his power by some horrible blackmailing. And, you see, he wanted to get at you. He knew from the first what you were doing. He couldn't arrest you and then ask you to work for him. So that was where I came in."

"You seem to have come in quite a lot. I don't feel particularly pleased about Larpent sending you to the Whisperer, making you keep in touch with him."

"But he was quite safe when he was being Sir Glazeborough," she pointed out. "You see, he—Sir Henry—the Whisperer—as Mr. Larpent told me, was always a bit afraid of you. It was he who kept in touch with me—always talking about you—always trying to find out whether you had told me what you were really doing. And as you had not, of course, I couldn't give you away. And then, Mr. Larpent made me work it up. That night we went to his flat we brought him a false clew, pretending you had rung me up to say you had got a job as a chauffeur and that you wanted to see me."

"But how would that help?"

"Mr. Larpent had a sort of suspicion from the first—but he wasn't at all sure. Gradually, in his conversations with me, Mr. Larpent became almost certain. They found finger prints, which were the same as Sir Henry Glazeborough's, in that house in St. John's wood. Then Mr. Larpent told me how very valuable you had been to them. And I felt so proud. And then that awful night when the Whisperer shut you up in the bungalow—"

"We've got to forget it, child!" he said tenderly. "This flat will always remind you of it. And I say, look here, do you realize that after that check has been officially handed over to us next Thursday we shall have rather more than six hundred a year—and further that I've no intention of idling on it?"

She looked at him questioningly and he went on:

"What is the sense of waiting until September? I could get a special license tomorrow."

"But——"

THE END.

Outdoor Sport Very Popular on North Shore

nia. We understand their lovely new Lake Forest house is to remain closed until "better times," when it will be offered for sale, as will the Lake Shore drive apartment, so this seems to indicate pretty definitely that the Reynoldses are leaving Chicago for good.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Martin Stevenson (Virginia Doering), who were married at St. Chrysostom's shortly after Easter, have taken a house in Bronxville, that pretty suburb of New York. Their address is 17 Hamilton avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering Jr., who motored east a few weeks ago to visit their daughter and son-in-law, have returned to Chicago.

Miss Jean Rumsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Actell Rumsey of 64 East Elm street, has been chosen as one of the 30 juniors who will carry the ivy chain in the tradtional Ivy day exercises at Smith college. The girls are chosen for outstanding contributions to college life, and in addition to the Ivy day functions they usher at the president's reception, commencement, and other events of the closing week of school.

Miss Rumsey, with her parents and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Rumsey, will probably spend most of the summer at the family's camp in northern Michigan.

Travel News; Summer Plans.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston of 1520 Dearborn parkway are still undecided about plans fo rthe summer. They have been considering a trip of some sort, but Mrs. Johnston says they'll probably take a house in Lake Forest as usual. Their niece, Miss Ethel Johnston, who left Dobbs Ferry about a month ago because of illness, will not return to school until next fall. Miss Mary F. Mitchell presides as chaperon over the house which Ethel and her brothers, Hulburd and Hugh, occupy at 1425 State parkway.

Mrs. Waller Borden spent the weekend in Lake Forest with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Pirie [Betty Borden].

Mrs. Daniel Peterkin and Miss Jeanette Peterkin, who spent the late winter and spring in Europe, returned to Chicago on Wednesday and went to the family estate at Lake Geneva for the week-end. Miss Peterkin is to continue her painting during the summer and her little studio in the garden at Lake Geneva has been put in readiness for her.

Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith, in addition to her work as publicity chairman for the Lighthouse party, has found time these last few weeks to purchase a lot of summer clothes and has her trunks packed in readiness to depart tonight with her husband for a visit in Pasadena with Mr. Smith's mother. Mrs. Theodore White Smith, and his sister, Miss Theodosia Smith. Mr. Smith will return to Chicago in about three weeks, but his wife will stay on in the west for six weeks or more.

Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, will go to New York this week to help her daughter, Eleanor, make preparations for her graduation from the French school on the 29th. They'll make some visits with eastern friends before starting back for Chicago, and as soon as they return the Litsinger family will move out to their Lake Forest house for the summer.

Opening of "Don Pasquale."

The American Opera society has reserved 100 seats for the opening of "Don Pasquale," to be sung in English this evening at the Blackstone theater. Among those who will have guests are Mrs. Waller Borden, Miss Emily Larned, and Mrs. Archibald Freer, all of whom are giving dinner parties beforehand. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Dr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Henry H. Reuss, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman T. Walker, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs, Frederick B. Tuttle, Miss Nellie Carpenter, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jarrett.

"The Breadline Frolics" will be presented this evening at the Haven school in Evanston. The performance is being sponsored by the Evanston board of the Northwestern university settlement, which will share the proceeds with the unemployed.

The Lake Shore League of Women Voters will hold a luncheon meeting at 1 o'clock today at the Fortnightly club. Mrs. A. A. Carpenter will report on the recent convention of the National league in Detroit.

The Winnetka branch of the Infant Welfare society will hold open house today and Wednesday at its welfare station to acquaint contributors with the work that is being done. Members of the group will hold a meeting at 11 o'clock this morning at the residence of Mrs. Harve C. Badgerow at 576 Arbor Vitae road.

The Wheaton Drama club will present "Mr. Pim Passes By" this evening at the Riverside-Brookfield High school under the auspices of the Riverside Friends of the Library. Funds will go toward the maintenance of the beautiful new library in Riverside.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Vice President Curtis attended the races at Pimlico, Md., yesterday, while his sister, Mrs. Gann, was among those at the national capital horse show.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Krucoff have announced the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Raymond M. Grossman of Chicago. Mr. Grossman is a graduate of George Washington university and now is connected with a Chicago law firm. The wedding will take place this summer.

Legion Meeting.

The Marshall Field company post 11 of the American Legion will hold its annual May meeting in conjunction with McKinley camp 6 and Evanston camp 57 and the United Spanish War Veterans tomorrow evening at a dinner in the men's grill of Marshall Field annex. Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom will be the speaker.

Bride

MRS. CHARLES THOMAS LANGAN.

Mrs. Mary McLaughlin of 1331 North Dearborn street announces the marriage of her daughter, Agnes Loraine, to Charles Thomas Langan, son of James Langan of 6629 Greenview avenue, on Saturday afternoon at Immaculate Conception church, with the Rev. John Fleming officiating.

WifeComplains About Mate; Lauds Herself

She's Simply Perfect in Her Own Estimation.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The husband is this and that or both. The wife is a GOOD woman, always going to be a good woman—in her own opinion! The thing she misses entirely is that there is a difference between being a good woman and a goody woman.

Your honest-to-goodness good woman is the last one in the world to brag about it. The goody woman constantly brags. She brags to herself and to every one who will listen. As one of our better psychologists intimates, the goody woman operates purely from a desire for applause for her goodness. And that is why these self-called good women are often the worst trial in the world to live with. Their very goody-ness drives men to behavior they might not be guilty of were they not constantly confronted with the angelic qualities of said wives.

Undoubtedly many good women, really good women, are tried by husbands—neglected by them, too. Not given the consideration that is their due. But these are invariably the last to broadcast their trials.

Consistently the applause seeker is given to magnifying the faults of a mate just by way of amplifying her own self-glory. After all, being a virtuous woman, a decent one, doesn't entitle one to a crown. Womanly virtue is a most commendable quality, surely, but there's nothing unique about its possession—among women. In fact, it is the exceptional woman whose personal preference is not on the side of virtue.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!
Maiden, marry while you can
That upright, though poor young man!
Else you'll live to rue the day
That you bade him go away.
Though in riches you may roll
They won't satisfy your soul
Though you trail through marble halls
You'll miss—love in overalls!
And he to whom you said no—
Where the dickens will HE go . . . ?
Spurned, disheartened, on the brink
Of despair, poor Jim may—drink!
Or worse fate, to spirits low
MAY become a—pipolo . . . !
[Terrible prospect?]
Take no chance with happiness
When Jim says "WILT?"
You say "YES!"
THAT'S the moral served to one
By this "Sinners in the Sun."

Not so many years ago, little boys and their elephant friends notwithstanding, that definition which now strikes us as so amazing was pretty much accepted as the truth and just about the whole truth. For while agriculturists and stock raisers had for some time appreciated the value of peanuts as feed, it has been only in the last few years that the housewife has granted it a place as a food, and admitted that if it gives health and happiness to hogs and piglets it will do as much for husbands and growing youngsters.

So now, almost overnight, peanuts—all nuts, in fact—have come out of the class of between-meal amusements and have taken their rightful place on the menu. They're a valuable source of fat, protein, ash, and carbohydrates. And while we wholeheartedly grant the important place that meat deserves in our week's dietary, we sometimes find ourselves looking around for a pleasant type of meat supplement which can take over the responsibility of furnishing us with a good share of the required protein for some particular day.

I have found that peanuts and their product — peanut butter — solve this problem in a host of interesting ways. There's a peanut butter and carrot loaf I want to tell you about. And there are hearty peanut breads, roasts, soufflés, scrapples, hamburgers, and mock meat pies. Peanut butter gives a delectable flavor and texture to potato croquettes—and it's delicious baked with cottage cheese!

But you want plans and specifications, not titles—so here they are—four exciting ways of introducing nuts as the pièce de résistance of the meal.

PEANUT ROAST.

3 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion.
2 tablespoons fat
½ cup hot water
1¾ cups chopped peanuts
2 eggs
1½ cups bread crumbs
½ cup mashed vegetables [peas, carrots, beans, etc.]
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons lemon or orange juice

Pan fry the celery and onion in the fat until they are tender and brown. Add the hot water and simmer five minutes. Combine the remaining ingredients and mix with the celery and onion. Form into a loaf and place in a greased baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] forty minutes. Serve hot with tomato sauce.

PEANUT AND CARROT LOAF.

1 cup chopped raw carrots
1 cup baked beans in tomato sauce
2 tablespoons butter
3 eggs, well beaten
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
Salt and pepper

Blend all the ingredients thoroughly and pack into a greased tin. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] about one hour.

PEANUT BUTTER SOUFFLE.

2-3 cup peanut butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter
1-3 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups scalded milk
5 eggs, separated

Work together the first five ingredients until blended, and then cook over low flame five minutes. Stir in the scalded milk and continue cooking until thick and smooth. Pour over the beaten egg yolks, cool, and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Turn into a greased pan, place in a shallow pan of warm water, and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] thirty-five minutes.

PEANUT SCRAPPLE.

Stir one cup of yellow cornmeal into one quart of boiling water. Add one teaspoon of salt and cook in a double boiler one hour. Add one and two-thirds cups chopped peanuts and a flavoring of sage and paprika. Cook a few minutes longer, then spread out thin in buttered tins to cool. When set, cut in pieces and roll in egg and breadcrumbs. Sauté, or deep-fat fry until brown.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 15.—[Special.]—The pilgrims couldn't have been any happier when they landed on Plymouth Rock in this vicinity several years ago than were the White Sox when they landed at Braves' field this afternoon to battle the Red Sox.

Our boys were so exuberant at the prospect of encountering an outfit even more beset with troubles than themselves that they stepped out and made eight runs in the first two innings. They flattened out a bit after this giddy spell, but their courage and joyous spirit prevailed to an eventual 9 to 2 triumph. The Chicagoans now will have to lose three straight to depart from Boston in last place.

No. 1 for Vic.

Vic Frasier pitched the entire game to achieve his first victory in seven starts and would have accomplished a shutout but for the efforts of Smead Jolley, a well known member of the White Sox Alumni association. In the fourth Smead drove in the first run off Vic and placed the other one in scoring position at third base.

The White Sox made only one run after old Wilcy Moore tottered out of the game at the end of the second inning, but they surely were brutal enough in their treatment of the aged gentleman, making nine hits in his two inning tenancy, as compared with five the rest of the way against Lisenbee and Michaels. Bob Fothergill led the Sox attack with a homer and two singles, good for a total of four runs. Bob Seeds singled his first three times up and Lu Blue with a single and a double scored two runs and drove in two.

The Fast Is Over.

The eight runs scored in the first two innings broke a scoreless fast of twenty-three consecutive innings and the total was one higher than the total they made since they beat the Senators nine days ago. Immediately prior to today, the Sox had made seven runs in forty-one innings, so you can imagine how happy they were today.

If you are a Sox fan you'd better clip the following and have it mounted on linen.

Funk opened the game with a single to right but was forced by Selph. Seeds singled to right and Selph went to third. Kress walked, filling the bases. Then Blue singled to center, Selph and Seeds scoring and Kress reaching third. Fothergill singled to center, scoring Kress and putting Blue on third. Fothergill stole second. Then Moore loosed a wild pitch, Blue scoring and Fothergill taking third. Appling fanned. Berry walked and stole second. Then Frasier fanned.

Watwood Doubles.

In the second inning Selph, Seeds and Kress singled successively after one was out, and after Blue had flied out, Fothergill knocked his second and the Sox third homer of the year, a drive into the left field bleachers. The net of these things was four runs. The inning ended when Appling tried to make a double out of his single.

Aside from a silly attempt to work a double steal with none out in the fourth the Sox stirred up little activity until the seventh, when Blue doubled with one out and came home on Fothergill's single.

Of the seven hits made off Frasier, four were propelled by Chicago alumni, Jolley with two singles and Watwood with a double and a single. The double was the only extra baser off Vic.

Pennant Waving Fete Is Ruined by Boston.

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—(AP)—The world champion Cardinals were defeated, 8 to 3, by the Boston Braves today—the day when the pennant emblematic of St. Louis' victory over the Philadelphia Athletics last year, was raised over Sportsman's Park. Paul Derringer, who started for the Cardinals, was retired in two innings and was followed by Lindsey, Stout and Carleton. Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, and President John Heydler of the National league were present at the flag raising ceremonies today. The Cardinal players of last year were presented with diamond rings by Commissioner Landis.

GIANTS WHIP REDS, 9 TO 1.

Cincinnati, O., May 15.—(AP)—The New York Giants fell on four Cincinnati Reds' pitchers today and won, 9 to 1. The Reds' lone tally came in the eighth on two singles and an out at first that brought a shower of pop bottles to the field. Grantham hit a bounder toward first that jumped over Terry's head. However, Critz backed up Terry and slid into the sack with the ball about the same time Grantham did. Play was held up seven minutes by the protests after Grantham was called out by Umpire William Klem.

WHEN AN UMPIRE GUESSED RIGHT

Charley Grimm stretches for Woody English's throw from third base and Dick Bartell, Phillies' shortstop, is safe at first in the first inning of yesterday's game. A similar play in the second inning on English's bad throw on Lee's grounder brought a protest from Grimm after Umpire Moran called Lee safe. Grimm insisted his foot was on the bag. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

BURGOO KING'S FAMILY TREE IS FULL OF WINNERS

Combines Best American, Irish, English Stock.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A fine mixture of the best American, English, and Irish thoroughbred blood lines is Burgoo King, Col. Edward R. Bradley's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner.

From his sire, Bubbling Over, and the latter's mother, Beaming Beauty, Burgoo King gets his American lineage. From Bubbling Over's sire, North Star III., comes an extraordinary English strain. The Irish in this newest sensation of the turf comes from Burgoo King's mother, Minawand.

It is a cross which Col. Bradley, who is a shrewd student of blood lines, devoted much thought to, evidently in an endeavor to discover and rectify the frailty which so often has been apparent in the outstanding horses on the paternal side of Burgoo King's family.

Great Horses, Weak Legs.

Bubbling Over, the daddy of Burgoo King, although he was a mighty race horse, was not a sound horse, and his legs gave way at a time when he had a chance to prove that he was one of the greatest horses of all time. North Star III., the sire of Bubbling Over, broke down on the eve of his Kentucky Derby, for which he was the favorite, and never raced again. Sunstar, the father of North Star III., won the English Derby at Epsom Downs in 1911, yet he broke down while scoring the victory and his racing days ended.

Great horses, all of them. But there has been a weakness somewhere that has puzzled the leading breeding authorities unless Col. Bradley has solved it in the production of Burgoo King.

Even Col. Bradley is not certain, for it has been his opinion right along that Burgoo King is also a delicate horse. He possibly has changed his opinion after watching the chestnut flyer win two such gruelling battles as the Derby and the Preakness within the short space of one week.

Related to Ben Brush.

There was no better nor more sturdy strain of purely American thoroughbred lines than was chosen on the dam's side of Bubbling Over's family. Beaming Beauty, the mother of Bubbling Over, was a daughter of Sweep and Bellisario. Sweep was the son of the famous Ben Brush, hardy American thoroughbred which won the Kentucky Derby way back in 1896. Bellisario was a daughter of Hippidrome, from another old American thoroughbred family.

Yet this English-American cross of North Star III.-Beaming Beauty did not, as was hoped, produce in Bubbling Over a horse that could stand up under the rigors of hard training and racing over a long period. Maybe it is going to be different in the second generation which Burgoo King represents.

It was because Bubbling Over showed the old North Star III.-Sunstar leg frailty that Col. Bradley decided to add some Irish blood to the

Sparta Beats Swedes, 5-3, in Replay Game

BY OFFSIDE.

The Peel cup soccer situation was further tangled yesterday when the Spartas defeated the Swedes, 5 to 3, in a replay of the semi-final game held two weeks ago. The Swedes won the first semi-final, 3 to 1, but Sparta protested to the Peel Cup commission, claiming that full time was not played in one period. The commission ordered a replay.

The Swedes played yesterday's game under protest. Officials of the club are awaiting a ruling by the United States Soccer association on the original game. If the Swedes' protest of the replay order is overruled by the national body the Sparta club will meet the Olympias in the Peel cup final. The United States Soccer association is the governing body of soccer and final court of appeal.

Swedes Score First.

Hilding converted on a pass from Stanley to give the Swedes the first score yesterday at Sparta stadium. Qurist scored again for the Swedes a few moments later. The play was followed by a Sparta goal when Turik broke away. Near the close of the first period Hiltgreen added another for the Swedes and the score was 3 to 1.

In the second period Sparta found a strong wind favorable and scored in 20 minutes when Galacher's rocket shot got past Granquist, Sparta goalie. Turik tied the score with five minutes to play and it remained at 3 to 3 at full time.

Extra periods were ordered and Sparta drew ahead in the first when Vidano, on a long run, netted the ball. Stevenson clinched the battle in the closing added period by scoring.

Brickies Whip Olympias, 3-1.

The Olympias, finalist for the Peel cup, were defeated by the Brickies in a National league game, 3 to 1, yesterday. Monroe, Lillie and Reilly scored for the Brickies and Craig for the Olympias.

Ravenswood and the Maccabee All Stars tied, 2 to 2, in an exhibition game. With only five minutes remaining the All Stars lead, 2 to 0, when Murray broke loose for Ravenswood and scored twice in succession. Hubert made both Maccabee goals.

U.S. Davis Cup Team Sweeps Mexico Series

New Orleans, La., May 15.—(AP)—The United States Davis cup tennis team closed its series today with Mexico, after winning five straight matches.

The United States meets Australia at Philadelphia in the North American zone finals late this month. The Americans previously had eliminated Canada in straight victories.

The series with Mexico ended as Ellsworth Vines defeated Ricardo Tapia, 6-4, 5-7, 10-12, 8-6, 6-3, and Frank Shields swept aside Eduardo Mestre, 6-0, 6-1, 6-0.

The Vines-Tapia match was a long grind, the American being in poor form, while the Mexican champion was the aggressor most of the way. The match was a give and take from the start.

Mestre, No. 4 player on the Mexican team, was no match for Shields. The big New Yorker outclassed his opponent in every angle of the game.

AUSTRALIA SWEEPS SERIES.

HAVANA, May 15.—(AP)—Australia's Davis cup team made a clean sweep of the North American zone semi-final matches with Cuba, winning both singles matches today. With the series already clinched, the Australians substituted Clifford Sproule for Jack Crawford in one of today's matches, Harry O. Hopman playing the other. Hopman made the count 4-0 by trouncing Ricardo Morales, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4, and Sproule walloped the Cuban singles champion, Gustavo Vollmer, 6-1, 9-1, 6-4.

ITALY WINS TWO.

ROME, May 15.—(AP)—Italy's Davis cup stars won both of the opening singles matches in the third round series against Spain today. Giogio de Stefani defeated Enrique Mayer, 6-1, 6-4, 6-0, and Giovanni Palmieri beat Antonio Manico, 6-0, 6-1, 6-3.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Phils took to the air yesterday and shot down Lon Warneke, the youthful builder of five straight pitching triumphs. A blast of three homers, good for four runs in the seventh and eighth, wiped out a 4 to 2 Cub lead and assured the Quaker City tourists enough to capture their first win in five starts by 8 to 6. It was the first jolt for the Arkansas youngster who was forced to give up in one day as many runs as had been eked from his delivery in his previous 45 innings of work.

As is their habit, the Cubs, despite an eccentric exhibition by Woody English, tendered brilliant support to Warneke as long as the Phils kept the ball on the ground. And the Hornsby faction, to prove to 26,000 that it also is not their habit to submit easily, ripped loose in the ninth. Passes were fairly showered on them and two runs seeped home, but Snipe Hansen, an original Cub discovery, stepped in as successor to two wild men and pulled down the curtain with two runners still on the bases.

Moore Also Hits Homer.

Although having the decision well in hand until close to the finish, the Cubs had done nothing of consequence with their bats. They poked Phil Collins, the fidgety butcher boy, here and there to pick up runs on a minimum of effort. One of these was a homer by Johnny Moore, which probably was responsible for launching the idea carried out so effectively a bit later by Chuck Klein. Don Hurst and Virgil [Porky] Davis.

Collins was at least good enough to deserve remaining for the finish, but his boss, for some unknown reason, yanked him after the seventh. That's how the Cubs happened to get started on a rally in the ninth. It was wished on them by Ray Benge and Chet Nichols, as might be guessed by the fact that no hits were involved.

Cubs Escape, Then Get Run.

Warneke didn't get through the first inning without encountering a trace of trouble. A wide peg by English on Bartell and a scratch single off Klein's bat put two on with one out. Hurst and Whitney were suppressed on fly balls. This narrow escape inspired the Cubs to step out and do a few things in their opening stand. Richbourg led off with a single, and Herman sacrificed. English lined to left, but the ball dropped foul by inches. He swung again and this time dropped a single into center, Richbourg scoring. English received no assistance from Moore or Stephenson.

Jurges played the part of a brother to Warneke in the second, otherwise there would have been distressing complications. Mallon was thrown out by Jurges, but English's aim on Lee's grounder was bad. Virgil Davis doubled to right center, putting Lee on third. Warneke invited more trouble by walking Collins. Three strikes put Brickell back on the bench. Then Bartell drilled a hard grounder into the open space between third and short. Jurges tore over, skidded as he reached for the ball, turned and whipped it to Herman in time to force Collins.

English Errs Again.

The Phils also ran into a big bargain in the fourth, but the Cubs closed the sale before it was too late. After two were out, English pulled his prize of the afternoon. First he fumbled V. Davis' easy grounder, and then hastily pegged it against the grandstand back of Grimm. The ball bounced back into the playing field and wasn't recovered until the portly Davis had thundered into second. A wild pitch sent him to third, but he went no further. Warneke fanned Collins on a curved third strike which

PETROLLE SWATS TWO SPARMATES, BATTALINO THREE

Boys Go to Work for Bout at Stadium Friday.

"Introducing Bat Battalino, former world's featherweight champion and leading contender for the lightweight title."

This set speech, intoned by Izzy Klein, general factotum at the George Trafton gymnasium, started Battalino off yesterday afternoon on a five round workout. A score of managers, fighters, and loiterers watched the ex-champion as he performed his first ring work here for his ten round fight with Billy Petrolle at the Stadium on Friday night.

Over at Kid Howard's gymnasium Petrolle also began boxing before as many spectators. In general the loop was devoid of fight fans yesterday, what with perfect weather for golfing and motoring, not to mention the desire of many to laze about in the sun rather than visit stuffy gymnasiums.

It Is All Work to Bat.

Preparing for his most important fight, not excepting his several defenses of the 126 pound championship, Battalino showed as much enthusiasm as a clerk reporting for duty at 9 o'clock any morning. Not that Battalino didn't put a lot of pep into his workout. He did, but in a methodical fashion. It was routine, holding forth no pleasure, but not to be avoided. Battalino ran and sprinted four miles in the morning as a prelude to his boxing, and will continue these road trips through Lincoln park tomorrow and Thursday mornings.

Battalino appeared in splendid condition. He always has been a truck horse for work, and condition has been a deciding factor in all his bouts, particularly his last title defense against Earl Mastro, Chicago featherweight. Harry Fierro and Pete Pantaleo each boxed two rounds with Bat, while Bill Reardon was in the ring for one three minute session.

Protects Injured Beak.

Fierro gave Battalino a right smart workout. Weaving and ducking, stepping in with sharp left hooks to the head, he earned his wages. Battalino wore, in addition to the customary headgear, a nose guard, much in the fashion that old time football players elected to protect the proboscis. Bat's nose was broken in his fight with Petrolle in New York and it's still a bit tender. That broken nose, by the way, is held responsible by Pete Reilly, Bat's manager, for defeat. And while there's no reason particularly to believe that Petrolle may not smack it again Friday night, Reilly and others, who saw yesterday's drills, think Battalino will win.

"How much longer can Petrolle keep on fighting?" is their query, indicating that they expect Battalino to outlast the Fargo Express and sidetrack him in the race for a chance at Tony Canzoneri's lightweight title.

No Weight Worries This Time.

Battalino's weight, which finally removed him from the 126 pound class, is the marvel of the boxing industry. He started Saturday at Trafton's weighing 144 pounds. Punching the bag and skipping the rope dropped four pounds from his husky frame. Making weight for Battalino long has been a nightmare, but now that he is fighting Petrolle at 140 pounds Friday night, there'll be no such torture as he inflicted on himself prior to the match here last November with Mastro.

Before that bout, Battalino didn't eat for three days and the most liquid he took was an occasional sip of water. After a fight, Battalino drinks sweet cider, never anything stronger, and on one occasion, it is said, he gained 23 pounds overnight following a fight.

Scores Two Knockdowns.

Petrolle boxed four rounds yesterday, divided between Jimmy Lundy and Dick Sisk. Notoriously a poor performer in training, Petrolle looked better than usual.

PENN'S TRIUMPH GIVES ELI CREW LEAD IN ROWING

New York, May 15.—(AP)—By scoring the greatest upset of the season, Penn's varsity today has given Yale a clear title to the eastern rowing lead, with Syracuse and Cornell the only other unbeaten eights.

Beaten by Yale and Columbia in the Blackwell cup race nine days ago, Penn whipped a highly favored Harvard crew by three-tenths of a second yesterday. Penn was considered to have a chance of finishing no better than third in this quadrangular affair with Harvard and Navy picked to finish one-two, and Massachusetts Tech fourth.

The mythical award of the eastern sprint title now seems to rest on the outcome of the Carnegie cup regatta at Ithaca this week, in which Yale, Cornell, and Princeton will clash, and the triangular regatta at Cambridge May 28, with Harvard, Cornell, and Syracuse as participants.

FRENCH DOUBLES TEAM BEATS U. S. TO LEAD SERIES

AUTEUIL, France, May 15.—(AP)—France took a 2 to 1 lead over the United States in their special team tennis match today by winning the doubles.

Christian Bousseus and Andre Merlin teamed to win a four set duel from Sidney B. Wood and Gregory S. Mangin, 2-6, 6-4, 8-6, 6-1.

The opening singles matches yesterday were split, Merlin defeating Wood and Mangin winning by default from Marcel Bernard, who suffered an injured knee while leading, two sets to one.

In a special exhibition mixed doubles match Helen Wills Moody and Paul Feret defeated Muriel Thomas of England and Rene De Buzelet, 6-3, 6-3.

Kilbourne and Buck Everett Meet Tonight

Tonight's Card

Jack Kilbourne vs. Buck Everett, ten rounds.
Phil Ross vs. Al Engle, eight rounds.
Joe Barlow vs. Solly Dukelsky, four rounds.
Pete Pantaleo vs. Buddy Kearns, four rounds.
Fred Langford vs. Bob Groshek, four rounds.
Virgil Remi vs. Johnny Reba, four rounds.

Jack Kilbourne, Australian middleweight champion, will face Buck Everett, Gary heavyweight, in the ten round windup of tonight's card at White City.

Kilbourne, who has won four of his last five fights at White City, starts the summer campaign in the heavyweight division, despite the fact that he scales around 159 pounds. Being tall and rangy, Jack believes he has a better opportunity against big fellows. He wants no more of the Dave Shade type.

Buck Can Punch.

Everett is the pick of the younger Chicago heavyweights. He took a fight with Joe Doktor on a day's notice last season and won decisively. He fought Al Friedman at White City and had the Bostonian down eight times. Buck subbed for Les Marriner on another south side card and defeated Jack Roper. He is a terrific right hand puncher.

Ross Back in Ring.

Phil Ross, who has been held back by injuries, starts anew in the eight round semi-windup facing Al Engle of Michigan. Engle knocked out Les Finucane and has beaten Don Warden.

Eddie Shea, junior lightweight contender, left last night for Minneapolis, where he meets Johnny Farr of Cleveland Friday.

Prince Saunders, south side lightweight, is in Duluth, Minn., to box Sammy Galup tomorrow. Saunders went to Duluth from Eau Claire, Wis., where he knocked out Santiago Zorilla in seven rounds Friday.

King Tut, Minneapolis welterweight, will leave the loop today for Green Bay, Wis., where he meets Mickey O'Neil of Milwaukee Thursday. Immediately after the contest he will go to Sioux Falls, S. D., where he boxes Johnny Martin.

MAROON TENNIS TEAM PLAYS AT COLUMBUS TODAY

Conference championship meets are important events on the week's schedule for Chicago teams, but the Maroon tennis squad will meet Ohio State at Columbus today in the final dual meet of the season, and the baseball team will play two games this week. The baseball squad goes to Illinois Wednesday and then meets Purdue Saturday on the midway in the final home game of the conference schedule.

Chicago's doubles team of Capt. Paul Stagg and Max Davidson has a chance in the championships at Evanston on Friday and Saturday. Maroon prospects in the golf meet at Minneapolis are slim. Capt. Bob Bohnen is the best possibility to rank high in the individual standing.

John Brooks, broad jumper, sprinter, and hurdler, Capt. Roy Black, high hurdler, and Ted Hayden and Tom Goodrich in the hammer, are counted on to bring Chicago points in the track championships.

Hot Weather Means a Bag Full of Crows

BY BOB BECKER.

With the vegetation coming out on shrubs and trees, the crow hunters in Chicagoland now have more suitable conditions for bagging these birds which raid song and game bird nests and destroy eggs at this time of the year. An Iowa sportsman confirms this thought in a recent letter in which he writes that the foliage now appearing on the trees makes the coming few weeks an ideal time to bag crows.

Dr. H. H. Brierly of Waverly, Ia., is the sportsman who is leading one group of crow hunters in that state. He writes:

June Is Best Month.

"Last spring I wrote you about our success in shooting crows, using live decoys, a mounted owl, and a crow call. For sporty shooting, in my opinion, crow hunting ranks with any activity with a shotgun. Besides, a fellow feels that he is doing a real service to conservation whenever he brings down one of the black boys. I am glad to see mention of crow hunting at this time because from now on for the next month is the best time for shooting crows—when there is enough foliage on the trees and bushes to conceal you. If a fellow knows both the distress call and the cry of the young birds he will have no trouble gathering plenty of crows around a blind.

"I was out for the first time last week. There was not quite enough foliage to properly hide one although I managed to bring down one bird just barely touched up in the wing. This bird started to squawk plenty as it hopped through the brush, and before long there were a dozen crows swooping and flying low in the timber. Last year a group of sportsmen here brought in more than 1,000 crows from their hunts after these birds.

Urges More Crow Shooting.

"In closing I repeat again—for sporty shooting which is at the same time a conservation measure, crow shooting can't be beaten."

We have been crow hunting twice this spring in patches of timber west of Wheaton and, although successful in getting birds, our experience has been similar to Dr. Brierly's: it has been difficult to find cover enough in which to hide because the shrubs and trees were too bare of leaves. Just as soon as the hedges, the thornapple trees, and the wild crab trees have grown their

RUFFING FANS 12 INDIANS AND YANKS WIN, 5-0

Allows Only Four Hits for 3d Straight Shutout.

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Charley Ruffing, Yankee right hander, pitched his second successive four hit game today, turning back the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 0, for the Yanks' sixth victory in a row and the third straight shutout.

Ruffing made the day all the more complete for 45,000 fans by striking out 12 and beating the Cleveland pitcher, Wesley Ferrell. It was Ferrell's third straight defeat after winning his first five starts.

Ferrell held off the Yankee sluggers for five inning, but after two were out in the sixth, New York sent three runs across the plate. Ruth drew a pass, stole second, and scored on Ben Chapman's double. Dickey followed with a single and Chapman scored. Then Tony Lazzeri finished the rally with a triple.

Two Yankee runs in the seventh were gifts. Earle Combs' single and a pass to Lary started it. They advanced on Ruth's out and a balk by Ferrell let Combs score. Lary came in on a wild pitch.

BROWNS BEAT SENATORS, 1-0.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—St. Louis, ancient jinx of Washington, opened a series here today with a 1 to 0 victory, breaking a five game winning streak for the Senators.

Stewart set the Washington sluggers down with four hits and never was in danger. Fischer pitched himself out of a couple of bad spots, but filled the bases in the ninth to lose the game.

VENZKE TO MAKE FIRST OUTDOOR START THURSDAY

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Gene Venzke, who ran the mile indoors in 4:10, will make his first outdoor start in search of an Olympic berth at the New York Curb Exchange A. A. track meet Thursday night.

Venzke will compete in the 1,000 yards run against Frank Nordell and James Maloney of New York university; Otto Rosner, slim New York A. C. star, and Earl Cahalan of the Boston A. A.

Many of the east's leading club and college stars are entered in the meet, among others being George Spitz, holder of the world's unofficial high jump record indoors; Leo Sexton, New York A. C. shot putter, who eclipsed both the indoor and outdoor records last winter; Howard Spencer, star Negro high jumper from Geneva college; Lieut. George Lermond, national indoor three mile champion; and a full team of fifteen from New York university's championship intercollegiate indoor team.

NORTHWESTERN NINE TO MEET MISSOURI TODAY

Northwestern's baseball team will play Missouri at Roycemore field in Evanston today. The Tigers, champions of the Big Six conference, are on a tour of the central states. They lost to Luther Saturday, 4 to 3.

Today's game will be the first of two on the Wildcats' schedule this week. They meet Indiana at Evanston on Friday in the second of a two game series, the first of which the Hoosiers won early in the season.

Elmer Johnson probably will pitch for Northwestern today. He has not worked since he defeated Minnesota, 11 to 2, a week ago.

Clifton, N. J., May 15—[Special]—A best ball score of nine under par for 28 holes gave Billy Burke and Gene Sarazen a victory, 9 and 8, at the Upper Montclair Country club today over Jerome D. Travers, national champion of two decades ago, and Johnny Farrell. It was Travers' first appearance over his home course as a professional golfer. He and Farrell finished 3 down in the morning, when their opponents had a best ball score of 68, four under par. Sarazen and Burke were even tougher in the afternoon, when they went out in 31, five under par.

Bob Smith Ready to Pitch; He Will Face Phils Today

Bob Smith, who has devoted a week to conquering a muscular twist between his shoulders, thinks he has succeeded. He will try to fool the Phils in the second game of the series today. Jumbo Jim Elliott probably will be the visitors' pitching choice.

Just before the game started Hartnett let loose with one of his bullet-like exhibition throws to second base. Herman, who was standing on the bag, didn't see the thing coming and it plunked him in the back of the head. It didn't knock him out, but he was punch drunk for a few moments.

Manager Hornsby hasn't abandoned his threat to try himself as an outfielder if the hitting doesn't improve. He still takes his daily lessons on fly ball catching in right. At the same time he is keeping himself brushed up on third base play. He may make his appearance any day now.

Perfect baseball weather prevailed and the crowd was in the neighborhood of 26,000. That would indicate that at least some of the fans of other years are without the needed admission price and will have to read their baseball.

Grimm was greatly irritated in the second when Umpire Moran ruled Lee safe on a wide throw from English. The umps claimed Grimm, to get the ball, had taken his foot off the bag. To even up for this Grimm kicked up a lot of dirt in front of the offending guesser.

Weather Wins Most Bouts in Week of Ball

New York, May 15.—(AP)—With a few exceptions major league clubs were left with few points for boasting in their records after the weather got through with them last week. Games were called off in great profusion and in general the teams that did the most in the way of scoring and hitting were those that played the most games.

The Washington Senators and New York Yankees were the shining exceptions to the rule of mediocrity. They did not play full schedules, but they won all the games they played, Washington taking four straight and the Yankees three.

Yanks Win Two Shutouts.

Both featured good defense and better pitching. The Yanks had only three runs scored against them all week, winning two of their games by shutouts. Washington allowed only nine runs against the twenty-two the Senators scored, and were one of the better fielding teams, making only three errors in four games. Detroit led with one misplay in three contests.

The St. Louis Cardinals set the hitting pace. They played seven games, winning five of them, scored 40 runs, and made 81 hits. The Cards also topped their league with three home runs, one less than the week's high total, made by the Philadelphia Athletics.

The next best marks were 33 runs by the Chicago Cubs, who won three of their five games, and tied with Boston for second place in the week's National league list, and 67 hits by Cincinnati. The Athletics led the American league in both departments with 26 runs and 46 hits.

Red Sox's Fielding Shines.

Cincinnati did the best fielding in the National league, making only three errors in seven games, while Boston showed the best defensive record, allowing 23 runs in five contests.

Counting out Pittsburgh, which played only one game and lost it, 6 to 5, the week's lows were made by the St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox. The Browns lost five straight and allowed their opponents the high total of 32 runs while scoring 12. Chicago dropped three games in a row, two of them by shutouts, and tallied only five runs on 21 hits. St. Louis gave away the most runs in either league, 36.

The week's major league records of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponents' runs, and home runs follows:

Argentine Runner Sets New 25,000 Meter Mark

BUENOS AIRES, May 15.—(AP)—In a pre-Olympic track meet the Argentine runner, Jose Ribas, set a new South American record for the 25,000 meter run today, covering the distance in one hour, 23 minutes and 15 seconds. The former record was held by Carlos Zabala, who is now on his way to Los Angeles for the Olympic games.

Phils' Homers Beat Warneke and Cubs, 8-6

Fidgety Phil didn't see. He was on the ground when it broke over.

All the Cubs did to cook up another run for themselves in the fourth was to produce one hit. This popped off Moore's bat to open the inning. Collins aided the plot by walking Stephenson. Lee dashed back on the left field hill side to grasp Hartnett's long fly and Moore sprinted to third after the catch. That put him in position to run home when Lee had to retreat for a similar fly sent that way by Grimm. While all this was going on Stevie wasn't able to shake the dust of first base from his feet. Jurges ended the inning with a tap to the pitcher.

Phils Tie Score.

Warneke got one man out of the way in the fifth before the Phils took up the job of scoring twice and effecting a tie. Bartell singled to left but was flagged at second on Klein's roller to Grimm. Hurst broke out noisily with a smash which eluded Moore and caromed off the left field bleacher screen for a triple, Klein scoring. Whitney stretched his string to three and two before poking a single into center to move Hurst across the plate. Then Whitney endeavored to steal, but Hartnett's throw picked him off.

Warneke singled to start the third and got nowhere, so he tried it again when he led off in the home fifth. This time he put over the idea. A couple of infield outs nudged him around to third. English slapped a hard grounder toward right and Mallon grabbed it some place back on the grass, but in trying to untwist himself to make a throw, the ball got out of his hands. Warneke scored and English was presented with a single. The next excitement was Moore's homer into the right field seats to open the sixth. It was a real line drive, not a lazy fly ball.

That Home Run Deluge.

The unhappy Phil seventh started with Richbourg stabbing Brickell's low liner. That probably was a tip off on what was coming, but it didn't arouse any suspicions. Bartell followed with a single through short and the bad Mr. Klein, after ignoring one ball, slapped the next one so hard that it cleared the right field bleacher. That tied the score at 4 apiece and a moment later Hurst untied it with his round trip smash which landed in the back row of the same open faced seats. In the next inning V. Davis made it 6 to 4 with his drive over the wall in left.

The scoring habit was so strong with the Phils that they had to step in for a couple of more in the ninth. After two were gone, Hurst doubled to right and went to third on a wild pitch. Whitney walked and Mallon doubled to left. Hurst scored and so did Whitney, the latter by the aid of Jurges' throw which skidded through Zack Taylor.

Last Stand Nets 2 Runs.

The fuss stirred up by the Cubs in their final attack began with Benge walking Pinch Hitters H. Taylor and Gudat. Manager Shotten didn't want any more of that, so Nichols hustled in and retired Richbourg on a fly to center. Then Herman walked and when Nichols threw two wide ones to English, he was excused. Hansen completed the pass, forcing H. Taylor to score. Moore grounded into a force-out, Gudat scoring, but Stephenson ended it by lofting to Klein.

Thomas to Hurl for Sox Today; Faces Russell

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 15.—It is suspected that Manager Fonseca will send Tommy Thomas against the Red Sox tomorrow. It will probably be Russell for the Red Sox.

Thomas won 10 victories last year and exactly half of them were achieved against the Red Sox. The scores of Tommy's victories were 2 to 1, 2 to 0, 9 to 2, 9 to 3, and 7 to 5. Two of the games were won in one series here, July 22 and 25.

The Red Sox haven't won a game at their home park this season. Their two Boston victories were accomplished at Braves' field, their Sunday headquarters.

Sometimes one wonders if the Sox coaching department is trying to revolutionize baseball technique or whether something else is wrong. Today in the fourth inning, Selph was made to look very bad on an attempted double steal with Seeds. An attempted double steal mind you, with nobody out.

Perfect weather also helped the turnstiles. It was the second hot day Boston has had this season.

Boston observers are complaining that the Red Sox were outsmarted in the recent trades with the White Sox. Jolley had a good day both at bat and afield at Braves field today but they say he's in danger of losing his life on the embankment which backs up left field at Fenway park. Watwood and Tate haven't been hitting a lick.

Who's Who in Women's Golf

Betty Eckersall

MRS. CHARLES DENNEHEY.

Members of the Onwentsia Country club may boast of Mrs. Charles Dennehey, the former Virginia Wilson of Lake Forest, as their only woman scratch player and holder of the club's championship for the last five years. But to the rest of the world she will remain outstanding as the girl who defeated the almost invincible Glenna Collett, 2 and 1, in the third round of the women's national golf championships at the Merion Cricket club, South Ardmore, Pa., in 1926.

Mrs. Dennehey, under the tutelage of her older brother, Hugh Wilson, became interested in golf when she was 10 years old, during her vacations at Mackinac Island. This was the beginning of a game perfected later by Jock Hutchison. Mrs. Dennehey is noted for her accuracy with the irons and her powerful wood shots, developed after hours of practice.

Her first big achievement in the golfing world was the winning of the Buffalo invitational women's tournament on June 26, 1926.

Mrs. Dennehey is internationally known as a golfer, having competed at Newcastle, Ireland, in the 1928 British woman's open tourney. She lost in the third round to Mlle. Simon de la Chaumme of Paris, the French champion and ultimate winner of the British title. She also has the record of shooting a 71, the lowest medal score ever made by a woman in a competitive event, at the Allegheny Country club, on the outskirts of Pittsburgh, where men's par was 72.

Mrs. Dennehey is one of the east's 3 goal handicap polo players, women's ranking. She is an equestrian of the show ring, having won blue ribbons in the Long Island and Aiken, S. C., horse shows. She is an exceptionally good polo shot; splendid tennis player and a strong swimmer. In the last four years competitive golf has not held as much interest as riding to hounds, a sport in which Mrs. Dennehey also excels.

Mrs. Dennehey is planning to participate in the major western events this year.

South Shore Club Flats Have Cash Balance.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY AL CHASE.

One hundred per cent occupancy is reported for the thirty-one apartments in the cooperative section of the South Shore club apartments at 7000 South Shore drive, in a statement issued yesterday by the Bondholders' Protective committee. The one store in the building also is rented. There are two offices and one of them is occupied. Of the 148 suites in the apartment hotel section, about 60 per cent are rented.

This building was financed through a Greenbaum Sons Investment company $1,350,000 first mortgage bond issue, at 6½ per cent, since reduced to $1,323,000. The Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver, yesterday made the following statement of cash receipts and disbursements from May 1, 1931, to Dec. 31, 1932:

Steady Cocoa Stock Gains Checked by Withdrawals

The steady increase in New York warehouse stocks of cocoa was checked in the last week by substantial withdrawals, which about balanced the receipts. Brokers report that manufacturers have been accumulating cocoa on a scale down for consuming requirements.

INDUSTRY AWAITS BUDGET BALANCING, OTHER U. S. ACTIVITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—Except for the expected seasonal upturn, business and trade conditions throughout the country are continuing to mark time, seeming to await settlement of the various financial problems before congress. Industry generally is waiting not only for the balancing of the budget, but to see what the specific means of raising revenue will be, what sort of tariffs will be adopted, how unemployment will be solved.

There is a slight pickup reported in the steel industry as the large automobile manufacturers begin to approach their already announced higher levels of activity. Retail stores report some improvement in their sales, while reports from the farm belt indicate the crops, with the exception of winter wheat, are in a favorable condition.

Reports received from various leading cities state that in Chicago there has been some advance in steel operations and in the sales of automobiles, refrigerators and textiles; there is a fair demand for garments in Boston; trade and industry in St. Louis and Cleveland are dull, and a good outlook for crops in the northwest.

GRAIN TRADERS SEEK WHEAT SLUMP CAUSE

Some Cite Wall St. and Farm Board.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Buying power in all speculative commodities and securities is said to be the lightest known. Few, if any, old time speculators, who have been through previous depressions during the last fifty years, have any recollection of similar conditions.

There have been dull periods, but at present the lowest prices known in many years have failed to induce enlargement in operations. Railroad stocks are selling for only a few dollars, though a few years ago they were selling far above par.

It is not a question of supplies, as there is an abundance of everything, but of demand. Hogs, pork and products are selling at an average of $3.35 per 100 lbs in Chicago, the lowest since 1897. Lard is $3.72½ in the cash market, with short ribs and bellies $3.95 per 100 lbs.

Still Buying Lags.

A decline of 346,000,000 bu in the United States winter wheat crop from last year to the smallest, with one exception, since 1917, has failed to attract a volume of buying. Prices are lower now than they were two months ago, when the first large decrease in the crop was announced in the April government report.

Traders call the low grain prices due to the depression in the stock market, where unusual losses have been sustained by the general public. They cite in addition the bearish economic situation, and the liberal supplies of wheat. Even allowing for a spring wheat crop of 300,000,000 bu and 441,000,000 bu winter wheat, a total of 741,000,000 bu, there would be more than sufficient for all domestic requirements and enough to leave a fair exportable surplus.

Canada has a promise of a good crop, as moisture conditions are the best in recent years and seeding operations there are nearly completed, although its acreage is expected to be reduced about 5 per cent from 1931.

Foreign Crops Fair.

Foreign crop conditions, including Russia, are less favorable. The latter country is short of supplies in Siberia and is said to be accumulating wheat and flour in preparation for any new political complications. Should latest foreign reports be correct, Russia has overexported and is not likely to be much of a factor in the world grain trade for a considerable period.

Reports from other countries are mixed, but in the main suggest smaller crops than last year. With importing countries running on small supplies, they are not likely to carry over a surplus and will have to be in the market continually.

When all bullish conditions are considered, the one important factor in the United States wheat situation is the handicap presented by the farm board, as some traders view the situation. Leaders in the farm board predict higher prices. Chairman Stone was quoted after the bullish government report given out last week as favoring an advance of 10c in wheat.

Trade leaders say were the farm board to turn over its holdings of around 100,000,000 bu of wheat to the general trade there would be a better chance for a 10c advance than by the farm board continuing its own marketing activities.

Closing prices in Chicago were 1 to 1½c lower than the previous week, May being 53½c, July 55⅝c@55½c, September 57⅞c, and December 60⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

May Corn Gains.

Sentiment in the corn trade was more favorable to the buying side on breaks, and the market showed strength early only to weaken at the last under pressure of realizing sales and indifference on the part of buyers.

Country offerings were lighter and shipping sales also fell off, while the outward movement was liberal. Corn planting is well advanced, although somewhat delayed by too much rain throughout the corn belt. With good weather, planting will be finished within the next few weeks. The close was at net gains of ⅝c on May, and unchanged to ⅝c lower on more deferred deliveries. May finished 29⅝c, July, 32@32⅛c; September, 34⅜@34½c; December, 34⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

Industries Take Oats.

Cash oats are being absorbed and moved out to eastern lake ports by industries. Consumption of cereals is said to be of fair average. Country elevator people are evidently moving out their oats to fill contracts for future delivery as receipts have increased materially and are running close to the highest figures of the year. French Road Calls Bonds of $38,390,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—The Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean Railroad company [Compagnie des Chemins de fer de Paris à Lyon à la Mediterranee], through its fiscal agents, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., announced today its decision to redeem on Aug. 15 all of its 6 per cent external sinking fund bonds, due on Aug. 15, 1958, offered here in 1922 in an amount of $40,000,000, of which $38,390,000 are now outstanding.

The bonds, $30,000,000 of which were originally offered at 83, and $10,000,000 at 83½, will be redeemed at 103. Saturday's closing price on the New York Stock exchange was 102¾. In the last ten years the bonds have sold as high as 105½ and as low as 85.

Discloses Strength.

The action of the French railroad in calling its dollar bonds reflects the comparative strength of the French financial situation. Not only has the French government been amortizing its dollar issues as rapidly as possible, but French investors have been buying French issues here and taking them home. A market is now maintained in Paris on the French government's dollar 7½s and 7s. Of the $100,000,000 of French government 7½s sold here only about $60,000,000 are outstanding. Early this year all bonds outstanding of the $25,000,000 department of Seine 7 per cent bonds were retired.

The earliest possible call date for the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s was Feb. 15, 1932, so that Aug. 15 is the next possible call date.

The company also has outstanding in this market an issue of $20,000,000 7 per cent bonds, due 1958, offered in 1924 at 93¾, which does not become

STOCK TRADERS CONTENT TO SIT TIGHT AND WAIT

Varied Happenings Bring Caution.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 15.—The week-end finds Wall street stock traders remaining in their storm cellars as stubbornly as ever. If anything, the popular policy of sitting tight and awaiting developments has grown even more pronounced.

The fresh proposals now coming forward at Washington for "reviving prosperity," "solving the unemployment problem" and disposing of other major difficulties, all by spending more of the public's money; another grist of unfavorable news developments, including the omission of the New York Central's dividend and the reduction of that of the Union Pacific, the drop of 145,000 tons in the United States Steel corporation's unfilled orders, and a further increase in crude oil production all have combined to sink trading sentiment to fresh depths of despair.

Selling of stocks has gone on practically without a letup for the last week. The improvement recorded on the rally which followed President Hoover's recent "rebuke" to con-

CHICAGO GAINS IN WHOLESALE TRADE FOR WEEK

A noticeable improvement in wholesale trade, with retail trade remaining at about the same levels, characterized the last week in Chicago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Increased caution apparent among the majority of buyers was more evident than at any other time in recent years.

More favorable weather brought an increase in sales of women's ready to wear and millinery at wholesale, with a large number of out of town buyers in the field during the earlier part of the week. At retail, though prices continue materially lower, actual distribution of merchandise on the tonnage basis made a fair showing and was close to the same period of 1931.

The steel industry held its own. Although operations remained abnormally low, there was some encouragement in the fact that there was no further recession during the last week. Seasonal buying of steel sheets by roofing and refrigerator manufacturers, which had been good sized of late, began to taper off.

The building and coal industries held at low levels.

Automobile purchases continued to improve.

As a matter of safety, a matter of caution

re-adjust your Will to 1932 values

An old trustee points out the need for reviewing, now, the document that guards your family's future

MANY estates today face a needless danger, a risk that could be avoided. Yours may be one of these. It is well to make certain. . . .

When you made your Will, you probably based it upon the current value of what you then owned. And—that was the wise way to do.

But, while this still is the sound way, it requires that you review your Will from time to time to keep it in line with your changing list of holdings, with alterations in the value of assets. Even in ordinary times, a Will needs going over at regular intervals.

Have you examined your Will during the last few months?

With values seriously different from those of former years, how nearly up-to-date is this document that must guard your family's well-being? The Northern Trust Company suggests that, as a plain matter of safety, you review your Will right now.

The re-writing of it is a task for your attorney. But to make it easier for you to plan the needed revisions, The Northern Trust Company has prepared a book of helpful suggestions.

Why don't you write for this interesting manual now? It is called "Practical Suggestions for Making Your Will."

BANKERS READY WITH PLANS FOR SOME CHANGES

Illinois Group Meets May 23-25.

Matters of importance to bank depositors, business interests and the banks themselves are discussed in a pamphlet to be distributed today to the banks in Illinois. It contains the reports of committees of the Illinois Bankers association prepared for the 42d annual convention of that organization in Springfield, May 23, 24 and 25.

The phamplet contains reports on agriculture, bank management, crime prevention and insurance, economic policies, education, groups and federations, legislation, public relations and regional clearing house associations.

"Each of these committee reports," M. A. Graettinger, executive vice president of the association, said, "will provide the principles upon which the policies of the association will be established by the convention. The committee on agriculture recommends that bankers give the boys and girls in the 4-H club work the benefit of personal friendship and advice. It also calls attention to the subject of agricultural loans, with the idea of impressing upon the banks that local loans to farmers should be treated the same as any other local loans; that they should not be capital loans, but should be repaid out of the proceeds of whatever activity the borrower is engaged upon which required the loan.

Discusses Safe Banking.

"The committee on bank management in 'Safe and Profitable Banking' expresses the opinion that many problems which arose during the last year could have been avoided had the recommendation contained in it been applied more generally by the banks. In regard to the loan policies of banks, it recommends that all loans should be such as can qualify for rediscount at the federal reserve banks or for collateral for a loan with a correspondent bank or the Reconstruction Finance corporation. It also brings out the fact that loans should be self-liquidating.

"The committee on education, which is in charge of the organization of group study classes of the American Institute of Banking throughout the state, insists that a banker needs training to provide him with a thorough knowledge of banking principles and a better appreciation and understanding of economics and salesmanship, and it recommends the development of interest in this particular work during the coming year.

Congratulates Legislators.

"The committee on legislation expresses its deep gratitude to the general assembly for the splendid cooperation given its program. This committee is not only charged with looking after state legislation but is also responsible to the banks for the activities of the association in regard to pending bills in congress. It calls attention to a great array of bills in Washington. Some of them, in the opinion of the committee, would be most improper.

"The special committee appointed to draft a new state banking act states that it recognizes that a very definite demand exists for the reorganization of our banking laws and it makes certain recommendations to which should be given proper study, that a campaign of education should be started, both for the benefit of the public and the banks, and that the bankers should take a lead in that.

Plans Publicity Campaign.

"The committee on public relations has worked out a plan of publicity for a confidence building program built around a series of display advertisements. More than 600 of the member banks have agreed to participate in this campaign and to subscribe to its cost, the banks, individually or in some cases collectively, meeting the space expense for publication. The plan was set in motion on Monday, April 11, and the response far exceeded all expectations. The committee accompanied this report with a map which reveals graphically the extent and distribution of banking coöperation in this state.

"The final report in the pamphlet is that on the committee on regional clearing house associations, and regards that plan as offering the only solution to the problems of the unit bank and is its hope for future existence. Such organizations are primarily designed to strengthen the solvency of banking institutions. The committee recognizes that the public is patiently expecting the banking profession to stabilize banking institutions and insists that there is no better way to do this than through the organization of regional clearing house associations."

Will Use French Balances.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in announcing the forthcoming redemption of the 6s, said payment would be made on that date at their offices or at the main office of the National City bank out of moneys to be deposited by the railroad.

This redemption will utilize automatically French balances in this country to the extent that the issue is held here. The view has been expressed by New York bankers for some time that not only have French investors been active in purchasing French government bonds in this market, but also French municipal and corporation issues, so that it is difficult to estimate whether more bonds of this issue are actually held here or in France. The fact that the American dollar has been quoted at a discount in Paris for some time has, of course, aided French purchases of the bonds here.

U. S. INVESTMENTS IN HIDALGO HELD PERILED BY LAW

MEXICO CITY, May 15.—(AP)—British and American investments totaling several hundred millions of dollars are jeopardized by the new "public utility law" of the state of Hidalgo, José Cruz y Celis, president of the National Mexican Chamber of Commerce, asserted today.

The law makes private property liable to confiscation "for public utility uses" on payment of three per cent of its value. Twenty years is allowed for payment of the other 97 per cent.

The measure provides that if the state government decides, after several years of control, that a property is not suitable as a "public utility," it may be returned to the private owners, who must reimburse the state for all payments made under the condemnation proceedings.

MEN

PERMANENT, IMMEDIATE POSITIONS ARE AVAILABLE IN OUR CHICAGO DISTRICT OFFICES TO MEN WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY.

An executive of our national organization will be here on Monday to interview reputable, industrious men for permanent positions. Such men should apply in person at once.

If you are adaptable to this work, if you have the disposition to study and strive to acquire skill in what you do, and if you have a good reputation and the will to succeed, we will employ you, and back you in work that is paying qualified men $4,000.00, $5,000.00, $6,000.00, $8,000.00, $10,000.00 per year and higher, regularly, in our Chicago and northern Illinois offices, and throughout the entire country.

Men selected will have to take the time to learn and acquire skill and during this time will have to be satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125.00 to $200.00 per month, if necessary.

As soon as the right kind of experience is learned and conscientiously applied, earnings increase. For example, one man who used to be in business for himself came to us last summer and indicated he was qualified to try out for one of these positions. He was trained and started to work without investing one cent. His first three weeks he made $96.00 (average $32.00 per week), but the next six weeks he made $291.00, an average of $48.50 per week. During the year he gradually increased his earnings, and last month he earned over $615.00. His 1932 earnings should exceed $8,000.00.

E. A. Workman, who started with us March 5, averaged $37.00 per week his first three weeks and made $60.00 the next week. Last month he made $508.06, and he expects to beat that figure for May. A former auto salesman started the day after Christmas and has earned well over $2,500.00 with us so far—for his last week reported he made $138.00. No one would be safe to wager that his 1932 earnings will not pass the $10,000.00 mark.

These incomes are cash, and just as stable and permanent as any business or professional opportunities possibly could be. Such earnings represent success, and these new openings and new territories are available to a few more men who can think and work successfully. Our expansion programme is dictated by the amazing success of the new Electrolux invention (not refrigeration).

Concerning this opportunity a former chauffeur stated in a recent sales meeting: "Electrolux paid for my car—Electrolux paid for furnishing my home—Electrolux will buy my wife a trip to Europe this summer. I'll make a car this month out of my earnings in this company and pay cash for it. It won't be any cheap car, either. I love this work." Last month he made over $700.00 (exclusive of additional compensation, prizes, etc.) When this man first joined this company he was doubtful as to the success that he would attain, but he saw another man earn $232.00 for his week's work, he determined to study successful production in order to merit similar pay himself.

This man today is more successful than ever, as are innumerable others who have found their life's work with this company. Similarly, this company is now in its greatest success; 1932 will be our third successive record sales year.

If you feel you can qualify, and if you really would appreciate the opportunity this position offers, call for personal interview with
